

'Scandals' Chorus Dressed in Paint And Little Else

By BURNS MANTLE. New York, June 19.—(Special Correspondence.)—One of the minor scandals in "The Scandals of 1920," which is the second of the series of summer shows inaugurated a year ago by George White, is a song entitled "Swat the Profiteer."

Being a good idea, Mr. White tries it again. This time the song is called "On My Mind the Whole Night Long," and relates the troubles of a young son-in-law who just could not sleep after he had met and been charmed by a new sweetheart. Under canopies on the middle stage are posed four statuesque beauties in shining tights extending from their slippers feet to their waists, one in green, one in orange, one in black, and another in blue.

Otherwise Mr. White's "Scandals of 1920" are quite like those that he introduced in 1919. His burlesques are better and more timely, including more or less amusing travesties directed at the heads of the profiteering landlords, the politicians and their foolish conventions, the Mexican bandits, the shortage of apartments, and the aerial cable that rises three miles above the limit and then throws wide open the doors and takes the lock off the stock of case goods.

The principals include Ann Pennington, who dances a lot and sings a little; Lester Allen, an eccentric dancer of amazing agility; George Bickel and Mr. White himself. Having become the proprietor of the show, Mr. White does not work very hard, or very much, but enough to get his name in the program and keep faith with the advertisements.

"The Rise and Fall of Susan Lenox" is the first of the summer dramas. Susan, as those familiar with the post-humorous novel of the late David Graham Phillips recall, is one of those heroines who proves that though a girl may be down she is never out. Being a child of sin, as the saying is, she is reared successfully by foster parents until she is 18. Then, believing in her great innocence that a promise of marriage is as binding in a summer house in Sutherland, Ind., as it could possibly be in a parlor with all the lights on and the family just beyond the portieres to serve as witnesses, she realizes her mistake when it is too late. Her father, being a stickler for the conventions, insists that she shall marry a drunkard in order to save her honor, which she does, but that night she packs her trousseau and runs away.

After that Susan joins a theatrical troupe, and when she is pursued by those who seek to take her back to Indiana escapes a second time and goes to Cincinnati. But the men she meets in Candidate Harding's state are just as wicked as those she left at home, and she is as hard put to it as a Mack Sennett comedienne to escape her pursuers. Fortunately, after she is engaged as a fashion model in a department store she meets an honest man in the youthful proprietor and achieves matrimony and financial independence in the last act.

Marsh Launched Boomerang When He Lied in Beach's 'Silver Horde'

Robert McKim, famed screen villain, is Marsh, the nemesis of Big George Bolt and Cherry Malotte in "The Silver Horde" at the Sun today. He accuses Boyd Emerson of being the father of Snowbird's child. But Snowbird turns the tables on him by telling him the child is his own.

the drama at Columbia university. Heywood Brown, it is rumored, will succeed Mr. Hamilton as a lecturer at the college next season, taking the position, no doubt, as a preparatory course before entering the movie field himself. Considering the talent that is being interested in the cinema there certainly should be a marked improvement in pictures next year.

Lakeview Carnival Dance Set for Wednesday Night Wednesday night Lakeview park will have a carnival dance as a special attraction at the big dance palace. One of Lakeview's annual features, and always an evening that is full of fun, this event is the source of much enjoyment to the many who always attend.

Empress—For the first half of the week at the Empress there will be two stellar attractions. The first, "The Shadow of a Doubt," will be presented by the Empress company and their company are all Omaha people. In this act will prove of interest to the Omaha patrons. These artists will offer many vocal selections and Mr. Hirschhorn will vocal some songs. The offering is that of a cabin in the Alps mountain.

Theater Wrecked In Fire Revives Many Oldtime Memories

San Francisco, June 19.—A bit of San Francisco as it was before the fire was laid bare when the skeleton of the old California theater was dug up in excavating the foundation for a new building. The spot had not been touched since 1906 and had become covered with sand and weeds.

"Mon Dieu—No, She's Spanish—Carramba" When Jack Cuts Up

Jack Pickford was a "bad hombre." He shot Mexicans on sight. But even Texas got too hot to hold him after one wild night. So he fled to South America. There, while impersonating the long-lost son of a wealthy family, he met a brown-eyed senorita. She taught him the error of his ways. It all happens in "The Double-Dyed Deceiver," today's bill at the Moon theater.

Athlete Killed When Struck by 15-Pound Shot

Lawrence, Kan., June 19.—Chasing a "foul" ball resulted fatally to Hubert R. Wesley, a University of Kansas sophomore, the other day. While practicing with the university's base ball team, Wesley ran in front of "shootputters" who were "warming up" nearby and was struck over the heart by a 15-pound shot. He died a few minutes later.

Big Musical Program Is Arranged for Krug Park Visitors on Sunday

Another fine musical program will be given by the Union Pacific band at Krug park Sunday evening, commencing at 8:45 sharp.

These concerts, arranged to be given two evenings a week at the park, are proving a very popular attraction for those seeking outdoor entertainment, and each evening the band plays the crowds grow larger. Signor Liberati, cornet soloist, appearing nightly at the park, has already endeared himself to the great musical public by his masterful work on the cornet. People are coming to the park from great distances in the state to hear this noted artist.

The following program is the offering for Sunday evening: 1. March, "The Cavalry Soldier"; 2. Overture, "Foot and Hoof"; 3. (a) Fox Trot, "Buddha"; (b) Polka; (c) One-Step, "Castles in Spain"; 4. Grand Selection, "La Traviata"; 5. (a) Fox Trot, "Made in America"; (b) One-Step, "My Desert Fantasy"; 6. Spanish Serenade, "La Paloma"; 7. Waltz, "Hawaiian Rose"; 8. Characteristic, "First Heart Throb"; 9. (a) Fox Trot, "Dardanelles"; (b) One-Step, "Sunset"; 10. March, "Pennant Winner"; Laureandean.

Numerous Free Attractions Draw Crowds to Manawa Park Thrift in recreation as in other things is possible at Manawa park this year, Manager Stewart points out. "I have checked up the free entertainment offered at resorts, and I fail to find any that offers as much free of charge as does our park," said Mr. Stewart. Manawa park has free admission, he said; free concerts every Sunday and holiday by A. A. Wedemeyer's 24-piece band, free movies every night, free picnic grounds with ovens, wood, water and tables, and a free playground for children, with many devices on which the kiddies may play.

The few cool days last week checked the rush to the bathing beach at Manawa park, but on those days the largest crowds of dancers to visit Manawa this season were at the park. The bathing beach, being the only large lake beach open to the public this season, is attracting huge crowds on every warm day.
