Dutch Twins Get Dinner.
"Now it is time to cook the dinner," said Vrouw Vedder. "We will have pork and potatoes and some cabbage. Kit, run to the garden and bring a cabbage; and Kat, you may get the fire ready to cook it, when Kit brings it in."
Kat went to the stove—but it was such a funny stove! It wasn't a stove at all, really.
There was a sort of table built up against the chimney. It was all covered with pretty blue tiles, with pictures of boats on them. Over this table, there was a shelf, like a mantel shelf. There were plates on it, and front the bottom of the shelf hung some chains with hooks on them. The coals were right out on the little table.

Kate took the bellows and—puff, puff, puff!—made the coals burn brighter. She peeped in the kettle to see that there was water in it. Then she put some more charcoal on the fire.
Kit brought in the cabbage, and Vrouw Vedder cut it up and put it into the pot of water hanging over the fire. She put the pork and potatoes in it, too.
In a little while the pot was bubbling away merrily; and Father Vedder, who was in the garden, sniffed the air and said:
"I know what we are going to have for dinner."
While the pot boiled, Vrouw Vedder scrubbed the floor and wiped the window. Then she took her brooms and scrubbing-brush outside. She scrubbed the door and outside of the house. She scrubbed the little pig with soap. The little pig squealed, because she got some soap in its eyes. She scrubbed the steps—and even the trunk of the poplar tree in the yard! She scrubbed everything in sight, except Father Vedder and the Twins! By and by, she came to the door and called:
"Come to dinner! Only be sure to leave your wooden shoes outside, when you come into my clean kitchen."
Here are the shoes, just as they coming up the street with a basket on her arm.

"What do you think is in that basket?" Vrouw Vedder asked the Twins.
"Honey cake!" said Kit; and Kat said, "Candy!"

This breath-taking picture is the work of a great dramatist-interpreter of today's happenings—those events which are so big and world-shaping that mere newspaper accounts give us no grasp of them. "The Cup of Fury" is truly a great picture, a picture whose story will linger in your mind for months after you have seen it. Don't miss it!

WHERE was the girl he married? Where the lure, the glamour, the ecstatic sweetheart hours?
Faded into dull, drab matrimony. Was he wholly to blame when another woman, aglow with the joy of living, slipped into the place in his life which his wife had left vacant? WAS HE?
A vital, intimate picture of the greatest problem of love and marriage. Dressed in all the luxury, color and feminine beauty that distinguished DeMille's "Male and Female" and "Don't Change Your Husband."
