

SUSPEND THREE POLICEMEN FOR ALLEGED CRAFT Department Head Probes Statement of Two Women That They Evaded Arrest With Money.

Three policemen have been suspended as the result of the police probe begun yesterday by Chief of Police Marshall Eberstein following disclosures made by two women that they evaded arrest by paying for protection. Patrolman William J. Wilkening, 1031 South Thirty-first avenue, accused of taking $20 from Mrs. Mary Toth, 1201 Izard street after he had released her on an alleged charge of illegal possession of liquor Wednesday night.

Alexander Will Resign. Motorcycle Policeman Jess Alexander, Millard hotel, who is under a 10-day suspension for leaving his motorcycle out in last Sunday's snowstorm is under suspicion in connection with the Toth woman's charges.

Policeman Alexander said he went to the Toth home Wednesday night in answer to an emergency call. He stated that Wilkening had the Toth woman in custody but released her against her.

"It's your case. Do what you like," Alexander said he told Wilkening after he had released the woman. Alexander stated last night that he was through with the police department and would hand in his resignation to Chief Eberstein this morning.

Says Raff Got $100. Patrolman Homer Raff, 2504 L street, was identified by Mrs. Anna Darkulich, 2717 R street as the officer who held up her home and took $100 Wednesday night.

Mrs. Darkulich said that Officer Raff came into her home Wednesday night and at the point of the revolver demanded he be paid $50 or he would arrest everybody in the house for selling booze. A collection was then taken up among seven who were in the place and $50 was turned over to Raff. As he was going out the door he took $500 more from Mrs. Darkulich which she had concealed in her waist, the woman said.

The bill provided $2,500,000 for a transcontinental air mail route between New York and San Francisco via Chicago and Omaha next July 1.

For Boys and Girls What Shall I Be? Answered for Girls. Landscape Gardener. CAROLINE WEIRICH. "What a delight to the eye that cunning little villa is," said the man who had built the big house on the top of the hill and was on his final approval trip with the architect.

That's Beatrice Hill's place. Haven't you heard of Miss Hill? Best landscape gardener around these parts. Of course, that place of hers represents a lot of study and time. But she knows her business. She went to a landscape school in Groton, Mass., for two years. Then she apprenticed herself to a prominent gardener and finished up by several months of work in a nursery. And I reckon she has about every book on landscape gardening there in it. You ought to see some of her pictures of fine old places in Europe! Better run in and see her. That new place of yours needs handling."

The car stopped, and the men went in. But when it came to terms the new man was surprised and said so. "You think $150 too large a fee for plans of laying out your garden?" Beatrice Hill rejoined. "That is my lowest price. Let me tell you no one except a skilled landscape designer can give you real service. You have no idea of the study it has required to fit me for the work. I must know horticulture and dendrology. I must understand engineering problems connected with drainage, and, above all, I must be able to have the eye of an artist, and an artist who works on a grand scale."

"The earth and the sky is my canvas. Consider only the question of lines. It is easy to make a garden look beautiful seen from a certain point. It is difficult to make it seem harmonious from any point. And when such matters as terraces and steps are concerned, to say nothing of statuary treatment, when the ground is irregular and ill-suited to certain effects, then it is a profound study. It is one of the loveliest professions in the world, I think, but it is one that takes a great deal of training and a gift of art."

"Make the plans, Miss Hill," came the reply. "I'm convinced. There'll be no difficulty over your fee." (Monday: What Does College Mean to You?)

First Aid Lectures. Police Commissioner Ringler today directed continuation in the police department of a series of lectures in resuscitation methods and additional practical instruction in reviving persons rescued from drowning. All policemen will have received the instruction when the course is completed, he said. "An officer should be able to act efficiently on emergency calls."

What Shall I Be? Answered for Boys. Importer. FRANCIS ROLT-WHEELER. There was a time when the United States was proud of being independent of Europe, and when Canada was glad that she was so closely linked with Europe. Now, the peoples of North America have grown so strong and the countries have developed so rapidly that there is an international equality. Especially in commerce all peoples are friends. International trade has become very important.

A big opening for a young fellow, or for a young woman, has opened and its opening still more widely in the importing field. An importer is doing a valuable work for his country, and, at the same time is likely to make a large income. There is money in the importing business.

From the uttermost parts of the earth the importer brings goods to add to the happiness and comfort of North America. Silks come from China, tea from Ceylon, chewing gum chicle from the tropical forests, rubber from the jungles, coffee from the Andes—all come to America. In all manner of ways they come, some carried on the backs of coolies, others laden on burros or camels, yet others on catamarans, canoes and rafts. In every part of the world ships are being loaded with goods for every port from Galveston to Halifax.

To be an importer is a wonderful career. To prosper in it, three things are necessary: first, a knowledge of modern languages, Spanish and French, among the most important; second, a knowledge of commercial bookkeeping; and third, a knowledge of geography and trade routes.

Interesting? It is one of the most fascinating of all lines of work. Try it. Make a list of the objects in any one room, and figure out where the raw materials come from. Note how many of the things you eat and wear come from abroad. See how many things would be cut out of modern life if it weren't for the importer. You'll realize, if you do that, how big a part he plays in modern life. And, remember, that for every dollar's worth of goods we buy, we have to pay more than a dollar at least. The exporter is as essential as the importer in the great world of commerce.

TWIN STORIES BY LUCY FITCH PERKINS. The Dutch Twins Put on Aprons. The next morning Kit and Kat woke up very early, without any one's calling them. You see they were afraid they would be too late to go with the milk cart.

But Grandfather Winkle had only just gone out to get the milk ready, and they had plenty of time to dress while grandmother got breakfast. Grandmother helped with the buttons and the hard parts.

Grandmother Winkle's kitchen was quite like the kitchen at home, only a little nicer. It had red tiles on the floor, and it had ever so many blue plates hanging around on the walls and standing on edge in a row on the shelves. There was a warming-pan with a bright brass cover hanging on the wall, and I wish you could have seen the pillows and the coverlet on the best bed!

Grandmother Winkle had embroidered those all herself and she was very proud of them. When she had company she always drew the curtains back so that her beautiful bed would be seen. She said that Kit and Kat were company, and she always left the curtains open when they came to visit her.

What the twins were all dressed grandmother said: "Mercy sakes! You have on your best clothes! Now that's just like a man to promise to take you out in your best clothes in a milk wagon! Whatever was grandfather thinking about!"

By R. H. ALLIE. I'M THE GUY! THE GUY, the street car conductor or railroad brakeman, who gorges the names of streets or stations. Why shouldn't I? That's my way of calling out names. I like it. Any other way is too much bother.

Why do you object to it, anyway? I'm merely advising you we are approaching a certain street or station. You're supposed to know what it is and recognize what I say as the name. Besides that isn't my business. It's only a part of it. And a bore, at that. So I try to get out of it the easiest way possible.

Why you object is beyond me. You know the name of the street or station, so any way I pronounce or fail to pronounce it should make no difference. If you don't like it, that's your worry, not mine. Figure out for yourself what I'm saying. Know the names of our stops or ride on some other line. That's how I feel about it.

JOHN M. MATZEN FOR STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION To the Voters of Nebraska: I am your State Superintendent of Public Instruction, having been appointed last January to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Superintendent W. H. Clemmons, and I am a candidate for the nomination at the primaries next Tuesday.

I was County Superintendent of Dodge County for 14 years and had three years yet to serve on my last term. In accepting the appointment of State Superintendent I made a considerable sacrifice in the matter of salary and otherwise, but did so, knowing the greater opportunities offered in a broader field for a larger service to the boys and girls of Nebraska. I should like very much to be retained in the office in order that I might have sufficient time in which to carry out some of the school policies we have planned, and are now putting into operation. If elected I shall do all within my power to keep the schools of Nebraska up to the highest possible standard of efficiency. This office, as you no doubt know, is on the non-political ballot. Assuring you I shall greatly appreciate any assistance you may render my candidacy, I am Yours for good schools, JOHN M. MATZEN, State Superintendent.

FAINTING AND DIZZY SPELLS The Cause of such Symptoms and Remedy Told in This Letter. Sraucen, N. Y.—"When I commenced the Change of Life I was poorly, had no appetite and had fainting spells. I suffered for two or three years before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills which I saw advertised in the papers and in your little books. I took about 12 bottles of your Vegetable Compound and found it a wonderful remedy. I commenced to pick up at once and my suffering was relieved. I have told others about your medicine and know of some who have taken it. I am glad to help others all I can."—Mrs. R. E. DEXTER, 437 W. Lafayette Ave., Syracuse, N. Y.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Moreover, this reliable remedy contains no narcotics or harmful drugs and owes its efficiency to the medicinal extracts of the native roots and herbs which it contains.

Why Is a Woman—considered exempt from the use of modern labor-saving devices in her kitchen when her husband, brother, or father would no more think of being without such devices in field, factory or office than he'd think of flying. It's a sad fact, but a fact nevertheless, that vast numbers of women are being crippled in health, happiness and domestic efficiency by the lack of just such devices. Lack of time to investigate may have been one reason. Lack of money may have been another. Thoughtlessness might have been yet another. But no longer! All these "excuses" for women's woes are about to be knocked into a cocked hat. Where? Right In Our Store When? Next Monday How? Get the whole story in our big newspaper Announcement Sunday.
