

FORMER OMAHA DOCTOR VICTIM OF INFLUENZA

Dr. Hugo W. Wightman, Inventor of Smokeless Powder and Ex-Creighton Instructor, Dies Here.

Dr. Hugo W. Wightman, widely known surgeon and lecturer and the inventor of smokeless powder, died yesterday at St. Joseph hospital...

The funeral will be held in the Hulse & Riepen undertaking establishment at 2 Friday afternoon and will be under the auspices of the Douglas County Medical society...

Sells Invention Cheap. Dr. Wightman was especially known as a lecturer and as a teacher in several colleges of medicine...

Born in Michigan. Dr. Wightman was born in Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 16, 1873, the son of a fisherman on the Saginaw river...

Early in February Dr. Wightman was taken sick with influenza. It was then that he wished to come back to Omaha and be attended by the only dear friend he had ever known, Dr. Holtman.

Through a surgeon of more than local reputation, learned in the practice of medicine and a frequent contributor to various medical journals, Dr. Wightman remained always a bit contemptuous of the efficacy of medicines and during his illness it was difficult to get him to take them with regularity...

Omahan in Washington. Washington, March 10.—(Special Telegram).—A. J. Donohoe of Omaha, a member of the Nebraska constitutional convention, was in Washington Tuesday en route to Nebraska having come east with Mrs. Donohoe on account of illness in his wife's family in Pittsburgh.

Minneapolis Man in Omaha to Organize Herbert Hoover Club

Sentiment in Nebraska concerning Herbert Hoover as the republican candidate for president, is being sounded out by Walter W. Thorp of Minneapolis, organizer for the Hoover club for men and women.

According to Mr. Thorp the suggestion of Hoover as the G. O. P. standard bearer has met with instant response and branches of the club have been organized in nearly every state in the middle west and in many on the Atlantic coast. The club originated, he explained, in Minneapolis, where the membership jumped to 100 three days after it opened and now numbers thousands of men and women among its members.

Organizers have been sent to each state that has a branch to crystallize Hoover sentiment and perfect organization. It is planned, Mr. Thorp said, to complete national organization in the near future.
