

BLARE OF HORNS MARKS CLOSE OF MOTOR DISPLAY

Motor Maniacs Make Merry As Doors Close Upon Record-Breaking Automobile Exposition.

Bl-a-a-a!!!

With the horns of everyone of the scores of cars on display blaring madly, the orchestras playing at the peak of their power and hundreds of exhibitors, salesmen and visitors trying to make their shouts heard above the din, the 15th annual Omaha Automobile show—the greatest in the city's history—ended last night.

"Auto bedlam," by which the noisy celebration was known, was all that had been predicted for it in the way of unusual sound. "Sounds like a warning for the combined gas attacks of the next three wars," a veteran of the recent disturbance said.

The celebration began with the singing of lyrics by all present, led by Charles Gardner. The end of the singing was the signal for the beginning of the racket, and no one present felt himself cheated in the volume of sound produced. At 10:30 the show ended as far as visitors were concerned, and began in earnest for the mechanics and stockmen from the local garages, who swarmed onto the floors and accomplished the dismantling of exhibits and removal of cars.

Exhibit Field Maneuvers.

The removal of cars and decorations was carried to a finish in the most approved military style with Field Marshal Clarke G. Powell directing the maneuvers through his staff of able aides. The best practices of the "army" were applied; obstructions, such as potted palms, electrolights, railings and aisle markers were cleared away first. Then proper avenues of advance were selected, and with the lines of communications established, the march to auto row was begun.

At the word of command each set of show cars wheeled into line as those nearer the door passed out. At the same time electricians and decorators were removing the electrical installations and wall decorations. Work continued until a late hour.

New Record in Retail Sales.

"Every day, and sometimes several times during a single day, we have been surprised by some new development this year," Mr. Powell said. "But as I look back on the week, it seems to me the outstanding feature has been the number of retail sales this year. There were many during former shows, but never anything like the volume the dealers had this year."

"Another development of the year was the interest of town dealers showed. More appeared to make their yearly contracts at the show than ever before, and their buying was the heaviest the business has ever known." To put a figure on the amount of sales, both retail and wholesale, is impossible, but I feel safe in saying that for the week they exceeded $1,000,000.

"Next year we're going to try to beat the 1920 exposition, but you can take my word for it that will be some job. We certainly are satisfied with this one and can't think of a thing to complain of."

Army and Navy Balloon Races Carded for Omaha

Army and navy balloon races for Omaha next September are promised by Lieut. Col. Jacob Wuest, commandant at Fort Omaha, who yesterday received a message stating that this city had been chosen as the starting point of four army and four navy balloons in the annual distance contest.

Another message from leaders of a large conference of balloon men at Kansas City, Mo., stating that Omaha stands first in the list of cities considered for the starting point of the international balloon races to be held in October, was received at the fort yesterday.

Balloons from all parts of the world are expected to participate in this race, which will be a distance competition for the Gordon-Bennett trophy, now held by France.

Hip! Hip! Hooray! Show at Gayety, Beautiful Musical Production

"Hip! Hip! Hooray!" at the Gayety theater is one of the classic of musical plays booked for the burlesque house this winter. Every member of the company is a talented musician as well as a laugh producer. One of the most beautiful closing acts on the stage is the musical selection played by eight of the leads.

Featured by two comedians who are truly funny, Billy Mossy and Ben Pierce, and some principals that can really sing, the company is decidedly good.

The piece is entitled "The Doll Hospital," and there is enough plot to keep things moving throughout two acts and nine scenes. There are three men who want to escape three women, their wives and sweethearts, so they become "nuts" at Dr. Steele's hospital. The women follow, resulting in a lot of comedy.

The production is elaborately staged and gowned. The chorus girls are better than the average in looks and ability. Much of the music is original, by Ferrin G. Somers, and it is tuneful and catchy.

In addition to the two featured comedians, Helen McLain, as Pansy Stellar, "prima donna of the Gasoline Opera Company," Thelma Seavelle as Mabel Smith, Tillie Storke as Mrs. A. Sell, Ferrin G. Somers as Dr. Theophilus Steele, Dave Gardner as Jack Steele and Frank Berry as Erasmus Heavingbreast, do a lot to put the show across in good style. The Bernard Sisters, from the Chorus, have a specialty which is one of the hits of the show.

G. O. P. WOMEN OF OMAHA ORGANIZE FOR CAMPAIGN

Mrs. Draper Smith Elected Chairwoman and Headquarters Will Be Opened With Paid Secretary.

Mrs. Draper Smith was elected chairwoman for Omaha at a meeting of republican women held yesterday afternoon in the University club. Downtown headquarters will be opened and a paid secretary will be appointed.

The chief objective of this organization during the next few weeks will be to obtain a large registration of republican women, the registrations for the April primaries being closed by the election commissioner on April 10. It was suggested at the meeting that a block system of canvass be adopted. Nearly 2,500 republican women are already registered.

"We have a job to do. It may be only feeding the elephant, but there is work to do," Mrs. Smith stated, when she accepted the responsibility conferred upon her.

Should Share Burden.

Myron L. Learned, acting chairman of the republican state central committee said: "You should share the burdens of party organization with the men. You should also remember that under our new party organization plan the women are entitled to one representative from each of the 108 voting precincts of Douglas county in the county central committee."

County Chairman Ben S. Baker urged the women to take as much interest in practical politics as they take in their church.

"You should be interested in seeing that capable persons are elected to public offices," he said, "and you should learn that in politics you must give and take. I've been in the republican party something less than 100 years and I know that the republican party stands for efficiency in government. The republican party should mean something to you. Study the history of your party. Let it be said that we will have a better state and a better nation because of our participation in politics."

Duty to Register.

"It is your duty as women to see that the women are registered," said T. A. Hollister, secretary of the county central committee.

Mrs. Thomas R. Jones explained how the women in Topeka, Kan., formed their organization and of how the women responded when the organization was started.

Mrs. M. D. Cameron, head of the district organization, stated she issued the call for the Douglas county republican women because she believed that it was the duty of women to serve the best interests of their country in a time of peace, at much as they did during the period of the war.

Among the representative republican women present were:

Mrs. H. H. Baldrige, Philip Potter, C. H. Aull, G. W. Doane, James Richardson, E. C. Sumney, J. N. Baldwin, F. D. Wead, H. F. Rose, M. D. Cameron, Martha Christiancy, C. A. Goss, F. C. Tyn, Edgar Allen, William Berry, Walter Williams, Charles Hubbard, Sidney Smith, J. H. Dumont and E. G. McGilton.

The organization was started with 50 active workers.
