

TWIN STORIES

BY LUCY FITCH PERKINS

Taro was so surprised to see a baby in the bundle that he had not said a word. He just sat still and looked astonished.

to say, for he had wanted a puppy for ever so many weeks.

WHY?—

Is the Negro's Hair Kinky?

Examination of the furs of different animals shows that those with straight-haired pelts live in the northern sections of the world, while those with curly, crinkly fur come from the warmer climates—just as those which have white hair come from the region of snow and ice and those with black or brown hair inhabit the more temperate climates. The reason for this is that fur of the northern animals is intended principally to keep the wearers warm, while the function of the fur of animals which live in tropical climates is to protect them from the direct rays of the sun—a result which is accomplished by the curls and kinks of the black or brown fur. The hair of the human being is, of course, intended to serve the same purpose as the fur of the lower animals. The original habitat of the negro being Africa, it was necessary that he should have some protection from the heat, and this is provided by the twist in his hair which makes it an air space, much after the fashion of a double roof which tempers the rays of the sun and serves to keep his head cool even during the most intensely hot weather. The white, red and yellow races, which are accustomed to live in more temperate climates, are not faced by this necessity, for a heat-resisting head covering and their hair is therefore straight and lighter in color than that of the negro, while the Scandinavians and others who inhabit the colder lands approach more closely the white-haired animals of the north.

Seeks Kidnaped Child To Prevent Mother's Trial

Miss Robina Kammerer, 1114 Frederick street, left Omaha Tuesday night for Winnipeg, Canada, in an effort to find her brother, Charles, and his 3-year-old daughter, whom he is accused of spiriting away from his divorced wife. Her mother, Mrs. Julia Kammerer, is cited to appear in Judge Sears' court Monday to show why she should not be found guilty of contempt of court in aiding and abetting her son. If the child, which was awarded to its mother, Anna Kammerer, 2201 Vinton street, when the couple were divorced, is returned, proceedings against the grandmother will be quashed.

Wanted to Take Oath on Blood of White Rooster

Louis Ahko, Chinese proprietor of a restaurant, lost his gracie case yesterday, when Justice of the Peace Collins ordered him to pay Andreas Peterson $33.34 for the gracie. Ahko contended that the gracie were not good for broiling steaks. Peterson alleged they were cast to specification the Chinese furnished. Ahko sought to have the court administer a Chinese oath by using the blood of a freshly-killed white rooster. Justice Collins decided the Bible was sufficiently binding.

HOLDING A HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

What Mother Graham Thought of Dicky's Plans.

It isn't very often that I say anything, but this time I simply cannot keep silent.

My mother-in-law came into my room, her head up in what Dicky calls her "best Mary-Stuart-Going-to-Execution manner," the glint of battle in her eyes. If my eyes had been closed I would have known that she was armed for combat from her voice and her phrasing. The little speech with which she greeted me is one that always precedes her unfolding of any grievance, real or fancied, which she may have.

attentively for the unfolding of her grievance.

"In my day," Mother Graham began after a long pause in which she was evidently reviewing the points of her address, "an invitation to the younger members of a family without the older people being included was an open insult. But times have changed, and I understand from the Fairfax-Durkee wedding at Dundee, Mrs. Durkee was just over, so excited that her hair almost turned its real color again."

"My Own Opinion."

If I had wished proof of my mother-in-law's intense anger this reference would have clinched it. It is an open secret to all of us that "Her Fluffiness" indulges in the process of what she calls "touching up" her hair. She does it so artistically, Richard that you and he are going the foible. My mother-in-law intensely disapproves of the practice, but she likes her little neighbor so well that only when she is very angry does she refer to it.

I opened my lips to say that it was extremely unlikely that I should go to North Carolina with the wedding party. But my lips uttered entirely different words as my common sense touched my tongue.

"But, mother, I have heard Leila ask you repeatedly to her wedding."

"Yes, in what kind of a way? Merely perfunctory, she was sure of giving her cake and keeping it, too. I fancy I know the difference between the invitation she gave me and the one she gave you. Oh, I've heard her urging you!"

However, and it is really so becoming to her face, which has never lost its freshness, that we simply smile at it were not so really painful, this jealousy of Mother Graham of any attention shown to me which is not given equally to her. I have experienced it before. Unsuspected, however, that it was not so much the invitation to the wedding that she craved as the journey. My mother-in-law is like a child in her enjoyment of traveling. I think she would circle the globe if her strength and purse permitted. Her next word confirmed my suspicion.

"Of course, I can't expect you and Richard to think of me, but if you have the heart to go South with everything is so cold here and so lovely there, and leave that blessed child, Richard Second, behind, I shall have my own opinion of your selfishness."
