

YOUNG GRANDMA LARGES EARLY WEDDING KNOTS

Should Be Maximum Age at Which Girls Should Marry and 14 None Too Young.

By GILMAN PARKER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, April 24.—Eighteen should be the maximum age at which girls should marry, and 14 is none too young, it is firmly believed by Mrs. Laura D. Lawson of Chicago, who was a grandmother when she was 30 years old. She was married when 13 years old and had a daughter a year later. The daughter married at 15 and presented her mother with a granddaughter when she was 16 years of age.

Now Mrs. Lawson is 47, an athlete, and the possession of a complexion that a sub-deb would envy. "I suppose they'd try to stifle me out of the United States if I advocated the marriage of girls at 14," she said. "So all I will say is that, a year earlier than that, turned out splendidly."

"I believe that girls should marry very young, 18 at the very latest. One big trouble with modern young women is that their mothers are too old for them—they simply cannot get the right point of view on their daughters' daily problems."

"I always was more of a companion to my daughters than a mother—a mother of the modern type, at least. I took a whole-hearted interest in everything they did and from their viewpoint, and took part in their affairs just as a girl friend would."

"It is my great hope to live to be 100 years young, and I believe I will. It is easy for a woman to remain young all her life. All she has to do is: 'Follow the Golden Rule and keep her face clean.' I've done that, and had only two facial massages in my life. And I never worry over trifles, which is an aging habit and a great fault of women today."

Miss Hazel Doherty, Mrs. Lawson's granddaughter, who is now 17, does not wholly share her youthful grandma's opinions. She says she doesn't intend to get married "for a long, long time."

Plans for Overall Parade Cause Large Cut in Clothes' Prices

New York, April 23.—Coincident with the announcement that nearly 20,000 persons attired in overalls and old clothing are expected to parade here Saturday as a protest against the high cost of clothing, 30 or more clothing dealers, including the larger stores, Friday advertised substantial reductions in prices of ready-to-wear clothing.

Comparisons of advertisements in newspapers with those of last week revealed that reductions on men's clothes alone averaged $5 to $20 a suit. The price of the ordinary grade of ready-made suits, which last week averaged about $60, has dropped to near $45 with smaller average reductions in shirts and neckwear.

Reductions on women's clothes were even greater, one of the city's principal stores advertising reductions of $10 to $24.50 on certain styles of misses' spring suits, coats and dresses.

Two to One, He Laughs at Westerners When They Get 'Bumped' by 'City Slickers' in N. Y.

James P. Lyford, broker, of New York, dismounted from his train at the Burlington station Friday afternoon.

He was a blase young New Yorker and wore a cane on his arm as if it belonged there.

But he was entirely unprepared for Omaha's metropolitan ways.

He evinced surprise when he left the Burlington station and found paved streets and surface cars. He was more surprised when a dapper youth wearing a stiff green cap approached him and offered to deliver his bag at any hotel free of charge.

But he surrendered the bag, an excellent bag of genuine alligator skin, to the youth with instructions to take it to Hotel Fontenelle.

He then strolled slowly downtown, found the hotel, registered, told a bell boy to take his bag to room 219 when it arrived and went out for another stroll.

Three hours later he went to his room. His bag had not arrived.

He looked for the bell boy he had instructed, and was informed that "No. 9" had gone off duty an hour before.

He then complained to Assistant Manager Stafford.

Baggage was never lost at the Baltimore or the Ritz, he informed Mr. Stafford, and he would not tolerate such carelessness at the Fontenelle. Had he not given the bag to a hotel boy in front of the station fully three hours before?

"Your's is a case for the police," Mr. Stafford finally informed him.

But Mr. Lyford of New York did not report the case. It meant "undesirable" newspaper publicity if he did, he said.

Mr. Stafford has received other reports from transients of a youth with a hotel cap who offers to carry baggage to hotels for transients. He will place the matter before the police.

Cold, Wet Weather Delays Corn Planting in Gage County

Beatrice, Neb., April 23.—(Special.)—Farmers in Gage county who failed to get in their oats crop some weeks ago on account of the cold, wet weather, are finishing the work this week, and expect to begin plowing for corn the coming week provided the weather remains favorable. Warm, dry weather is badly needed for crops of all kinds.

Sugar Reaches High Mark.

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—Sugar retailed for 30c a pound here. The price, was attributed to the shortage due to the poor Cuban crop and the yardmen's strike.

Says Sugar Profiteers Rival Pirates of Old

United States for distribution to consumers at cost. A government sworn to protect its people permits this robbery and puts no curb on it.

Profiteers Go Unhung.

"This profit-taking campaign of speculators and profiteers in sugar surpasses in bare-faced larceny any brutal demand yet made on this long-suffering and outraged nation. These profiteers and known, but they go unhung. Wall street's melon patches continue to be warmed by the sun of privilege, fertilized by the perspiration of labor, watered by the tears of poverty and this year will raise a record-breaking crop, free from the blight of income taxes, while the people are being urged to buy their coal early, to abstain from steak one day a week and to buy war savings stamps that Uncle Sam may live in a $9,000,000,000 style on a $8,000,000,000 income.

"The extent to which people have been bled by extortion is almost unbelievable. The speculation and profiteering in cotton and cotton goods has been open, flagrant and scandalous; a recent senate investigation received proof that the spread between farm and store prices of cotton materials was about 1,800 per cent, and that the retail price of cotton goods is so high that ordinary persons can scarcely buy beddings, cottons, muslins and gingham. If this is not grand larceny in daytime, I don't know."

Raps 'Melon Cutters.'

Senator Capper said the National Canners company showed increase of 54 per cent over 1915; Burns Bros., largest coal dealers in the country, made a net profit of 40 cents per ton against 23 1/2 in 1916; United Drug profits were 242 per cent greater than in 1916; Steel company's surplus after dividends aggregated nearly $50,000,000 in the five years, although $315,000,000 was spent on improvements.

"The patriotic melon cutters," Senator Capper continued, "urge a tax on sales to pay the soldiers' bonus. It should be placed where it belongs, on war profits and stock dividends. The tax on the luxury of tobacco. Smokers may be interested to know the tobacco producers' corporation shows a rise of 1.547 per cent over 1914 profits. The General Cigar company amassed a net income of almost 38 cents out of each dollar of sales in 1919.

"City rent hogs are not satisfied with a 20 per cent return on capital. They hold up seekers for shelter, for all and more than they can pay.

100 Per Cent Americanism.

"It is time when 100 per cent Americanism should be defined. If it means to evade taxes, cheat the government, swindle the people, let this be clearly understood. But it would be instructive to know just the different in principle, between cheating the government and putting it in hand and attempting to overthrow it in the sure manner of the bolsheviks. Both methods reach the same results; one is merely more crafty than the other. We can regulate profits as we regulated usury and in such regulation provision is made for the maintenance of a sinking fund for the lean years. We have laws against profiteering.

"If those charged with their enforcement will see that profit-hogs go to jail, prices will soon tumble. The United States has become a robber's roost; greed has become morally and criminally lawless. In self-protection we must find the remedy and apply it."

"The Department of Justice," said Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, "has been setting mouse traps when bear traps were needed to catch the profiteers. There has been real, effective action to curb the big profiteers and I don't think any will come from this administration. The president refused last summer to exercise powers that we have prevented the present extortion in sugar. Congress extended these powers as late as December 2, and still there was no action."

Cortland Man Convicted Of Murder to Serve Sentence

Beatrice, Neb., April 24.—(Special.)—Attorneys for O. W. Langley, recently found guilty of murder in the second degree for slaying Justice Chris Heifer at Cortland last August and sentenced to 20 years at hard labor in the Nebraska penitentiary, today dropped the case and Langley must serve his sentence. He will be taken to Lincoln Monday.

At the close of the trial, which was one of the most sensational ever heard in Gage county, the attorneys for the defense charged misconduct of certain jurors and alleged that it was impossible to secure a fair trial for the defendant because of the prejudice against the prisoner in this county.

He is 49 years of age and has a wife and 10 children. Mrs. Langley is working in a shirt factory here.

MEXICAN JURIST MAY BE DEPORTED FROM AMERICA

Held for Violating White Slave Act, He Now Faces Further Prosecution by United States.

Douglas, Ariz., April 24.—United States officials here today were awaiting instructions from Washington whether further proceedings should be instituted against Gen. Ignacio L. Pasqueira, president of the supreme military court of Mexico, and recently appointed military governor of Sonora who was arrested here yesterday upon his arrival on the charge of violating the white slave act.

Gen. Pasqueira is accused of having transported a woman not his wife from El Paso, Tex., to Douglas for immoral purposes. According to government officials here he admitted his companion accompanied him from Mexico City and that this was the second trip she had made with him to the United States. This, the officials said, was a violation of the immigration laws, and Gen. Pasqueira not only is liable to arrest for bringing her into the United States, but also is liable to deportation.

General Pasqueira was released from custody last night by H. O. Beumler, United States commissioner, when friends put up a bond for his appearance in the federal courts to answer the white slave charge. The same bondsmen also obtained the release of the woman, Senora Maria Rodriguez, who was held in $1,000 bond as a witness.

General Pasqueira was sent here to await the arrival of Carranza troops in Sonora when he was in flight from Mexico City as military governor. He formerly was a military governor of Sonora and his family live in the Arizpe district of that state. He is the father of nine grown children and is 65 years old. Senora Rodriguez, told government officials she is 23 years old, that she had been married and has a child in Mexico City.

The JORDAN Silhouette

To dominate the open road in a handy, quick-about, light-weight car—this is the trend of the time.

Long have we waited for a car so thoroughly well balanced that its every movement is forward—so shorn of surplus weight that its up-keep cost is negligible—so inherently fine in line and design as to gratify every desire for beauty and elegance.

Jordan cars were built only after careful study of all American and foreign cars had revealed the prime car needs of today. For its wheelbase, the Jordan is the lightest car on the road.

Men wearied with the excessive cost of driving big and bulky cars, choose with joy the Jordan.
