

INTERCHURCH WORLD CAMPAIGN STARTS IN OMAHA

Eighty Organizations Affiliated in Drive for $750,000—Program Meets With Opposition.

Omaha's part in the National Interchurch World campaign for $336,777,572 began yesterday afternoon when meetings were held in the 80 Omaha churches affiliated with the movement. Soliciting teams were given final instructions and in many instances the canvass began in spite of bad weather.

Omaha's quota of the fund is nearly $750,000. Churches of 30 denominations are uniting in the movement. Dr. H. La Flamme of New York, mobile secretary of the movement, spoke in Calvary Baptist church in the morning and in the First Baptist church in the evening. Dr. Bruce Corbin spoke in Westminster Presbyterian church on the campaign.

Opposition to Movement.
Rev. Hubert C. Herring, who was pastor of the First Congregational church here several years ago, spoke at the First Central Congregational church in the morning and headed a conference in that church on the interchurch movement in the afternoon. He spoke at Plymouth Congregational church in the evening.

The big campaign was not launched without adverse criticism from some pulpits. At the Northside Christian church the pastor, Rev. Mr. Howard, Rev. C. O. Stuckey, pastor of the First Christian church of Council Bluffs, and Rev. L. W. Meyers, who has congregations in Florence, Benson and Miller Park district, spoke against it. Some churches are neutral, their members subscribing to the fund if they wish, but not being urged to do so. Those who are not supporting the movement declare they are opposed to introducing "big business" methods into the church.

Most Churches United.
"God doesn't need high-pressure business methods to make his work succeed," said Rev. W. L. Guss at St. Mark's Lutheran church. "Faith and prayers are the requisites."

However, most of the Protestant churches are united in the campaign, convinced that the church needs readjustment, cutting out of wasteful methods, duplication and competition as far as possible, an infusion of new blood in the way of money and service. And it is toward this end that the present campaign is directed.

Continues All Week.
The drive will continue all this week including next Sunday. By next Sunday the money quota is expected to be raised. Nearly 2,000 Omaha men including church members and others, divided into more than 300 teams of six men are scheduled to do the canvassing.

By Tuesday evening all the church folks will have been canvassed, according to the plan. Then the campaign for financial and moral support from "friendly citizens" outside of the churches is to be started.

Daily noon meetings will be held in the Masonic temple for reports and directions. Tomorrow at 6 o'clock a dinner will be given in the Masonic temple at which 500 of the workers will be present.

My HEART and My HUSBAND

By ADELE GARRISON
What Jake Wisley Declared to Alice Holcombe.

Despite the assurance Lillian had given us that the human snake bearing the name of Jake Wisley had been so thoroughly scotched as to render him harmless it was not in human feminine nature, except perhaps so poised as one as Lillian's to hear unmoved the terrible accusation he had hurled at us.

"I heard a quickly repressed exclamation of fear from Alice Holcombe, which I almost echoed. But the knowledge of Lillian's nearness, a knowledge which Alice Holcombe did not share, gave me the courage to face the man boldly.

"That is the second time you have used that phrase, 'sending to the chair,' in connection with me," I said slowly, coolly. "It means nothing by itself. Suppose you set forth your reasons for your belief or—bluff."

"He stared at me in utter surprise for an instant, then he gave a short, ugly, little laugh.

"Think it's a bluff, do you?" He put his hand into his pocket and took out a paper, unwrapped it, and held up before our astonished eyes a packet of tea identical in wrapping and brand with the ones I had given Milly Stockbridge the last time I had seen her.

A Bargain Offered.
"See that?" he demanded, waving it before us. "That and another one which has been cut up by the poison experts are enough to swing both of you."

"I don't know where I got the courage to laugh in his face, but laugh I did. He turned to me with furious eyes as he heard the sound.

"Let me tell you something, my lady," he said. "The case is like this. This dame was poisoned. She had been drinking tea at her table just before she died, so that lets out the idea of suicide. Women don't sit down at an afternoon tea table to take poison; they put on their prettiest nightdress and go to bed first. And here is something nobody knows yet, outside the prosecution—there was enough poison in the packet of tea in her tea pot to kill a horse. So it must have been put there by somebody.

"The prosecution says Stockbridge, because it's a cinch he was there either just as she did it or just afterward—he had about that—and cleared off the tea table and washed the tea things before he called the doctor. But he had no place to put the tea packages, so he stuck them up inside the fireplace. And there I found 'em and turned 'em over to the prosecution, all except this one.

"But what the prosecution don't know is the sweet little fact that you gave these packages of tea to her and explained to her how to prepare them. If that doesn't mean an accessory before the fact I don't know what does. But if you'll blow what you really know about Stockbridge I'll keep mum about your giving out the packets of tea."

"Which means that the evidence you have against me does not amount to that—I gave my thumb and second finger an expressive snap—but that you're trying to use it to frighten me."

"Just About Enough."
I was making a tremendous effort to appear nonchalant, but I was quaking inwardly. Suppose he had discovered something that Lillian did not know—was a more dangerous man than she guessed.

I watched him furtively as I finished speaking, saw his brows draw together in a thick black line and observed that his big ham-like hands clenched into fists.

"Oh! It doesn't amount to anything, doesn't it?" he snarled. "Even if it shouldn't mean the chair, which it does, how long do you think it will take your husband to divorce you when he finds out that the reason you and this pious Miss Holcombe here fixed up the poisoned tea was because she wanted Stockbridge herself and you were afraid your husband would find out that the principal's wife had threatened to name you as co-respondent in a divorce case."

"Oh!" Alice moaned faintly in an agony of humiliation at having the secret she had cherished blazoned so coarsely.

"I think we've had just about enough of this," Lillian's voice, cool and drawing, sounded just behind us.

Tartar on Teeth

Shows That You Don't Clean Them—Note These Facts

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

This is to men and women who find that brushed teeth discolor and decay. Who find that tartar forms, or pyorrhea starts. You are not keeping teeth clean. You let a film remain and the damage is traced to it.

Dental science has found a way to end film. It is now embodied in a dainty tooth paste which millions are employing. We urge you to try it ten days at our cost and see the results for yourself.

That Film on Teeth Can Now Be Ended in This Way

You can feel on your teeth a slimy film, ever-present, ever-forming. That film is the great tooth wrecker. Dental science now traces nearly all tooth troubles to it.

The film clings to the teeth, gets between the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary dentifrice does not dissolve it. So millions find that teeth discolor and decay despite the daily brushing.

Why Teeth Discolor

That film is what discolors—not the tooth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Dental science, after years of searching, has found a way to combat film. Many able authorities have proved its efficiency. For five years it has been subjected to every sort of clinical and laboratory test.

Now, for home use, it is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Leading dentists all over America are now urging its adoption. This week we offer a 10-Day Tube to anyone who asks. And we urge that someone in every home prove its unique effects.

Based on Pepsin

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digester of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. Dental science has now discovered a harmless activating method. And now everyone can fight the film with active pepsin constantly.

See What It Does

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Use like any tooth paste. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Watch the results and read the reason for them. Compare this new method with the old. Then adopt for yourself and have your children adopt the method which seems best. This is of lifetime importance to you. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

Look Now
That film, to some extent, clouds nearly every set of teeth. And most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Look in Ten Days
See how the teeth whiten—how they glisten—as the fixed film disappears. Then you will know there is a way to cleaner, safer teeth.
