

The Home of the Chickering Piano

A GOOD PIANO WILL LAST A LIFETIME

A poor piano will usually keep in condition until you have paid for it, seldom much longer and not always that long.

Think of the names you see on real good pianos that you find in old homes—Chickering, Ivers & Pond, Estey, etc.—names that have stood for musical excellence for years; many of these noble instruments have been in use for fifty years or more and are still sweet in tone.

The Burgess-Nash store offers you a greater variety of standard makes to select from than any other in the west. Among these are the following:

CHICKERING

- Ivers & Pond, Estey, Haines Bros., Foster & Co., Story & Clark, Smith & Barnes, Marshall & Wendell, Kohler & Campbell, Autopiano Player Piano, Pianista Player Piano

Every one of these makes has been favorably known to musicians for years. There is a wide range in prices and any instrument may be purchased on convenient terms if desired.

Firm in her belief that the era has passed when men were looked upon as superior to woman in regard to hard work, Mrs. Pearl C. Stone of Holliston, Mass., has applied for a stationary firemen's license, the first woman in Massachusetts to ask for such a permit.

and it wasn't his crime

Justice sometimes goes wrong. Men are often punished for crimes they do not commit. And when we thoughtlessly take purgatives and cathartics to relieve stagnant bowels, we are committing a similar injustice.

When the system is unable to remove food waste at regular intervals, it is the food waste, and not the system, that needs correction.

Every other form of treatment either irritates or forces the system. Nujol works on the waste matter instead of on the system. By this entirely new principle Nujol will keep the poisonous waste moving out of the body.

Nujol prevents constipation by keeping the food waste soft, thus helping Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take—try it. Nujol is sold by all druggists in bottles only, bearing the Nujol trade mark. Write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for booklet "Thirty Feet of Danger."

Carter Lake Kensington Club. At a recent meeting of the Carter Lake Kensington club Mrs. L. P. Heeny was elected president for the coming year. Mrs. Elsie Petard, vice president, and Mrs. G. P. Lindley, secretary-treasurer. The first luncheon of the club will be held Wednesday, June 3, at the club house.

Saving Soap. Castile soap cut into squares for use in dishwashing is a good investment. The soap has less waste than any kitchen soap and is pleasant to use. The laundry soap may be saved by drying thoroughly and then shaving with a cabbage cutter. The soap chips are more economical than using the whole cake. The soap shaver takes care of the odds and ends of all kinds of soap. It may be put in the shaker in chunks or made into cakes which are used just the same shape and size as the receptacle. Put the pieces in a little boiling water with a small lump of soda. When melted stir until smooth, then run off in an old pottery dish or mold. When hard it may be cut up into cakes.

The first woman's hospital on the Pacific coast was established in San Francisco in 1875.

My HEART and My HUSBAND

By ADELE GARRISON

What Harry Underwood Declared to Madge.

The speech Harry Underwood made to Lillian was one which could not help but anger a woman furiously, leave her with no lingering feeling of duty or remorse toward the man who made it. As Lillian jumped to her feet and crossed quickly to Robert Savarin's side I wondered curiously if it had not been carefully planned for just that effect.

"You beast!" Lillian said as she passed him, and Harry Underwood smiled mockingly at the epithet. "Come away at once," Robert Savarin spoke tremulously yet authoritatively as she reached his side, and without a backward glance they turned toward the footbridge.

Alice Holcomb had slipped away in the opposite direction a few minutes before, but as I started to follow her, Harry Underwood put out his arm and blocked my way.

"Why the haste, Lady Fair?" he asked mockingly. "I'm not the plague, although you think I'm next door to it. And I want you to know before I vamoose out of here for another spell of wandering that most of that spoil to old Lil was pure bunk. There ain't no pulchritudinous female waiting for yours truly, and I hold Lil higher than any other woman in the world—except one. But that ingrowing conscience of hers would never let her make that old pappy guy of an artist happy as long as she thought I needed her. So it was up to me to convince her that I didn't. Savvy?"

"I Could Have—" There was that in his voice and manner which showed his contempt for the frail physical endowment of Robert Savarin. Harry Underwood, splendid, virile animal, with the stupendous conceit common to his type, could not understand the attraction of Robert Savarin's wonderful genius and royal heart had for a woman. There was a certain touch of selfishness in the thing he had done, however, that made me feel more kindly toward him.

After all, he had fulfilled his promise "to clear out of Lillian's way." "Just one thing more, little girl. His voice was devoid of all mockery now, and held a note which I had heard in it only once or twice before. "My job around here now is finished, that Wilsey won't bother you again, and I'm going to fly the coop for firin' papers. But don't mistake your Uncle Dudley. I have ways of keeping track of you, and if the Dicky-bird isn't square with you I'll wring his neck and steal the cage myself. Or if ever you need me in any other way I'll be on the job. Oh, girl, girl! Why didn't the devil let me find you years ago? I could have made you care. I know it."

Taken By Surprise. Before I knew what he was doing he had caught me to him, kissed me ferently once, then before I could wrench my hand free to strike at him he released me, pinioned my hands, held me at arms' length and looked down at me with the old mocking light and something else in his eyes.

"The Dicky-bird ought not to grudge that to me," he said. "I'll warrant he snatches one or two himself. Goodby, Lady Fair. Be good to yourself."

I walked back to the house slowly, trying to compose myself so that no one should guess the bizarre nature of Harry Underwood's farewell. As I neared the house I met Robert Savarin, pale and agitated, coming down the path, evidently in search of me.

"Dear Mrs. Graham," he said abruptly, "will you pardon me if I go up to town for a few days? I—I think Lillian should be left to herself for a little. This has been a terrible shock to her."

"I think you are wise," I agreed. "Only there is one thing you must do first, and that is to assure her of your unchanged and undying affection. Otherwise she might imagine that the brutal declaration of her husband that he did not want her might have changed your value of her."

"Horrible!" He stared at me in terror. "You don't think she could imagine that?"

"I don't think so," I returned. "but women are curious creatures. Lillian has been through a terrible strain, and I think she would be helped and comforted if she was reassured of your love just now."

"I will go to her at once," he said, starting off hurriedly, and I knew by his very haste that he had been asinine enough to announce his departure to Lillian without any explanation, imagining that he was being especially adroit in a delicate situation by so doing.

What passed between them I, of course, don't know, but when I next saw Lillian she declined dinner, and shut herself up in her room until the next afternoon; her face was calmer, happier than I had seen it for a long while. She made no reference to either Harry Underwood or Robert Savarin, but handed me a telegram when we found ourselves alone together.

"Will arrive at 5 o'clock this afternoon." ALLEN DRAKE.

How much should I give to make this a better world?

A BUSINESS man filled out his income tax report. It showed an income so large that his tax was 53%. And his total gifts to church and charity for the year were $148. Think of it—thousands spent for luxuries and pleasure for himself, and $148 to leave the world a little better than he found it! Most of us do better than that; but not so very much better. Our average daily gift for all church causes is—less than we spend for daily papers—less than a local telephone call—less than a third of the day's car fare—less than 3 cents a day. No wonder that 80% of the ministers of America are paid less than $20 a week. No wonder that the church hospitals turn away thousands of sick people a year. No wonder that China has only one doctor for every 400,000 people. No wonder that every church board and charity society is forever meeting deficits, forever passing the hat. It isn't because we are selfish; it isn't because we don't want to help. It's just because no one has ever put up a great big program to us, and asked us to think of the work of the church in a systematic businesslike way.

The Interchurch World Movement represents the united program of thirty great denominations. They have surveyed their whole task; no business could have done it better. They have budgeted their needs; no business could have a more scientific budget. They have united to prevent the possibility of waste and duplication. At least a million dollars will be saved by the fact that thirty individual campaigns are joined in one united effort. And they come to the men and women who love America—to you—this week, asking you to use them as the channel through which a certain definite part of your income can be applied to make this a better world. Only you can determine what part of your income that should be. The chart printed here is intended merely as a suggestion; it represents a scale of giving of 6%—or less. Six per cent of your earning power; 15/16ths of your life for your own family needs, and 1/16th for your fellow men—is that more than you ought to give? It's a good time right now to answer that question. We're passing through the world just once; how much better is the world going to be because you passed through?
