Goes to Switzerland

Miss Gladys Wilkinson is one of the two women who will go from Nebraska to the International Woman Suffrage Alliance which meets in Geneva, Switzerland, next month. Mrs. W. E. Barkley of Lincoln will attend as one of the eight official delegates from the United States; Miss Wilkinson goes as a visitor. She will sail with the suffrage party, headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, May 19, on the steamship Royal George. At the close of the meeting in Geneva she will tour on the European continent for several weeks with members of the American party, seeking places where previous journeys abroad have not taken her.

Miss Wilkinson's home is in Lincoln, but she is a frequent Omaha visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Polcar. She is especially well-known in Smith college circles, having attended school there after her graduation from the University of Nebraska, where she was a member of

Child Welfare Program Is Outlined

With new stimulus gained from the National Conference of Social Workers held in New Orleans, from which he has just returned, C. E. Prevey of Lincoln, secretary of the Nebraska Children's Code commission, in co-operation with the chairmen of the several committees of the commission has outlined the year's program of child welfare work for this state.

Three general lines of reform are discussed in Mr. Prevey's report to the other members of the commission: That the standard of administration of the welfare laws for children should be brought to the level which has been attained in legislation; that the protection of children should be made as effective as the protection of property rights, and that child welfare measures should protect rural children equally with

"In working out this program," says Mr. Prevey, "the Children's Code commission asks for the cooperation of all those interested in the welfare of children. It will conduct a study of the conditions affect ing child welfare in the state without partisan or sectarian bias and without prejudice or partiality.

"All social welfare organizations, women's clubs, mothers' clubs, fraternal societies and all persons in-terested in children are invited to take part in the discussion of these problems and to report their proceedings, their discussions and their recommendations for the improve-ment of the laws to the Children's Code commission.

"A great many different laws will have to be framed by the Children's Code commission," continues Mr. Prevey, "to meet all the needs of the normal children of the state, as well as those who are defective, delinquent and dependent, to compel attendance of children at school, to make schools so attractive that more children will want to attend school and to provide properly for the health as well as the education, and for the moral safeguarding of these children when they are brought into

Omaha chairmen of committees of the code commission are Mrs. Draper Smith, education and child labor, and Dr. Palmer Findley, health and recreation. Other Omaha members of the code commission are: Judge Howard Kennedy, Misses Charlotte Townsend, Lillian B. Stuff and Mr. W. W. Bradley.
