

ELEVEN KILLED AS FAST EXPRESS HITS ANOTHER

Fatalities Occur In Coaches of Passenger Train Stalled On Main Line Due to Engine Trouble.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 10.—Eleven persons were killed and 21 injured today when a train of express cars crashed into the rear end of a passenger train which had stopped about two miles from Schenectady because of engine trouble. All but one of those killed were asleep in two Pullmans at the rear of the passenger train. The body of Martin Doyle of Albany, engineer of the express, was found in the wreckage with one hand fast to the throttle. Only two of the dead have so far been identified. They are Martin Doyle of Albany, engineer on the express train, and a 2-year-old baby, supposed to be the child of Nellis C. Crouse of Utica. Mr. Crouse was removed to a hospital here unconscious and the child was identified by the Pullman conductor. Many Are Unidentified.

Among the dead also was a man believed to be W. J. Heull of Syracuse. The others were two unidentified men, a boy and an elderly woman. The train on which virtually all the killed and injured were passengers was No. 28, a New York Central passenger train from Buffalo to New York, with two Pullmans, two day coaches and baggage and mail cars. The train which crashed into it was a Michigan Central special of ten cars carrying express. The rear car of the passenger train, a Pullman in which 12 passengers were asleep was split to pieces. Twenty-two people were asleep in the other Pullman. The train had stopped in an open field between Glenville and Scotia, because of a defective water pipe in the engine. Flagman Tells Story. C. Robinson, flagman on the train, gave the following version of the accident: "I went back 30 car lengths and saw No. 34 coming toward me and I stayed in the middle of the track as long as I dared. She kept coming and did not blow her whistle. I waved my red lantern and threw the red fuse into the cab as it whizzed by, but I did not see the engineer do anything." Just before the crash came the fireman on No. 34 leaped from his cab and escaped serious injury, but Doyle, the engineer, was pinned under the wreckage and killed. Rescuers said his hand had to be pried from his throttle. Engineer Ignores Signal. New York Central officials here said that Martin Doyle, engineer of the express, had run by three signals in meeting death at his post on his 50th birthday. He disregarded a distant signal, one and three-quarter miles from the standing train, they said; then passed a home signal, three-quarters of a mile from the passenger train, and finally ignored the flagman of the passenger train, who had gone back with a red lantern. Railroad officials announced that the block signals had been inspected after the wreck and found to be in working order and set against train No. 34. Special Luncheon. 75c—Faxon hotel.
