NEBRASKA AND COUNTRY MUST BE KEPT G. O. P.

Such Is Belief of York Candidate for Republican National Committee.

C. A. McCloud of York, Neb., candidate for election as republican national committeeman from Nebraska, spent yesterday in Omaha, furthering his campaign.

"I have only one interest in this matter," said Mr. McCloud. "That is my desire to do my part toward keeping Nebraska and the country definitely republican."

"I believe that the country's interest may be best served by a republican administration."

"Recent events, I believe, have caused most other people to feel the same way."

"In politics, of course, as in everything else, there is strength in unity. I believe that there is plenty of cause for republicans to stand together, without fears of each other and without factionalism."

"There is no factionism in my candidacy and if I am elected national committeeman, there will be no recognition of factions in my handling of the party affairs in Nebraska."
