GET MONEY BACK tee under the control of the league

> Schmarderer-Sudenberg Bout Is Unsatisfactory; Claim Faker Said He Was Sudenberg.

The following story to The Bee rom a correspondent in O'Neill, Neb., was received Monday: O'Neill, Neb., March 8.—(Spe-cial.)—A fake fight here Saturday night nearly caused a riot when the spectators began to realize they were being swindled out of their money. The whole affair following a similar wrestling event two weeks ago, has put a damper on both boxing and wrestling in

Holt county for some time to Both the wrestle and the fight were given under the auspices of the American Legion local post and Promoter Mike Kirwin, both innocent of the sustitutions worked off on them until the events were called. The American Legion local post announces that it is through lending its name to so-called athletic events unless they are gotten up and par-ticipated in by members of the Schmarderer Is Champ. The event Saturday night was advertised as a 10-round fight between Andy Schmarderer of Louisville, Neb., who claims to have been champion of some kind in the Missouri river navy during the war, and Johnny Sudenberg, a fighter of some note.

Schmarderer came here Thurs day. Saturday afternoon, a slight, pole, anaemic youth, claiming he was Sudenberg, arrived with another of his kind who claimed to be his manager.

"Sudenberg" failed to recognize a former O'Neill sportsman under whose management the real Sudenberg had formerly fought. Another split-eared youth who claimed to be Kid Graves, sporting editor of The Omaha Bee, showed up with an Indian trailer to referee the bout. When time came the fighters tried to hold up the crowd by a demand for more money, there being $250 in the house. Many ticket-holders demanded their money back and getting it left the building.

Those who remained took up a small collection for which the pugilists feebly boxed eight rounds to a draw. At that, the consumptive youth far outpointed the snagboat cham-Sudenberg Is Well. The slight, pale, aneamic con-sumptive youth" who boxed Schmarderer was really Johnny Sudenberg.

"I was there all right," laughed

Johnny, Monday when questioned in Omaha. "When I got there Satur-day it was 12 below zero and the snow was three feet deep. Saturday night there wasn't a corporal's guard at the fight and as we had agreed to hox on a percentage it looked pretty slim for us. We found there was $96 in the box office to split between the promoter, the fighters and pay the expenses.
"We took up a collection and made the pot $135, but figured we couldn't battle for that so we just boxed B rounds. Sudenberg denied that he felt ill in O'Neill. He also denied that he

s a consumptive. "I never felt better in my life," he said, throwing out his chest and thumping it. He looked much the same as the two-fisted, hard-hitter that boxed at Fort Omaha under two bedrooms and bath on second Sudenberg's name two weeks ago. "Kid" Graves is not sporting editor of The Bee.

WICHITA FALLS

CAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 8.-Three years ago Wichita Falls was Sonly a wide spot in the road. The depot was only a couple of loose ties in the track.

The main industry was loafing. If a guy got ambitious he would go to biggertown where there was more loafing to do. Wichita had plenty of desert, and Bill McGeehan chirps Wichita could have traded Sahara eight grains of sand to one. The last time the Giants made that town, it looked like a barroom on Broadway now looks. The deserted village was a nest of red ants compared to Wichita. There never was any falls there, but many a guy took a nasty tumble.

One day a hoop-legged cowboy killed a rattlesnake to drink the poison. That's the kind of souses they went on down in Texas after Bill Bryan decided that grape juice was a man's drink. This lad made a pillow out of a mad porcupine and went to sleep. During the night the porky lit out from under and the cowboy's royal skull nested in the Wichita sand. When he woke up he discovered that his pillow was flatwheeled off with his wallet, but that he had been slipped an oil shampoo during the night.

Naturally he investigated and discovered that he had been wasting a bell and Lynton Ayers will not be lot of good snores on a miserable little oil well worth about as much back next basket ball season. Leo as the Atlantic cable wrapped in thousand dollar bills. This was Wichita's debut. Now the town is hung with a lavallier of oil wells that don't even stop for breakfast.

When Waco slipped out of the Texas league, Wichita bought the franchise up, bones and all. They're building a base ball park that will cost more than all the mistakes Congress made in the war. Not that Wichita cares about base ball much. They're more interested in the new radiator cap of the 1927 Rools-Royce and whether Crown Prince Charles will give Zizi the gate. But being as how they started out to collect a base ball team, the dukes of Wichita threw the throttle off and jammed up the safety valve.

The grandstand is built out of turquoise. Not cooking turquoise, but the Racing Association est eating kind. It will hold 60 times more people than will ever see it. The turnstiles are three speeds forward and one reverse. The diamond s spangled with grass grown from hand-picked seed. All the grass seed s perfectly matched in color and shape. The bases are three times further apart than any bases in any league. They don't like foul balls in Wichita, so the foul lines are painted outside the park.

The outfielders are furnished with motorcycles and have bellhops to chase grounders for 'em. The club house is the darb. Four kinds of running water. All the shower baths are oil. Instead of handing out rain checks, they hand out oil checks. This is because an oil well is liable to bust out in the middle of the diamond and clog up the bases. Gasoline is free. You can drink all you can carry.

Anybody worth less than a million is sent to the poor house on suspicion. A Wichita pitcher learned how to throw the famous petroleum ball, or three-in-one. It's greased on the inside edges and flows up to the plate so slippery that the batter swings at it three times, twice at the plate and once on the bench.

The Giants play Wichita in three weeks, which sounds Eleanor Glynnish. We'll let you know just how big leaguers act in a bigger league.
