

COMMITTEEMEN RESENT CHARGE OF FAVORITISM

Wood Sponsors On Committee Deprecate Accusations of "Steam Roller" Methods Made by Senator Moses.

Chicago, June 5.—William Jennings Bryan interviewed me today, Governor Lowden remarked to the correspondents. Then he added: "It's easy to give an interview to Bryan; he does all the talking."

"Give us your impressions," a newspaper correspondent asked of the Nebraska democrat. "Don't forget there's honor among thieves," Bryan chuckled. "I am a correspondent, too, and we mustn't rob each other."

Here's another on 'Bryan: The Commoner called on Senator Hiram Johnson, entering the room just as the newspaper men who had been talking with the Californian were concluding: "Don't stop," said Bryan, "I'm a newspaper man myself now. I thought I would just stay behind after the others had left and pick up the fragments." "Not mine, I hope," Johnson retorted, smiling.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, who conducted Wood's canvass in the southern states, after watching the slaughter of Wood delegates by the national committee, flew into a rage and declared that the steam roller of yesterday was a toy compared with the "tank of the present committee."

Miss Alice Paul, leader of the well known Washington militants, has arrived to stir a hot broil in those who fail to answer her in a consistent query: "Do you want women to vote in 1920?"

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, member of the national republican executive committee for four southern states, is here but conventions are "old stuff" to her, she having been one of the first women delegates in 1912.

Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., is conducting a hot campaign for vice president on an impressive platform, the main plank of which, he says, will create a representative republican party in the southern state." He says the Virginia delegation is pledged to him.

John McGrath of New York, former secretary to President Roosevelt, is here attired in gun shoes. He says he is here in the interests of George W. Perkins, but neglected to say what the interests might be.

Eammons de Valera, president of the "Irish Republic," it was announced tonight, will attend the convention, having been supplied with tickets. He is going to be a strong supporter of Senator Johnson.

Judge Vernon Van Fleet of Indiana, sounded solemn warning to the delegates that the candidates must be a thorough, tried and true American, with a sturdy backbone and a sound head, instead of a theorist who will try to enforce academic policies. Judge Van Fleet says great, new national policies must be decided upon and carried out, the United States must be lifted out of the gutter of laziness and set upon solid ground and started going on all cylinders.

A man you want to cultivate at the Coliseum next week is Traffic Policeman G. E. Peterson. He will be in charge of the main entrance. He was assigned by Chief Garrity because of his ambassadorial poise. Mr. Peterson has been attending night law school for six years. He knows Blackstone backwards. He studies five nights a week. When there isn't a republican national convention in town you will find him tooting his whistle at State and Madison streets.

The high cost of living? "Well," explained James Harris, chairman of the Oklahoma state republican committee, "the solution is to 'go back to the farm.' What we need is more young men raising corn and wheat and fewer raising hell in the cities." Mr. Harris incidentally owns 6,000 acres of the best Oklahoma black loam soil. He raises cattle on the side.

If you wander along Presidential row and ask who is the most popular man they will tell you J. A. Whitcomb. He hails from McAlester, Okl. He's a candidate for no office, seeks no largesse, and asks no favors from any man. All he does is to buy ice cream sodas for the young ladies, who toil at typewriters in the respective candidates' headquarters. "They all know I'm no smart Aleck," explained Mr. Whitcomb. "I'm married and over 40."

President Vetoes Bill to Establish Budget System

Washington, June 5.—President Wilson vetoed the bill to establish a budget system of submitting the appropriation estimates of the government departments.

The president said that under the bill congress would have authority to remove the comptroller general from office and that this authority should be reserved to the executive department.

General Blue Takes Steps to Protect U. S. Against Typhus Germs

Paris, June 5.—Maj. Gen. Rupert Blue, former head of the United States public health service, who is in Europe to investigate health conditions with Dr. G. M. Converse of the American health service, has just opened offices in Paris. He has called to Washington for five additional surgeons to be sent to northern ports to inspect all third-class passengers for America in view of the prevalence of typhus in Poland. Gen. Blue said two cases of typhus had been found among Polish soldiers returning to America. His principal mission in Europe is to aid in the enforcement of the American quarantine law of February 15, 1893. He expected to stay only a few weeks, but found the situation fraught with such serious possibilities for the United States that he has decided to stay all summer and has asked for an increased staff to aid him in his work.

Marine Engineer Killed By Unidentified Man

New York, June 5.—Charles W. Clessen of San Francisco, marine engineer, was shot and killed last night in the headquarters of the Market Drivers' union during an argument, the police say, with an unidentified man, who escaped.

An identification card found in the man's pocket, indicated, the police said, that Clessen was a member of the crew of the United States army transport Nansamond, now in port here.

Two witnesses, Thomas J. Quigley, a checker, and John Connelly, seaman, were held by the police. They said the shooting was done by a third man with whom they and Clessen had spent the day. They told the police that they did not know his name.

Liquor Charge Against Naval Officers Quashed

Rockaway Point, N. Y., June 5.—The reported courts-martial of Lieut. W. H. Cushing and Ensign Frank Lamb, who were alleged to have been implicated in transporting liquor in a naval seaplane from Bemini, an island in the Bermudas, to Key West, is not to take place, officials of the naval air station here said. It was said by the officers that the whole matter was a mistake, and that the charge had been quashed.
