

OPPOSITION TO LEAGUE TOPIC AT CONVENTION

Senator Borah Finds Five Questions Uppermost and Commanding Attention at Chicago.

By WILLIAM E. BORAH. United States Senator from Idaho. Written Expressly for International News Service.

Chicago, Ill., June 7.—The subject of opposition to the league is the platform, particularly as it relates to the league of nations. The drift against the league has been so unmistakable for some time that it is manifesting itself in many ways at the convention approaches.

Another feature of the situation with reference to the treaty and the league is the fact that the events now happening in Europe seem to be a warning of an unmistakable condition. The early treaty has been rejected by the minds of the European people and the league has been supplanted by the supreme council.

Senator Johnson's campaign throughout the different states, made upon the platform of no league has been supported by a larger popular vote than any other candidate has received.

The five questions which seem to be engaging the attention of the assembly are: unorganized convention, the position of the party upon the league, the restoration of our civil reports, the cost of living, and the position of the public expenditures.

The latter proposition is peculiarly pressing just at this time. In view of the present condition of affairs, the republican party cannot remain silent upon this question.

Johnson today is stronger than he has been any time during the campaign. Everybody concedes his popular strength. The first returns coming in from North Carolina have added greatly to his position of advantage before the convention.

There is a great deal of talk about dark horses except in the Johnson camp. There you hear no talk about dark horses because they do not expect to have to use them. Their idea is centered upon nominating Johnson and they do not talk of anyone else, nor even listen patiently to the discussion of other names.

You hear some discussion relative to the president's letter or telegram denouncing the congress and not dealing with the question of the high cost of living.

Women Voters Particular About Millinery, Dresses And Enough Ventilation

Nellie Bly Sees the Men in Same Old Dull Clothes, Inefficient Hats Smoking and Chewing in the Committee Rooms—Will Hays Tells Her They Will Add Much to America's Greatness.

Chicago, June 7.—The most momentous period in the lives of American women here. For the women stand side by side with the men as equals.

But the women—there isn't a man in the entire crowd. They have all arrived dressed in the latest style and accompanied by their gowns obtainable. As for hats, the woman has come with less than four, and as many more will be purchased before the convention ends.

So the women in their pretty gowns and their smiling faces are everywhere. The hotels are packed with them and the rooms of the prospective candidates look like flower gardens in June.

Men Smoke and Chew. The room was badly ventilated and the men who did not smoke chewed. Papers and pamphlets strewn the floors and littered up everywhere.

World Has Changed. We have changed all that now—holly smoke, how we have changed it. Today a national convention is like the opening of the rabbit season, with 10 hunters to every rabbit.

Children's Cool "Undies". Sizes 4 to 14 years, at 1.25. Light, cool, dainty little muslin gowns and slips with edging and ribbon drawn around the neck.

House Dresses. 350 in the Lot. Worth 3.98 to 6.50, at 1.69. One big lot of house dresses, some are slightly mused and others have factory defects, but all are excellent values.

Children's Dust Mop. With Long Handle. Specially Priced, at 69c. Save your back with this house necessity; for walls or floors.

Children's Window Shades. 1,800 Six Foot. Worth 79c, Special, each 50c. 29 to 33 Inch Widths. Mill seconds of window shades in assorted colors; these fine shades are complete with fixtures.

Has Faith in the Woman. "Do you mean Nellie?" he said. "If you mean women will now show the safe patriotism in politics which they showed in war we can make America the greatest nation the world has ever known."

Women Favor Ventilation. "In the rooms of the republican woman's national committee in the Auditorium was a conference. There was no smoking. The floors were clean. There was no disorder and perfect ventilation."

Five Now Active. There are five of these diffident and blushing persons now in Chicago, five candidates for the republican nomination for the presidency, all working overtime to get it, and the things they do and the things they say are a plenty to shatter the nerves of the old fogys that think the office too high for tricks.

been ready to believe such a thing possible. Some change? To hold each day a session with the representatives of the press is part of the program of some of these hopeful aspirants.

Each candidate has his professional greeter and if a man gets there and gets out without having his hand shaken either he wears armor or he hasn't any hand to shake. The candidate himself is there with a broad sweet smile and a large warm hand for all.

Charming Will Hays, the efficient and wonderful republican national chairman, called someone else to occupy the chair while he came back to chat with me.

He pulled from his pocket and handed to me a photograph of the dearest little kid, seated on the back of a proud little pony. This pony was held by Mr. Hays himself, and the boy on its back was, to put it, "the real Will Hays."

fetch the persimmons every trip. If you can't think of their names you can always ask anxiously about their grandmothers and perhaps the name will come to you while you make the play.

But with all this, somehow the blame old thing doesn't seem to stir, it sticks on the track, it is on a dead center, it doesn't budge. The only persons that really seem to care very much are the candidates themselves.
