

VOTE TO REJECT GAS PLANT PRICE HELD OVER WEEK

Mystery Surrounds Failure of Council Committee to Bring Recommendation to Legal Vote.

An ordinance to abandon the gas plant condemnation and to reject the appraisal for $4,500,000 will be held in abeyance for at least one week, at the request of a representative of the stockholders of the gas company and Corporation Counsel W. C. Lambert, according to an announcement made by City Commissioner W. G. Ure, during the city council meeting yesterday morning.

Mr. Ure, as chairman of the city council committee of the whole, which recommended the ordinance for passage, did not report the ordinance out of committee yesterday.

No Company Proposal. Commissioners Zintman and Ure, leaders in the fight against accepting the appraisal yesterday gave the following statement on the new situation:

"We wish to deny that there is any break among the commissioners who voted for this ordinance yesterday. There is no urgent need of passing the ordinance until March 22, and, insofar as we now know, the ordinance will be passed on or before that date. We have no knowledge of any proposition from the Omaha Gas company. We have been asked to hold the ordinance for a while and we have acceded to that request."

This arrangement was agreeable to Commissioners Ringer, Towl and Falconer. Commissioners Ure, Zintman, Ringer, Towl and Falconer offered an ordinance yesterday to submit to the voters on April 20 a proposition which, if approved, would mean another condemnation and appraisal of the gas plant. This ordinance was referred to the committee of the whole and its passage would be contingent upon the passage of the ordinance to reject the appraisal.

W. H. Taylor, president of the Omaha Gas company, yesterday reiterated his statement that the company will not consider any proposition less than the amount of the appraisal.

Council Votes to Delay Sixteenth Street Paving

The city council yesterday voted to postpone until next year the repaving of Sixteenth street, from Douglas street to Victor avenue, on account of the condition of the intersection fund. Contracts awarded last year and bids opened on February 10 and 17 of this year will absorb this year's intersection fund without considering the Sixteenth street project.

The council voted to make awards on 21 paving districts, including the following:

Forty-eighth, Howard street to Poppleton avenue; Fortieth, Cumming to Hamilton; Nicholas, Thirty-eighth to Forty-sixth; Twenty-fifth avenue, Fort to Hartman.

Sessions were held yesterday afternoon, following a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce and will continue today and tomorrow morning. Tomorrow afternoon will be devoted to showing visitors around Omaha, in an automobile tour that will include every point of interest.

Regret They Didn't Cut Victim With More Success

James and Charles Jones, negro brothers, 111 Capitol avenue, were given a collective sentence of 70 days in the county jail in Central police court yesterday on charges of cutting with intent to wound Luke McFall, negro, 114 North Eleventh street. James will serve 40 days. His brother will keep him company for a month.

"De only trouble 'bout de affair wuz dat we didn't cut deep enough," James uttered as he was led to the bull pen.

Both men were arrested following an altercation at McFall's home. McFall's wounds were slight.

REAL ENGLISH NOBLE SPENDS 20 MINUTES HERE

Lord and Lady Glenconner and Two Sons Pass Through Omaha on Way Back to Great Britain.

Lord Glenconner of Glasgow and London, peer of the realm and member of the British house of lords, was in Omaha yesterday. Very few of the hundreds of travelers and others at the Burlington station, where he spent some 20 minutes, were aware of his proximity to nobility. But he was here, nevertheless, and with him were Lady Glenconner and two strapping Scottish lads, his sons.

Then Glenconner party is returning to London, after a stay of two months in California. They are traveling in their private car, Constitution, which was attached to east-bound Burlington train No. 2. Their immediate destination is Boston, where they will remain four days before embarking for England.

At the station Lady Glenconner and the boys walked up and down the platform for a few turns, unrecognized by the hurrying travelers and the relatives and friends of those who left the train. Lord Glenconner would have liked to join them but he was delayed.

Nothing to Say

He was explaining to a lone reporter that he really had nothing to say. Nothing, that is, except that Nebraska is quite the most beautiful country he had yet seen, and the country, seemed so flourishing and the towns and cities so bustling and prosperous. The weather, too, was so bracing and the sunshine so bright and pleasant, Nebraska really had quite a fan in his lordship.

The railroads of the country were a different proposition, however, and lacked the essential of privacy found on the British roads. Carriages there, Lord Glenconner pointed out, limit passengers to six

Pressed for his observations on world politics, he admitted that he felt keen disappointment in President Wilson for the stand he has taken in regard to the treaty.

"We cannot but feel greatly disappointed in President Wilson's stand in the face of the entire world. America should be leading the rest of the nations, and here she is deep in a family quarrel, and that over a small matter. The world looks to America, the young and vigorous nation, to lead the way. On that account she must keep her politics clean and her motives honest," Lord Glenconner said.

Former service men, holders of Uncle Sam's war risk insurance, have received from the bureau of war risk insurance an identification card bearing their name and insurance number, for ready reference, such as they carried while in the

This card will enable the men to give their correct insurance number when communicating with the bureau, and also serves for identification in cases of sickness or accidents.
