Auto Under Water.

When he had removed his family and household goods, he found that his automobile was completely sub-merged in the barn. He secured a team of horses and hauled the car through a half mile of water to dry land. The machine could not be the water itself, moving through the flood much as a torpedo plows the ocean.

John Weinbrock, Ninth street and Hartman avenue, and Mr. Griffin, Tenth street and Hartman avenue, were forced to vacate their homes, as were also Otto C. Zeuch-ler, 5902 North Sixteenth street; James Addison, Eleventh and Reese street; James Anderson, 7024 North Fourteenth street, and Joseph Anderson, 1423 Reed avenue.

Loses His Furniture.

Nick Pavlic, Sixteenth and Redick avenue, lost his complete house furniture in the flood, seeking to remove it to high ground. The in-tensity with which the water dashed against the rafts on which he sought to remove it, knocked the furniture from the raits. It all floated out of reach and was soon seen disappearing in the angry swirl of the water
