GOVERNMENT IS VICTOR IN ANTI- COAL TRUST SUIT

Reading Railroad and Affiliated Coal Companies Are Declared to Violate Sherman Act.

Washington, April 26.—The federal government today won its anti-trust suit against the Reading company and affiliated coal companies in one of the so-called anthracite coal cases.

By a vote of 4 to 3, the supreme court sustained the government's charges that the companies violated the "commodities clause" of the interstate commerce act and ordered the dissolution of the companies.

The Reading and Central of New Jersey railroads, the court decided, must dispose of stock ownership, respectively, of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co and the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Co.

Violate Commodities Clause. The court sustained the government's charges that the railroad violated the "commodities clause" of the Interstate Commerce act. The Reading and Central of New Jersey railroads, the court decided, must dispose of stock ownership, respectively, of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company and the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal company.

Re-distribution of the stock and bonds of the Reading Railroad company, and also of its respective coal companies, was ordered by the court, which sustained the government's contention that common stock ownership, officers and directors constitutes a restraint of trade under the Sherman law.

Chief Justice White and Justices Holmes and Vandevanter dissented. Clarke Wrote Opinion.

Justice Clarke, in the majority decision, held that the Reading Holding company in its control of the railroad, as well as the coal corporation, was formed to evade the Sherman law. Chief Justice White gave a brief dissenting opinion, announcing disagreement with the majority on part of its conclusions.

The court reversed lower federal court decrees which had dismissed the federal prosecutions.

Chief Justice White, in a minority opinion, said the minority was in favor of accepting the lower court's opinion.

Pooling War Debts Stirs U. S. Senate

tribution of the debts of the five or six nations that fought the war. "It is not preposterous at all," replied Senator Lodge. "The opinions of these Frenchmen and Englishmen are not preposterous; nor is Mr. Keynes."

"Does the senator think these nations which had nothing to do with fighting the war would voluntarily assume a share of the debt?" asked Senator Hitchcock.

"I am not saying they would assume it," said Senator Lodge. Will Oppose Mandate.

"The people who assume the debt would be those who owe it, and the object is to make it joint, but the neutral will have no objection to having us pay the debt."

Senators Knox, New and Moses asserted that a mandate for Armenia would not be acceptable to the American people.

"I do not believe that American public opinion will support our taking the mandate for Armenia," said Senator Hitchcock. "The subcommittee of the foreign relations committee has reported on the resolution intended to provide relief for Armenia and the report only went to the extent of recommending the sending of a warship and the landing of marines to protect the port of Batum, and also the furnishing of arms to equip the Armenian army. These recommendations themselves present many difficulties and would lead us into a situation the end of which we cannot foresee."

Boundaries Not Settled. "The boundaries of Armenia have not yet been defined, and when they are it is probable that large Turkish areas will be included. If that happens, conflict between the Armenians and Turks would be inevitable and we would be involved. It might not be much of a war, but it would require some military effort on our part."

"Besides, acceptance of the Armenian mandate would require the wide separation of our army. If we accept the mandate, we should most certainly have Constantinople and control of the Dardanelles, but I see no mention of this in the offer of the allies."
