Throw-Golf—The Game.
FRANCIS ROLT-WHEELER.

Beginning from the starting mark, the base ball is to be thrown as far as possible, but, in many cases, if there be a piece of woods in the way, a half throw will be better, so that the second throw will be over the thicket. The opposing player then makes his first throw and each fellow goes to where his ball has fallen. The second throw ought to bring the ball somewhere near the flag. The third, which would probably be an underhand toss, ought to put the ball within a few feet of the hole, and one or two more tries ought to put the ball in.

Should the two balls be close together, the player whose turn it is, may, if he prefers, instead of trying to get his ball into the hole, try to hit the opponent's ball. Should he succeed in doing this, he may throw the enemy's ball, over his shoulder, backwards, away from the hole. This adds a lot of fun to the game, because just when a hole seems "lost," one can "stymie" the other fellow and get ahead again.

The game can be played with two, three or four boys as a team. The fellow with the longest throw could "drive" the second player can do the "iron shots," a third, who is a good judge of distance can "approach," and the fourth, picked out for good eye and steady hand, can "putt" or drop the ball into the hole. One of the members of the team can go ahead and act as coach, wig-wagging instructions as to where the ball should be dropped, both hands put above the head and swung outward meaning, "throw hard!" One hand above the head, "half throw!" Both hands held still above the head, "go easy." A circle to the right, "keep to the right" and similarly for the left.

The game is won, as in golf, by the fellow or the team winning the largest number of holes in the fewest throws. It is a good plan to mark each ball with a team sign, so that there may be no controversy over which ball belongs to which team. The game is as much fun as real golf and first rate base ball exercise besides.

The All Round Girl

Red Cheeks and Pop

Spring Relays.
MOLLIE PRICE COOK.

Group work in athletics is always better than individual work, not only because of the healthy spirit of competition, but also because it is more fun, and, where there is fun, there is mental energy as well as physical. That's the value of relay races. These are simple to organize. Have a starting line, and a finishing line or goal 30 yards away. Tie on the line to start. One girl acts as starter, giving signals and keeping score.

For a single relay race, divide into two lines of an equal number and stand in file behind the starting line. At a signal, the first of each file runs to the goal, touches it and returns. On crossing the line and touching, she touches the outstretched hand of the next player, who has moved to the starting line. The team wins which has its last runner the first to return to the starting line.

This may be varied in many ways. In a jumping relay race, each contestant is allowed twelve jumps with both feet together. As the feet touch ground at the end of the twelfth jump, the second member of the relay begins to jump and so on. The same can be done with hops, and the number of jumps or hops arranged to suit the space of the playground.

A good variation is that of the Ball Relay. In this, the leader of the line, at a signal, passes a ball overhead and back to the player behind her. When the last girl gets the ball, she runs to the head of the line, when every girl steps back one pace. The team wins which first has the original leader back in place. This exercises the arms and demands agility in handling as the dropping of the ball is penalized by the necessity of passing it forward to the end of the line to begin its backward course again.

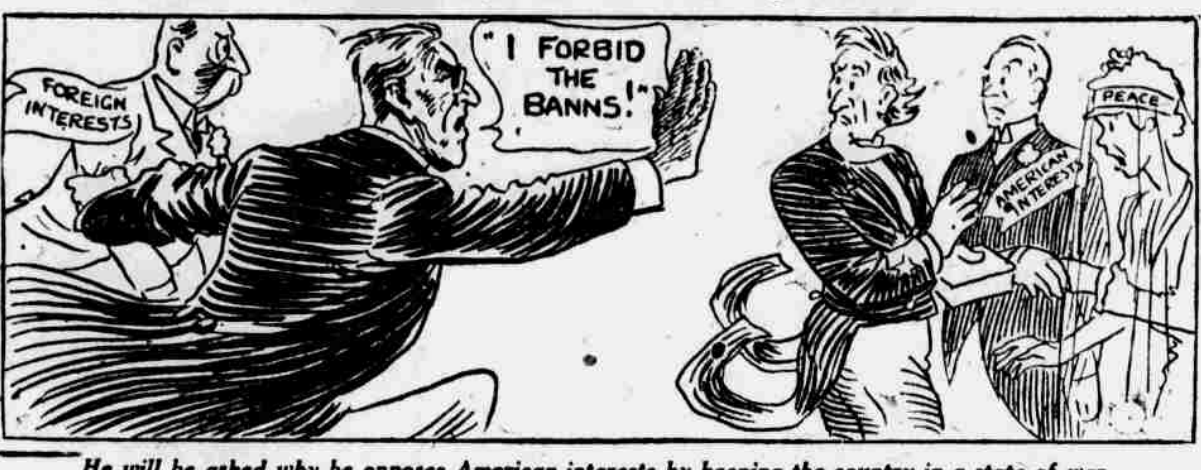

On rainy days, relays can be done indoors. The Ball Relay being very good for this. A bean bag can be used in place of ball. Schoolroom seat relays and blackboard relays give a lot of fun. Rules can be made to suit each game.

(Tomorrow—Money in the Woods.)

If President Wilson Decides to Run Again

He will be asked why he laid down the winning hand in Paris.

He will be asked why he opposes American interests by keeping the country in a state of war.

He will be asked why he persists in a policy which promotes a chronic state of war in Mexico.

Men Held as Passengers of Speeding Car Are Released

Admitting that they were enroute to the railroad yards to "bun" their way to Pueblo, Colo., where they expected to go to work in the steel mills, and laughingly telling the judge that they did not have enough money to own an automobile and had not stolen one, four men who were arrested and accused of being the four who leaped from a speeding automobile which crashed into two other cars at Twenty-fourth and Martha streets Sunday night, were released by the judge in South Side police court yesterday.

In the crash Sunday night Mrs. W. W. Jorgenson, 1812 Oak street, was seriously injured. The four men told how they heard the crash of the cars and rushed back to see the accident. They explained how they helped to take Mrs. Jorgenson to a drug store for treatment and then went on their way.

Occupants of the other car failed to identify them as the four men wanted and they were discharged. They gave their names as Edward Schwartz of Batavia, N. Y.; C. B. Jones of Philadelphia; Paul Palmer of Akron, O., and J. C. Kelleher, Coakville, Pa.

They were charged with reckless driving.

I'M THE GUY!

By R. H. ALLIE.

I'M THE GUY who bawls out the telephone operator every chance he gets.

Why shouldn't I?

I'm renting the phone, and paying for it. And she's just the operator. Just why you object is beyond me. I can't help it, if things are tied up, or she's busy with other calls, or that she's just a girl.

Because you object is no reason why I shouldn't express my thoughts. I'm renting and paying for the phone to get service. And I want it. It's not my fault that I'm not getting it; it's her's. I want good service and I expect to get it.

Besides, how do I know if she isn't laying down on the job or gossiping and not trying to serve me? Operators do that often enough.

Anyway a bawling out will do her good. It will show her I want service and expect to get it or intend to raise a rumpus when I don't get it.

So long as I pay for the phone and get poor service I'll bawl her out for it.

Let her serve me as I want or quit. That's how I feel about it.

"Perfume Jag" Gets Its First Victims in Omaha

Smelling like a charity ball, three men were taken to South Side police station yesterday, charged with being the first to be arrested for intoxication by perfume.

Joe Devine of Council Bluffs, George W. Anderson of Johnston, Pa., and Thomas Foster of Denver, were taken into custody in a room at the Grand Union hotel, Twenty-sixth and L streets.

In their room was found a pile of empty perfume bottles, labeled all the way from Colgate's "Caprice" and "Jockey Club" to Ed Pinard's "Extract de Vegetal."

As soon as the three of them were cast into their cell at the jail on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct, they began to pummel each other in fun, and finally precipitated a general fight.

They were separated and placed in individual cells, incommunicado.

TWIN STORIES

BY LUCY FITCH PERKINS

Dutch Twins Skate to Town.

Vrouw Vedder was watching at the window. Soon she saw Kit and Kat go flying by, hand in hand, on the canal! They waved their hands to her. Vrouw Vedder was so pleased that she went to call Father Vedder, who was in the hay-loft over the stable.

"Come and see Kit and Kat," she cried.

Father Vedder came down from the loft and looked on, too. Then Kit cut a figure like this, 8, and Kat cut one like this, 0. The round spot is where she sat down hard, just as she was almost around.

When they came into the kitchen Father said:

"I think we could take such a fine pair of skaters as that to the Vink with us on our way to town! The ice is very hard and thick for so early in the season and we will go tomorrow."

"We can see the shops, too. St. Nicholas is coming and the shops are full of fine things," said Vrouw Vedder.

Kit and Kat could hardly wait for tomorrow to come. They polished their skates and made everything ready.

"What do you suppose the Vink is?" said Kit to Kat.

"I think it's something like a church," said Kit.

WHY?

Does One Laugh When Ticked? (Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

In the brain are a number of fibers or nerves which control the muscles of our throat and mouth which are used in laughing or smiling. It is these nerves which instantly transmit the order to "laugh" when, through the ear or the eye, the brain received the impression of anything funny.

When anything tickles the soles of one's feet or other sensitive parts of the body, certain nerves in these regions act upon the brain precisely as would the appearance or sound of something amusing. The nerves in the soles of the feet or under the arms carry the message to the brain and the latter transmits it to the throat, precisely as one presses on the button of an electric bell producing a spark which in turn, causes the bell to ring. Continued pressure upon the button will, in time, wear out the battery and continued tickling will likewise destroy the sensitiveness of the nerves and render a person immune to this sensation.

Bill Provides License For All Cable Lines to U. S.

Washington, April 28.—A bill giving the secretary of state right to license all cable lines landing on American shores was introduced by Senator Kellogg, republican, Minnesota, who said American cable communications with South America were being hampered by a Brazilian grant of exclusive rights to an English company to operate cables in its territory.

"Brazil is now levying a heavy tax on every word sent over the American route," he said.

The bill was referred to the interstate commerce committee.
