South Side OMAHANS TO SEE WIVES AFTER A WAIT OF 7 YEARS

Little Cottage on South Side Prepares for Happy Reunion — Immigrants to See Babies Again.

The loneliness of seven years of separation from wives and children will end next Sunday when, in the little cottage of Zalmon Katz, 5211 South Twenty-fifth street, he and his brother, Hyman, and their wives and children will be reunited.

Hyman was due to arrive at Ellis Island yesterday, according to a message received by Zalmon. He left Omaha, January 7, to find in Poland his wife and his brother's wife and the children whom they left there in 1913 when the brothers came to America to prepare homes for their families.

The brothers settled in Omaha and worked 12 and 15 hours a day, patiently hoarding every possible dollar toward buying transportation for their loved ones.

And just as they had about amassed enough, the great war broke out. They made frantic efforts to get their families out of Poland, but in vain. The great battle line was drawn. Poland was hemmed in.

Get Passport at Last.
And during the last five years the brothers have worked and hoped and prayed that their wives and children might survive the hunger and pestilence which had fallen upon their land.

Since the armistice was signed they made repeated efforts to get passports to go in search of those they left behind. After much difficulty, Eugene N. Blazer, an attorney, succeeded in getting the passport and Hyman hurried away.

In about a month a letter came from him to Zalmon, stating that the little families had been found in Warsaw, safe but dangerously near starvation. Zalmon cabled money to his brother. But this money was held up by the Polish government for nearly a month. When Hyman finally got it, he found new difficulties in getting passports.

Ready for Home-Coming.
But eventually these, too, were secured and two weeks ago came a cablegram, stating that Hyman and the wives and children were in Paris enroute to a seaport to take ship for the great, free America.

And this is the reason why Zalmon is busy in the little cottage with the assistance of neighbors and friends, making magnificent preparations for the big day, next Sunday, the day the brothers dreamed of seven years ago and the day which has been realized in spite of the world upheaval that has intervened.

RECEIPTS OF HOGS AT STOCKYARDS SET NEW RECORD

304,000 Head Received During May, 9,000 More Than For Same Month in Past Years.

According to figures gathered at the South Omaha stock yards the receipts of hogs for the month of May just passed have been the heaviest of any May in the history of the local live stock market. The total is estimated approximately at 304,000 head, or 9,000 more than a year ago, while the cattle receipts are about the same as the same time during 1919, showing this month 106,000 head, about 20,000 less than in 1917 and 1918.

Estimates for the year show that in the past five months 1,520,371 head of hogs were received at the local market as against 1,843,308 for the first five months of 1919, making a decrease this year of 322,937, while the receipts of cattle for this year for the first five months shows an increase of 35,765, there being for the year so far received a total of 659,398 head as against 623,633 head the first five months of last year.

The records of the receipts of sheep for the five months of this year also show a decrease of 10,191 over the same period last year, the total this year so far being 801,296, while in 1919 the sheep receipts were 811,487 head for the first five months.
