Missionary Worker Returns. Miss Minnie B. Mills, who has been engaged in missionary work in Turkey for the past 23 years, arrived in Omaha Monday and is the guest of her brother, Rev. Herbert L. Mills.

Miss Mills has been teaching in the American Collegiate institute for girls at Smyrna. During the war American missionaries and instructors were given protection, she said. "Smyrna was recognized as the safest city in the war zone and refugees flocked there. Only once was the direct effect of the war felt at the American college. During an air raid by the British, a bomb burst a few hundred yards from the school, breaking every pane of glass in the building, but injuring no one. This happened during the drive of the Dardanelles," said Miss Mills.

My HEART and My HUSBAND

By ADELE GARRISON

Why Robert Savarin Said "I Am in Your Hands." If Lillian could have seen Robert Savarin at the moment he questioned me concerning her possible change of heart, her femininity would have been amply repented for the few seconds at the railroad station when his voice and manner had made her blush as would a shy schoolgirl. Unversed in the little ways of women, he had given her avoidance of him the one meaning which he dreaded most, and all the new masterfulness with which he had meant to combat her Quixotism was stripped from him.

What Madge Promised.

"I agree with your feeling," I said a bit dryly, for his vehemence disturbed me—I have never cared for melodrama—"but the fact remains that he is legally entitled to call himself by that name. And I must warn you that you will have no opportunity for you to try to see her for the next few hours."

Leonard Wood's Platform

Clear, Sound and Convincing on All Burning Problems—Just to Both Capital and Labor—Demands Higher Pay for Teachers—American, Not Internationalistic, on All Subjects—Wants a League of Nations, With United States Safeguarded—Welcomes Women to Public Life—Safely Conservative and Broadly Progressive.

Leonard Wood's platform, as it is developed through his public utterances, is both inclusive and exclusive. It embraces his clear-cut convictions on all vital issues of the day, and excludes all those topics that opportunists, compromisers, rainbow-chasers and blind leaders of the blind endeavor to substitute for burning questions of the moment.

The League of Nations. "I believe we should adopt the league of nations with reservations which thoroughly Americanize it and leave America absolutely untrammelled to follow the dictates of the American people, expressed through the agencies provided by the constitution."

Capital and Labor. "We must do everything we can to help on good business, for on it depends national prosperity. Labor and Capital in this country must work together in order to meet the problems which are going to follow this world's war. We do not wish an autocracy of either Capital or Labor, but a real democracy in both, characterized by a spirit of co-operation and helpfulness."

Immigration. "We must see to it that the right kind of immigration comes to us. In other words, we must look into the quality of our immigration as we never have before. The flood of immigration will come largely from the war-swept areas of southeastern Europe. It may be composed largely of people who have never lived in a representative government, who have been part of the great forces of disorganization and destruction which have swept over Europe—people who have no sympathy with our institutions or ideals."

The Farmer. "We must keep constantly in mind one most important fact, which is that nothing must be permitted to interfere with ample production. There must be no fixing of prices which will result to the detriment of the farmer. Indeed, price fixing, especially minimum price fixing, should be entered into most cautiously and only when it is certain that good and not harm will result."

Better Pay for Teachers. "Our teachers are very much underpaid. There is no class today in America which has the opportunity to do more important or more constructive work in the building up of good citizenship. I do not know that I could except the Church itself, than those who are teaching in our universities and schools. They are working quietly, but effectively, day after day, week after week and month after month. They have our children with them much more than we have them, and as they incline the minds of these youngsters so will they be later on. They are not only imparting knowledge, evoking power and teaching how to use the knowledge they give them, but they are also waging that silent battle against ignorance and prejudice upon the successful outcome of which depends very largely the stability of this country. The average country school teacher, in many sections of the country, receives less than the average first-class classroom teacher in college professor is not paid as well as the average good bricklayer, and the result has been our ablest professors and teachers have had to seek employment in other lines of work."

Women in Politics. "Personally, having seen what the women did during the war, at home and abroad, I feel very confident that the entrance of the American women into the Field of American Politics is going to have a very helpful and good influence, one which will make our politics cleaner and introduce a better spirit into the political field. The difficulties that beset our national future would confront us as immensely more insuperable if we could not look forward to overcoming them through the assistance of voting women. The granting of suffrage to women gives us the promise of an amazingly better world in the years to come."

American Business. "We want to do everything possible to push forward American business. We must not permit this class of people to come to us. We have put all the sand in our cement that it will stand. We need a certain amount of immigration for the development of our agriculture, our business and our industries, and we welcome the man and woman who comes here for the purpose of adopting our ideals, supporting our institutions, living up to our standards. But we must turn our faces like flint against those who come here to be a burden upon our form of government, and imbued with ideas and theories of government, which are dangerous in the extreme."

The Reds. "We have in this country at the present time a large and highly organized force of disorder—the so-called Reds. They are dangerous, in part because of their organization and activity, but especially because of their own indifference. These people are systematically trying to build up opposition to our government, and they are openly declaring their determination to substitute for lack of government the kind of chaos which rules in soviet Russia and other countries."

Our Merchant Marine. "It is most important that we build up a vigorous merchant marine. It is most essential for the distribution of our commerce and the development of our foreign trade. We also need it as a reserve for our merchant marine will furnish the much-needed personnel for a fleet in case of war."

The Budget System. "We must institute most rigid economy in the conduct of national affairs. As a means to the economical conduct of the affairs of the country we should have a budget system as quickly as possible. It means better financial administration, greater economy and efficiency."

Military Policy. "We need a highly efficient but small Regular Army, 200,000 to 250,000 men, sufficient for the peace needs of the nation, and a first-class Navy, always ready. The army of the Republic should be built up with the idea of maintaining the smallest number of men living the lives of professional soldiers, only enough to give us an army sufficient for the peace needs of the nation, but believe that silent battle against ignorance and prejudice upon the successful outcome of which depends very largely the stability of this country. The average country school teacher, in many sections of the country, receives less than the average first-class classroom teacher in college professor is not paid as well as the average good bricklayer, and the result has been our ablest professors and teachers have had to seek employment in other lines of work."

THE SPRINGTIME TONIC For Nervous, Weak Men and Women Is CADOMENE TABLETS Sold by All Druggists. Combing Won't Rid Hair of Dandruff The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and these or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work. See Want Ads Are Best Business
