

BURGLAR FLEES WHEN OUTCRY IS MADE BY NURSES

Thirty Screams From Thirty Throats Put Speed Into Heels of Thief In Hospital Home.

Thirty nurses routed a burglar by their screams early yesterday morning in the nurses' home of St. Catherine's hospital, 1505 South Eighth street. The nurses live in the old Joseph Barker home.

Miss Catherine Geanley awoke early yesterday morning to find a man sitting on the edge of her bed, with his arm over her head, attempting to remove the wrist watch from her wrist.

As she stirred and slowly roused, he seized her and, choking her, said: "If you scream I'll shoot."

"What can you want in a nurses' home?" she asked him. "Surely you must know that nurses have no money. Please give me back my wrist watch. It can't get you much money, and it means so much to me."

Yields to Pleading.

The burglar, who had evidently jimmied the window in her room to gain entrance to the home, seemed to yield to her pleading and finally capitulated by giving back the watch and going out the door of her room.

Meanwhile, Regina Walsh, on the second floor, had been awakened by the commotion in the room downstairs.

Because another burglar had entered the home a week ago last night, the nurses had all been expecting a return visit from him, and Miss Walsh immediately thought of burglars.

Creeps to Room.

She crept quietly from her room to the stairway, and descending the steps far enough to be able to reach the telephone on a table in the lower hall, leaned over the banister to get the telephone and call police.

But in her nervousness, instead of seizing the phone, she knocked it from the table to the floor.

The burglar by this time had reached the room in which four nurses were asleep: Miss Catherine Pritchard, Miss Mary Mulcahy, Alice Kernan and Miss Margaret Harley.

As he entered their room the telephone in the hall crashed to the floor.

Screams Rent Air.

Thirty screams rent the air as 30 nurses were rudely roused from their slumbers by the crash. Their first thought was burglars.

And the present burglar's first thought was evidently escape, for simultaneously with the 30 screams he dashed through Miss Geanley's room to the open window, out on the lawn and away.

The nurses all explained that their sudden screams were not the result of fear, but the release of their pent up nerves for the week following the visit of the burglar last Friday night.

At that time a man broke into the home and, when caught prowling about, told the nurses he was being pursued and asked that they allow him to hide behind one of their doors.

He, too, escaped, however, when they talked of calling police.

Removes Her Rings.

Since that time the nurses have been expecting another visit, and Miss Elsie Stolberk, each evening, removed the rings from her fingers and put them on her toes as she retired.

The last night's burglar escaped out the window the nurses called the police, who at once scoured the neighborhood for suspicious characters.

They arrested no one, but when the detectives returned to Central headquarters, a man giving his name as Louis Schmit, and saying that he had just arrived in Omaha from Lincoln, asked for a bed at the police station.

Held as Suspect.

Detectives at once stated they believed he answered the description given by the nurses of their latest burglar.

Schmit was arrested for vagrancy and investigation, and given the bed he had requested.

Later yesterday morning, Schmit was taken by police to the nurses' home, where he was marched in review before the 30 nurses.

All stated that he was not the man who had caused the disturbance in their home.

But Schmit is being held on the vagrancy charge, anyway.

Discovers Litter of Eight Wolf Cubs on Missouri Farm

Greenridge, Mo., May 15.—While walking through a patch of timber on his farm near here the other day, James Caldwell was startled by whines that seemed to come from beneath his feet.

After a short hunt Caldwell discovered a wolf's den containing eight cubs. At the office of the county clerk Caldwell received $3 each for the cubs' scalps.
