The Plate Shower

Katherine Baxter

Plates are among the most difficult things to shower pretty, and yet they are among the most acceptable wedding gifts, and of late a presentation of plates has become one of the best-liked of pre-nuptial gift givings.

Where something unusual is desired for the presentation it is quite possible to produce a very novel effect even in the case of the un-plastic plate. For instance, the different offerings of this nature could be covered with dark colored tissue paper to suggest the heart of a sunflower or big daisy and then yellow or white petals added, and they could be arranged on mantel-pieces, shelves, etc., trimmed with green so that the effect of flowers is given. If the affair is a surprise, ask the bride to "walk in the garden" and then conduct her into the adjoining room where you have arranged the garden. Some of the plates might be fastened on the wall by means of the little easels that come for the purpose, and rods covered with green crepe paper and paper leaves might be poised below them so that the effect of long stems is given.

Games with plates could furnish the entertainment for the occasion. For instance, pass around paper plates with pencils and see who can draw the prettiest design on hers.

Cut up advertising pictures, put the fragments of two pictures on one dinner plate. Give each player a dinner plate and see who can in
