

OMAHA WOMAN FIRST TO VISIT MT. MCKINLEY PARK

Mrs. Ruth Wilson Returns Home After Year in Wilds of Alaska — Still Under Spell of the Yukon.

Mrs. Ruth Y. Wilson, pretty young Omaha widow, the first white woman to visit Mount McKinley national park in Alaska, has returned from the wilds of Alaska and is again enjoying the comforts of Nebraska.

She has exchanged her rough corduroy hunting suit, worn and torn from hundreds of miles of mushing in the barren interior of Alaska, for the dainty georgette gowns of civilization, and her rifle, which brought down bear, moose and caribou, for the more feminine parasol.

Yet the spell of the Yukon still holds the young Omaha woman, and as she related glowing experiences of the great, shimmering land of the midnight sun she frequently voiced a determination to return.

Widow of Omaha Man.

Mrs. Wilson is the widow of the late Frank H. Wilson, of Omaha, former vice chief of the Nebraska Telephone company, who was killed at Fremont in 1918.

She was selected for Red Cross service overseas, but the signing of the armistice put an end to her plans. She suffered a nervous breakdown and in an effort to regain her health she set out on a 5,000-mile journey to visit her brother, William Campbell, mining man at Fairbanks for the last 22 years.

From the time she arrived at Fairbanks until she returned to Nebraska her experiences have kept her in the highest pitch of enthusiasm over the wonders of Alaska.

Penetrates Interior.

From Cordova she made the trip to Fairbanks and Chitina over the Copper railroad, took the long trail, 300 miles by stage over the Alaska and coast ranges. Starting in April in 1919, she was on the move, by train, automobile, dog sled, steamer, and afoot for nearly a year, spending most of her time on the Kantishna river, tributary to the Tanana river, by which she penetrated the deserted wilds of the interior.

She took the first steamer to make a trip up the Kantishna to the deserted camp, Roosevelt City, since the gold strike was made there in 1916. The steamer carried two parties loaded with supplies for Joe Dalton and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Quigley, the only persons left at Roosevelt City.

First "Mush" in North.

From Roosevelt City Mrs. Wilson started on her first mush of 30 miles to the Quigley home, where Mrs. Quigley, better known in Alaska as Fannie McKenzie Quigley, took her in charge.

A hunting trip into the Bear Creek country, which netted nine moose, five black bear and four glacier bears, was Mrs. Wilson's first experience in the big game line.

The crowning event of her whole trip was her visit to Mount McKinley national park, never before visited by a white woman.

Mrs. Wilson gives a glowing description of the park with its varied colors, giant mountains and great vistas. She secured many pictures of the park, but deprecates the lack of color in photography in depicting the park's wonders.

Rides First Train.

From Tenana to Fairbanks Mrs. Wilson rode on the first train to operate on the Tenana-Fairbanks railroad extension. The return to the outside from Fairbanks to Cordova required 14 days.

The gold fever struck the intrepid little woman while she was in the deserted Roosevelt camp and she staked out several claims on which her brother is now doing assessment work.

Although she loves to recount her trips of exploration in the interior, it is the people of Alaska and their lives which Mrs. Wilson takes the most joy in discussing.

Her cheeks glowed and her eyes sparkled as she reclined in an easy chair in the softly lighted Pathfinder hotel lobby at Fremont Tuesday and told of the sterling qualities of the men and women of Alaska.

Women Are Resourceful.

"If I could only be like the Alaska women," she explained. "They are so calm, so resourceful and so kind. I have been at dinner parties and dances in Alaska that were as pretty as any in the United States. Many of the little details were lacking, but one didn't notice that."

"And the men—" she hesitated and glanced at a photograph of herself and R. J. Somers, youthful ex-officio governor and surveyor general of Alaska. The governor had his arm about her shoulder, protectively. "Alaska is a very cold country," she smiled, "and convention is not so terrible as it is here. But the men—well—they make excellent big brothers."

Mrs. Wilson believes that Alaska is indeed a land of eternal youth. Residents show no signs of age, she declared.

Vegetables on Mountain.

"It is the most wonderful country in the world," she announced in another burst of enthusiasm. "The climate is simply grand and the scenery just gorgeous. In that trip back from the park we mushed for days in a real fairland of snow-laden trees and shrubs. Mr. and Mrs. Quigley, who were so kind to me, live nearly 4,000 feet up on the mountain side, and Mrs. Quigley raises enough vegetables for their own use right there."

"I was a nervous wreck when I started, but I have entirely recovered after nearly a year of sleeping on the ground, and I have gained nearly 22 pounds."

Mrs. Wilson considers herself a genuine "sourdough," as old-timers in Alaska are termed. "I became an excellent shot," she announced enthusiastically, "and I am going to have a number of fine skins mounted for my home. There were droves of game of all kinds at Mount McKinley park."

Picnics at Midnight.

"I'll never forget those daylight parties we used to have at 12 and 1 o'clock at night. We found the most wonderful places for picnic lunches on mountain sides and glaciers."

"There was Wonder lake. It was filled with 'Dolly Varden' trout—that is, it was filled until we visited it. We even tried bathing in Wonder lake, and it wasn't half bad."

Mrs. Wilson says she was the first woman to ride in the automobile races at Fairbanks. She was a mechanic, she says, but her driver did most of the work.

Mrs. Wilson landed at Seattle, Wash., a month ago. She visited relatives at Long Beach before coming to Fremont to visit with her mother, Mrs. Mary Campbell.

She will come to Omaha tomorrow to visit her brother-in-law, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Smith, 1323 South Thirty-fifth street. She was born and reared in Council Bluffs, attending the Council Bluffs High school.

Young Omaha Widow Happy to Return to Evening Gown After Months in Alaskan "Sourdough" Attire

The accompanying photographs show Mrs. Ruth Y. Wilson, pretty young Omaha widow, as she appears in an evening dress, and as she appeared during her explorations in the interior of Alaska.

The scenes, left to right: Mrs. Wilson holding a huge swan which she shot with a rifle on the trail to Fairbanks.

Mrs. Wilson in her regulation "sourdough" costume, taken three months after she entered the interior of Alaska. She hadn't seen or worn a dress during these three months.

A real husky dog, Mrs. Wilson and a "sourdough."

The complete transformation of Mrs. Wilson's attire when she reached "the states" a month ago is shown in her latest photograph on the extreme right.

Mrs. Wilson is seen in the lower picture assisting Joe Dalton, famous Alaska trader and explorer, with the navigation of a heavily loaded sledge in the heart of Mount McKinley national park, which, until Mrs. Wilson's arrival, had not been reached by any white woman.

At present about 80 per cent of the wall paper manufactured in America is made under union conditions.

From 20 to 30 per cent of the women employed in British banking institutions during the war have been retained in their positions.

Deaths and Funerals

Mrs. H. L. Winter, teacher and healer, 54 years old, 2122 Ames Avenue, died yesterday at St. Catherine's hospital. She is survived by her husband and five sons, Fred P. Keop, W. L. Keop, H. L. Winter, George Winter and Edward Winter. Funeral services for John A. Gillespie, 74 years old, inventor of the "Auricular" method of communication used by deaf and dumb persons, will be held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Central Congregational church, Nineteenth and Davenport streets. Mr. Gillespie died three days ago in Akron, O. Local members of the International Bible Students' association will conduct the funeral services for Mr. Gillespie. Burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Funeral services for Alfred J. Johnson, 46 years old, who died three days ago at his home, 3607 North Thirtieth street, will be held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Philip Neri church in Florence.

The body of Mrs. Emma Bond, former Omaha woman, who died in Chicago three days ago, arrived in Omaha today. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at Hulse & Rippe's parlors. Mrs. Bond was the wife of Harry Bond, former superintendent of the Carter White Lead Works in Omaha.

Evangelist to Speak
Rev. James Rayburn, evangelist, spoke last evening in the North Presbyterian church under the auspices of the alumni of the Y. M. C. A. of the Presbyterian Theological seminary.

Union Outfitting Co. Will Show How the "Florence" Oil Stove Means a Cool Kitchen

A Dainty and Refreshing Luncheon Served Free During Demonstration.

Four-Burner "Florence" Oil Cook Stove Given Away Friday, April 30th.

For a steady, even, intense heat that is often more dependable and uniform than gas, a "Florence" Oil Cook Stove has no equal, as many women are learning this week at the interesting "Florence" Demonstration being held at the Union Outfitting Co.

Warm weather will soon be here and the Florence Automatic Coal Oil Cook Stove solves the problem of a cool kitchen. Throughout the demonstration a dainty, hot luncheon of delicious doughnuts (made of Goch's Best Flour), fragrant Advo Coffee with Alamo Cream is being served free.

The Union Outfitting Company is known as the "Home of Home Outfits," because of the special inducements always made to young couples just starting housekeeping. No transaction is ever considered completed until the customer is satisfied.

Jealous Lover Slaps Girl When Rejected as Escort
Boyd Senter, 2522 Jones street, met his sweetheart, Gertrude Burgess, 22 years old, 610 South Twenty-fifth street, yesterday, as she emerged from her class at the Terry Dressmaking college, 1920 1/2 Farnam street.

He asked her to go home with him for dinner. She declined saying she had some shopping to do. He accused her of "trifling" on him and started to pull her with him.

Gertrude seized one of the iron poles which support the trolley wire, and Boyd began to slap her face. John W. Robbins of the Robbins Motor Co., 2054 Farnam street, rushed out, interceded, and held Senter for the police. He was taken to Central police station and booked on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Gertrude refuses to prosecute him, saying it was a misunderstanding.

Says Wife Entertains Him With German Selections
When Ben Ferrel came back from the army his wife, Gladys, and her mother entertained him by singing German songs in the home. He alleges in a petition for divorce filed in district court yesterday.

On a dresser they kept a picture of "the kaiser's wife" and frequently made complimentary remarks about her in his presence, he says. His wife had lost her love for him when he returned from the army and refused to live with him, he says. They were married May 31, 1917.

"Last December I caught a heavy cold, which left me with a deep-seated cough. I coughed so hard it would start the blood. I thought I was a goner, until I tried Milks Emulsion. I used 9 bottles altogether. My cough is gone, and I have gained nine pounds in five weeks. If anyone doubts it, let them write me."—Charles L. Walters, 147 So. 18th St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

When hundreds upon hundreds of people tell you of just such recovery, just such gains in weight, it must be worth your trying, at least. It is a trial worth making.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physic. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day. It produces remarkable results in colds, coughs and bronchial asthma.

This is the only cod liver emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.
