

The great herds of deer which roam through the mountains of Yellowstone Park are forced by lack of herbage to descend to the valleys and foothills in the winter time and eat of the fodder provided by their generous caretaker Uncle Sam. The animals may be seen clearly in this photograph, all those tiny black spots in the far distance are also deer.

Crystallized Successes in SPRING FASHIONS

This is a simple, well-tailored suit of Navy Tricotine—unique tabs, remembering the necessity of pockets, attaching themselves beneath the long, roll Tuxedo collar—the peplum rippling beneath a natty belt. The skirt is worthy of the coat.

An afternoon or dinner gown shows what can be done with the combination of Japonica and sand-colored georgette over sand satin—when it is so wonderfully embroidered in the two-tones of yarn.

Poirot Twill may be the foundation of this Steine Blaine model with surplice jacket topping a panelled skirt, but gold and floss threads achieve a new glory in the embroidered peplums—deep cuffs and skirt panels.

A smart top coat in sports style—of soft wool velour—in the new shade of tan. The collar may be tailored, the sleeves raglan and the belt narrow, but they are undeniably clever.
