NO MAN'S LAND FOR THE GRAD.

We have with us this month the college graduate. Poor fellow! Rich in the intellectual foundations he has laid, but poor in experience; rich in ambition and ideals, but poor in practical knowledge; rich in culture and refinement, it may be, but poor in purse, let us hope, for poverty alone can compel the use of his latent powers to the highest advantage of himself and

Just now, with his diploma clutched tightly to his breast, he is at last "over the top" at the zero hour, with No Man's Land under his feet. Only those who have passed from the loving plaudits of crowded commencement halls to the stark bleakness of an unfeeling and sometimes slightly contemptuous world, can appreciate the cheerless position of the fresh laid graduate without a dollar in his pocket, or aught wherewith to savor his unsalted newness.

He has so much to learn! and unlearn! A hustling, hurrying world scurries by him. He sees the youths he left behind him when he departed from the public schools for college and a liberal education, nicely started in life, fixed in good jobs, earning good money, and wonders if all his hopes must die. An appalling sense of his unfitness and inability to compete with these former companions in the hurly-burly of real life all but overwhelms him. His total ignorance of the ins and outs of honest money getting depresses him. Again, poor fellow! He is indeed in the No Man's Land of his career-that enentangling maze of hazards, disappointments, chilling fears and heart-breaking set-backs that are to try his soul as never it was tried before; that hot touch of experience where a Bachelor of Arts must yield precedence to any boy who has served his apprenticeship in the real work of the world.

But hold. If he be honest, industrious, adaptable, he will get safely over to victory, a better, stronger, more useful man because o the merciless hazing the world has in store for him during the next five or ten years. And then-how he will soar to achievement after achievement! Then, and not until then, will he fully grasp what his Alma Mater has done for him and for his future. And all the following days of his life he will be deeply thankful for the bitter experiences which now confront him. Journey on, young brother; you are welcomed to the pains and privileges, the amenities and bumps, that follow commencement admittance to the fellowship of scholars!

Junk Yields Rich Treasure.

There is romance in the junk business. It has to do with old things, and odd finds turn up in the junk man's bags. Old garrets are a favorite lurking place for junk and divers and sundry interesting things, as many a boy has discovered on rainy days.

Recently a Philadelphia garret yielded a great treasure in old postage stamps-a collection probably made by a secretary of the treasury in 1849, which contains specimens long sought and believed to have disappeared from the face of the earth. Many of these stamps are listed in the catalogues of philatelists at from $100 to $500 each.

This discovery recalls the junk find in St Louis about ten years ago, when in a bale of waste paper purchased by a lucky dog for $16 were found stamps valued around $140,000. The stamp collector has his thrills and sensations.

The Labor Market.

There seems to be reliable symptoms of a labor surplus at some points, in sharp contrast to the constant shortage that has existed since the summer after we entered the war. We quote from a news item in the Sjoux City Journal:

A surplus of labor exists in Sioux City, although there is a constantly increasing amount of work being done, contractors state. Labor is plentiful here and in the country, employment figures show. The supply of labor of all kinds, aside from the plumbers, is said to be good. Fifteen laborers were reported to have come from Omaha to Sioux City Tuesday since they could find no work in Omaha.

The shortage on the farms still exists and will become more acute with harvest time, doubtless; but it is a symptom when the job ceases feverishly to hunt the man.

Two Clear Notes Sounded.

Senator Lodge plumbed the very depths of true American republican sentiment when he said at Chicago:

We must be now and ever for Americanism and nationalism, and against internationalism. There is no safety for us, no hope that we can be of service to the world, if we do otherwise.

Mr. Wilson and his dynasty, his heirs and assigns or anybody that is his, anybody who with bent knee has served his purposes, must be driven from all control, from all influence upon the government of the United States.

Amen. Amen. America has had enough of fuddling, of muddling, of huddling and of meddling-of ineptitude, inefficiency and self-sufficiency in high places.

The Sun and New York Herald remember the old Astor House opposite City Hall Park for a number of things. We remember it for the best clam chowder and oyster pates earth and ocean ever united to produce, back in the ## Suffering Ireland.

Recently a young man entered a Dublin hospital suffering from terrible burns on his legs, neck, chest, face and hands, the latter without a nail or shred of skin on them. He died.

On the night of his admittance Ballybrack police barrack in Gounty Dublin was destroyed by incendiaries, and a police sergeant and military officers making a survey of the ruins and adjacent grounds, found the complete skins of two hands, with the nails attached, close by a fountain. Gruesome human gloves.

This is only one horrible incident of many in the disordered isle so long in pitiful, demoralizing distress and disorder.

High-Rollicking Times in Havana.

Gentlemen recently back from Havana describe it as a gambling heaven which eclipses Monte Carlo, and bathed in intoxicating beverages of every imaginable kind. Millionaires from all over the world are shedding their incomes freely in a newly completed casino whose gorgeous decorations vie with the most ornate palaces of Europe in magnificence.

But it's hot in Havana-damnably hot. If De had to have booze and roulette in our curriculum we should much prefer the Bermudas. now that the supreme court has stopped public drinking. But England goes only so far, and no farther, in its tolerance of the sporting life of money-spenders.

A Mistaken Editor.

Editors were not all endowed with wisdom. In 1863 the Harrisburg Patriot commented as follows on a speech by Abraham Lincoln: The president succeeded on this occasion because he acted without sense and without constraint in a panorama that was gotten up more for the benefit of his party than for the glory of the nation and the honor of the dead. We pass over the silly remarks of the president; for the credit of the nation we are willing that the veil of oblivion shall be dropped over them and that they shall be no more repeated or thought of.

A striking example of the mistakes partisan rancor may lead to, for the words this editor attempted to relegate to oblivion constituted the Gettysburg speech, one of the greatest utterances that ever fell from the lips of man.

There are several conceptions of what a political party platform should be. One is that it should be an unqualified and explicit avowal of principles-that is to say, a party constitution-with a definite statement of party policy on matters foremost in the public mind as issues. Another is that it should be an artful assemblage of pleasant words of promises designed to soothe and satisfy as many conflicting interests as possible-such a conception, for instance, as the "single term" declaration of the democratic platform off of which Mr. Wilson made his first campaign.

The beatification of twenty-two negroes of Ugenda who burned to death at the stake in 1886 rather than renounce their faith, was celebrated by Pope Benedict, June 6. Pictures and relics of these black saints, who were subjects of King Mwanga, are at St. Peters in Rome. What men will do and suffer for their beliefs is past imagining. The soul's limitations cannot be measured.

There were people who regarded the abolition of slavery as a most unjustifiable invasion of the rights of white men-quite as strongly as many believe prohibition to be an assault on personal liberty.

Inefficient public schools produce inefficient boys and girls who are likely to follow that bent all their days. First rate schools profit a land a thousand-föld over their cost.

Oil in Bible Spots.

The asphalt springs of Hit, from which Noah probably obtained the "pitch" with which he made the Ark impervious to the "flood of waters," have now been thoroughly examined with a view to their commercial possibilities. The petroleum deposits of the land of Shipar. between the Tigris and the Euphrates, which furnished the "slime" that the descendants of Noah "had for mortar" in building the Tower of Babel, have been measured as well as can be until-the bit of the oil driller is sent down to prove whether the geologist is right or not. And the sources of bitumen which archeologists have found was used as cement in constructing the ancient palaces of Babylon and Ninevah have undoubtedly been located .- John K. Barnes in the World's Work.

Our Professor of Shams.

In a campaign dodger to the railway labor unions President Wilson declares that in nine months the congress which has just adjourned had "taken no important remedial action with respect to the problem of the cost of living." But it is a fact, and President Wilson knows it is a fact, that the present congress has had to throttle by main strength the colossal squander of Mr. Wilson's own administrative departments. It is a fact, and President Wilson knows it is a fact, that from the regular supply bills which his own congress tried to put through this new congress when called into special session cut out close to a billion dollars—to be exact, $940,510,598. It is a fact, and President Wilson knows it is a fact, that in the regular session of this congress his own administrative departments demanded and fought for ap ropriations to continue their spending debauch, but this very congress chopped out of their esti-mates nearly a billion and a half of dollars more -to be exact, $1,433,850,218. It is a fact therefore, and President Wilson knows it is a fact, that all told this congress chopped out more than two and a quarter bil-lions of dollars—to be exact, $2,374,460,917— which Mr. Wilson's own-administrative departments strove to get so as to continue their spendthrift profligacy .- Sun and New York

RABIES RETURNS TO EUROPE.

Disturbing remors have come from Europe of the return of hydropho-bia in the wake of the war. For this disease there is no specific cure, but there is a specific preventive. Making free use of the Pasteur preall animals subject to hydrophobia, central Europe had almost forgot-ten hydrophobia or rabies when in the wake of the war there was an

It had extended over a rather wide area in Devon and Cornwall, but had not gotten beyond these two counties, Two factors had prevented the disease from spreading more widely WHAT ONE SAYS TO ONE'S SELF IN ONE'S during the nearly four months in which it had existed unsuspected. Fortunately, most of the dogs af-fected had paralytic rables and were unable to run and spread the disease. Fortunately, also, most of the diseased animals which ran went westward, and since these counties are on the west coast, they were stopped by the sea. Some evidence was obtained as to the distance mad dogs travel. One had gone 20 miles when, having bitten a man, he was shot. A second, after traveling eight miles and biting seven dogs, bit two men and was killed. A third traveled 20 miles as the crow files. A fourth 20 miles when he bit a policeman and was captured. A fifth traveled 22 miles as the crow flies when it attacked some ducks and was cap tured. A sixth was shot while go-ing strong after 20 miles. A seventh traveled 12 miles, bit 10 people, returned home, and died two day later. An eighth traveled 20 miles and died exhausted.

Leaving out of consideration the animals said to have died from the disease before the authorities took charge, there were 112 cases of rables in dogs, 21 people were given Pasteur treatment, and none de-veloped the disease. By inspection the authorities found every dog in the district, registered it, and had it muzzled. They established a branch diagnosis laboratory, which nade a diagnosis of hydrophobia in five hours possible. They caught the wandering dogs. All dog bites the wandering dogs. were promptly reported and persons bitten were given Pasteur vaccination. The disease seems to be com-ing under control.

There is not much that I can tell you. No doubt you know the sub-ject well. There are several caviject well. There are several cavi-ties which open into the nese.
