Yates served in the Spanish-American war with Company L, First Arkansas volunteer infantry. In 1916 he went to Brownsville with a company, Third Iowa infantry, and the following year he went overseas with them.

Attempt at Suicide Rattles Skeleton of Cincinnati Society

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, May 12.—Family skeletons of wealthy Cincinnati society caskets rattled today when the police took up the trail of Elliott Pendleton, "London gentleman," who fled when he smelled gas filtering through the keyhole of a room occupied by his supposed wife.

The search led to the door of Elliott Hunt Pendleton, 1736 Madison road, Cincinnati, prominent lawyer, clubman and reformer, said to be the father of the Chicago fugitive, whose antipathy for work was given by the woman as her reason for attempting suicide.

Young Pendleton had been passing here as a London "remittance man" and was supposed to be a black sheep of a prominent English family. Mrs. Pendleton never saw her "husband" during the day, as he was asleep when she had to go to her work early every morning.

PLAINTIVE "UKE" WAILS FOR MATE AT C. OF C. ROOMS

Hula-Hula Harp Is One of Many Prizes at Annual Barbecue Contests.

Up at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce a sad Hawaiian ukulele is wailing softly and plaintively for its mate. Those who have heard it declare it reminds them distinctly of the moaning of the bar at the beach of Lelewei, or the sighing of the land breeze at night as it softly stirs the palms and orchids in wandering down an Hawaiian vale to the sea.

Aroused Covetous Members. Omaha business men passing the place cast surreptitious and covetous glances at the instrument, many of them hoping to possess it the evening of June 5, for the "uke" is one of the prizes to be awarded at the annual Chamber of Commerce barbecue, to be held at Elmwood park that day. It was donated by an Omaha music store, and will constitute first prize in one of the many contests to be held.

Gillan Guards the "Uke." J. M. Gillan, manager of the industrial bureau of the chamber, is custodian of the hula-hula harp, and declares he is gazing with considerable suspicion on several members. Clarke G. Powell and Charles Gardner, both accomplished ukulele manipulators, are being watched particularly close.

Auburn Business Men Give $650 to Rescue Man From County Farm. Auburn, Neb., May 12.—(Special.)—Through the efforts of business men of Auburn, Sam Kroll, 73 years old, the oldest clothing salesman in Nebraska, and a man who never drew a salary, has been rescued from the Nebraska county poor farm, where he spent three months, and has been sent to the Crowell home at Baird, to spend the remainder of his days in a more congenial and comfortable environment.

Kroll came to this county from Germany over 40 years ago and located at Brownville, where he entered the employ of Alex Robinson, a pioneer clothing merchant. He remained with Robinson until the latter's death some years ago. He never had an agreement with his original employer as to salary and he worked for many years for nothing, practically his board and clothes, with a little spending money occasionally.

The death of Robinson found Kroll an aged man, one who had outlived his usefulness as a clothing salesman. Still he was employed by other merchants here and at Johnson, Neb., working for them for his board, clothes and spending money. A year ago he was thrown out of employment and the merchants of the south part of Auburn paid Kroll expenses at a hotel until about three months ago when he was sent to the poor farm.

The interest of the business men never ceased and this week the sum of $650 was subscribed to introduce and this was used to obtain a home for him at the Crowell home at Baird. When this sum is gone an additional amount will be raised for Kroll as long as he lives.

DEATH SENTENCE SET ASIDE FOR "DICK" SCHWARTZ

Mistress Spends Funds Lavishly to Save Life of Pet Dog In City Pound.

Sentence of death imposed on "Dickie" Schwartz December 15, 1919, was set aside yesterday by District Judge Estelle and "Dickie" was returned to liberty. "Dickie" has been in the city dog pound since the date of his sentence, unmindful of his fate, but very mindful of separation from his loving friends. For he is the apple of the eye of his mistress, Mrs. Mary Schwartz, 2050 North Nineteenth street.

When the sentence of death was pronounced on the dog by Police Judge Foster last December, Mrs. Schwartz immediately appealed to the district court, retained a lawyer and spent money lavishly to save her pet from the electric chair. Twenty Defense Witnesses. Yesterday there were at least 20 witnesses in court to testify to "Dickie's" reputation. City Prosecutor Murray and William L. Giller, attorney for "Dickie," entered a long and stormy argument regarding whether or not testimony can be introduced into court regarding a dog's "reputation." Judge Estelle decided that it could. "Often dogs' reputations are better than most men's," said the judge.

Lena Chesno, 9 years old, 2201 North Nineteenth street, testified against the dog. It was for biting her that "Dickie" was originally arrested. But in court it was proved that a boy stepped on "Dickie's" tail in a store at Nineteenth and Clark streets, and "Dickie," in the surprise and pain, leaped at the nearest thing, which happened to be Lena Chesno, and bit her. Held in High Esteem. "If Dickie could talk he would tell her he is sorry," said Mrs. Schwartz. "He is the dearest, sweetest dog that ever lived. Why, some people in our neighborhood think more of him than of their own children."

A dozen neighbors were "character witnesses" for "Dickie" and they gave him the attributes of a saint. He was an "angel" dog, they said, and, just because, in a moment of fright, he had strayed from his usual straight and narrow path, that was no reason why he should be condemned to death. Welcome W. Bradley of the Nebraska Humane society, said he made the acquaintance of "Dickie" since his incarceration and had been deeply impressed by "Dickie's" noble character and disposition. An Exemplary Prisoner. Pound Officer Peterson testified that "Dickie" has been an exemplary prisoner, shining like a star among the desperate dogs and hobo dogs in the city pound. "I don't believe in capital punishment for dogs," said Judge Estelle "and therefore I restore 'Dickie' to liberty and his full rights as a dog. However, Mrs. Schwartz will have to pay the fine of $100 as imposed in police court."
