hleago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire New York, April 11.-The spread of railroad labor disturbances last Madge by the Declaration of His week, with its threat of reaching into new territory before irresponsible walkouts terminated, added one tual physical suffering which goes with a stagnation of the delivery into consuming channels of the necessaries of life.

Signs of Price Recessions.

Signs of Price Recessions.

There were signs of price recessions in markets that had begun to receive increased quantities of manufactured products. It looked as though the spring would progress with somewhat easier conditions for both producers and consumers. But the strikes, engineered for a purpose as yet obscure and in defiance of authority of organized labor, have changed all that. Should insurgency be calmed within the next few days, it will require weeks before the roads are again able to report a resumption of traffic improvement which began with the passing of adverse weather conditions.

them, and found them in the rowboat on the little lake at the foot of the garden. The artist, looking extremely happy and supremely uncomfortable, was sitting in one end of the rowboat, while Marion in the middle, flushed and determined, was rowing him about the lake.

Marion has learned to row in child fashion since she has been with us, the little lake, in no place over three feet deep, being an ideally place for juveniles, and she naturally is anxious to display the accomplishment. That the boat leaks slightly, and that her oars are apt to slip, sending splashes of water over her passengers, are matters of supreme indifference to Marion, although in other situations she is solicitous concerning the comfort of her elders. But on the subject of rowing her brain is single-tracked and enthusiastic.

A Hppy Couple. "Hoo-oo! Marion!" I called "Time to meet mother!"

She turned the boat so quickly that Mr. Savarin nearly lost his balance. I caught a glimpse of modish masculine shoes describing an ish masculine shoes describing an arc toward the sky, and held my breath as the artist righted himself is impossible until work is rein Chihuahua. According to the acwith an effort. "Oh-h, Uncle Robert, I'am so sorry!" the child exclaimed. "I guess you're not very used to rowboats, are you?" with impertinence as un-

"I guess I'm not, sweetheart," he answered, and they were near enough now for me to see the fond twinkle in his eyes as he looked at her, "not this kind, anyway. But I'll learn if you'll help me." "I'll take you out for hours every day you're here," Marion declared with her words strongly italicised, and Mr. Savarin laughed outright as he met my amused eyes. "Are we going to meet mother with the car, Auntie Madge?" Marion queried, and in the same breath:

"May I put on my pink dress?"
"Surely, dear," I returned. "but you must hurry. We haven't very much time. Uncle Robert will excuse you if you run, I know."

She tied her boat and skipped away with a backward wave of the hand. Robert Savarin's eyes followed her fondly, and I knew his thoughts from the sigh that invol-untarily escaped his lips. But the next instant a totally different expression crossed his face, and he looked at me with a rueful smile.

Can Lillian Resist? "Marion is not the only one who will have to change," he said, glancing down at his bespatted and rumpled clothing, so trim and im-

"My dear lady, that would have been very true six months ago, but that time has passed for me. Let us speak plainly, once for all. It has only been within the last few months that I have completely lost the haunting fear that some day there might come over me again that awful cloud-"

He stopped, and I fairly held my breath, remembering the 15 years of mental loss to which he referred. "The best specialists long ago assured me that I need never fear its return," he went on, "and now my own inner consciousness confirms their decision. At last I am a man again, among men"-he sung his hands wide with a sudden dramatic gesture-"and, make no mistake, I shall use all my returned strength to claim and protect what should be my own by all the laws of God and nature, if nat of man."
