CHICAGO STRIKE WILL INCREASE MEAT PRICE HERE

Walkout Also Held Partly Responsible for High Cost of Irish Potatoes In Omaha.

The "outlawed" railway stike of 50,000 workers, affecting 25 railroads in the Chicago switching district, already is increasing the price of meat to Omaha consumers and if it continues will advance quotations very materially, dealers said today.

The strike also is held partly re-sponsible for the "unheard of" price of Irish potatoes, selling on the market at $5 a bushel with seed po-market at $5 a busnes with seed po-tatoes at $6.

Meats today were substantially higher for many cuts. They are affected by the strike through the reduced supply, merchants said.

Omaha meats in the emergency are being shipped to Chicago.

Standard vegetables showed no unusual increase and in many lines, such as leaf lettuce, there were material reductions. Fruits continued selling at high prices.

Leaf lettuce was quoted at 5 cents cents. Good head lettuce was retailing at 10, 15 and 20 cents, according to quality. Asparagus is selling at 15 and 20 cents, lower by 5 and 10 cents a pound than Cauliflower is up to 20 cents over a former price of 15 cents. Old and green onions are retailing at 10 cents. Excellent baskets of tomatoes can he bought for 15 cents in some instances. Sweet potatoes apparently have not been affected by the strike and are selling at 71/2 to 10 cents a pound.

Fine fruits and even the cheaper grades continue to sell at high prices, the best oranges retailing at 75 and 80 cents a dozen and the cheaper ones at 50 to 60 cents. Apples are somewhat scarce and high.

Biological Professor Of Creighton Has New Job On His Hands

Why does an alligator "alligate?" Don't know yet; but Professor Schafer of the biology department at Creighton university has lately received a present of two fine speci-mens which he has forthwith exempted from the dissecting table for the purpose of making a detailed study of these animals. Indeed, he knows a great deal about 'em already.

To give this a scientic twang it may be said that the professor has already identified his saurian pets. or alligatorids, as he prefers to call them, as a species of the genus alligator of the family alligatoridae of the order crocodilia. The sugges-tion of starting an alligator farm was not altogether unheeded by the professor. In fact Professor Schafer is quite a connoisseur of such specimens of animals as are used for dissecting in the biological laboratory. He has a regular menagerie at the college consisting of rabbits, pigeons, snakes, lizards and the like. He claims that he is able to save from $300 to $400 each year by raising his own specimens. But the alligators are an entirely new addition to his unique collection.

Bucolic Atmosphere Of Nebraska Town Is No Lure to This Lad

Ray Sarr of Lexington. Neb., is no longer impressed with the merits of that thriving town.

A quiet, bucolic atmosphere bores him dreadfully and he craves to sign up as recruit in the coast artillery so he can go away to California, where the climate is said to be wonderful, and everything.

He declares he hates to stay in Lexington, and even grows so desperate as to offer a bribe of $20 to Sergt. H. B. Marks of the Omaha recruiting station. His letter to

Sergeant Marks follows: Sergeant Marks follows:

Dear Sir: I won't be down to volunteer again until next fall; my dad needs me at home till then, but I will be down next fall, and say, Marks, I want to enlist in the coast artillery and go to California, and if I am underweight if I give you $20 (twenty dollars) will you let me go and see how I like the army life. I will give you $20 (twenty dollars) just to let me in the army once to see how it is, I will be very glad to do that for I need an education.

RAY SARR, Lexington, Neb.

Sarr attempted to enlist in the army last winter, being sent to Oma-ha from Grand Island. Here it was discovered he was eight pounds underweight and he was rejected. He went to his farm home saying he was going to make up the weight necessary by diet of mush and milk.

He-Girls and She-Men

Disturb a Cardinal

Boston, April 9.—Women in this country are becoming masculine and men are growing effeminate, in the opinion of Cardinal O'Connell. Man is the head of the house, he told a meeting of men in the cathedral of the Holy Cross recently, and should assert his proper authority.

Cardinal O'Connell said he did not understand how a father "could look on and see his children, especially the girls, running rampant without any consideration for modesty." He criticized the evil of extravagance in expenditures and predicted a financial reaction in this country somewhat similar to that which has caused Europe's virtual

Boy Tests Dynamite Stick

With Rock-May Lose Sight Kansas City, Mo., April 9.— stick of dynamite which William Ga-ber, jr., 5-year-old son of Mrs. Wil-liam Gaber, of No. 561 Prospect avenue, found the other day, looked queer to Willie, so he decided to test it with a rock.

The child is now in a hospital minus his left hand index finger. His eyes were also injured to such an extent that surgeons fear he may lose his sight.
