STERLING O. HARRISON, who recently accepted a position in one of Chicago's largest clothing stores, has returned to Omaha and is again connected with the Nebraska Clothing Co.'s Men's Clothing Department.

Mr. Harrison says: "Omaha and this store look better to me every time I leave here. First, Los Angeles drew me away from the middle west, and then Chicago, but I'm back to stay this time. It may seem like I'm prejudiced to say that the Nebraska's stocks are better selected, and that no other store offers such service and efficiency, but I'm absolutely 'sold' on this store. That it stands without an equal between Chicago and the coast has been an equal between Chicago and the coast has been demonstrated to me, not only by personal observation, but by personal experience, and they say 'experience is a good teacher.' Yes," continued Mr. Harrison, "people who patronize this store from far-off Montana, Oregon and Washington—are people who travel and compare. They, too, have learned by experience that this Greater Store delivers the goods because it is equipped and organized for real service."
