

PEARL NECKLACE WORTH $7,000 IS FOUND BY BRIDE

Omaha Girl on Honeymoon in Chicago Returns Valuable Keepsake to Woman Who Lost It.

Mrs. John W. Halpine, jr., until 10 days ago Miss Clare McCaffrey of Omaha, found a $7,000 pearl necklace in a telephone booth of the Cooper Carlton hotel in Chicago.

As Mrs. Halpine, who is honeymooning in Chicago, entered the phone booth to call her number, she stepped on some object, tried to kick it to one side, then stooped, picked it up and found she was gazing upon one of the most perfect pearl necklaces she had ever seen.

The pearls were perfectly matched and colored, and a diamond platinum clasp assured her they were genuine.

She called her husband, who was standing nearby, and after the two had feasted their eyes on the beautiful necklace for a time, they regretfully made inquiries about the hotel to find the owner, but without success.

See Story in Paper.

The next morning they took the necklace to a jeweler in the Marshall Field store, and learned its true value.

"Of course we wanted to return the pearls, but our hearts really sank when we saw a long account of their being lost in the afternoon," said young Mrs. Halpine, in a letter received by her mother, Mrs. Owen McCaffrey, here yesterday. "We immediately called the young woman who lost them, Mrs. Irwin Zeister of Hyde Park, and she came to the hotel and identified them as the pearls she had lost."

"She had been dining at the Cooper Carlton the Saturday night before and they had slipped from her neck while she was in the telephone booth and lain there until the next morning when I found them."

Gift From Father.

"They had been given her by her father two years before. Her father had died since and she burst into tears when she saw that she had really recovered them. They were her dearest possession."

"Husband and I consider finding the pearls a good omen for our future married life, too, so everybody is happy."

Mrs. Halpine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen McCaffrey, 1021 Park avenue. She and Mr. Halpine had been honeymooning in Chicago but three days when the pearls were found. They will return to Omaha today and make their home in the St. Claire apartments.

BODY FOUND IN ST. JOSEPH MAY BE OF OMAHA WOMAN

Anonymous Letter Received by Police Offers New Clue To Mystery.

Omaha detectives were working yesterday on the theory that the body of a young woman which was brought to the surface of Lake Conroy, near St. Joseph, Wednesday is that of an Omaha girl.

Acting Chief of Detectives A. C. Anderson received a telegram yesterday from Chief of Police Thomas Johnson of St. Joseph, which reads: "Received anonymous letter this morning stating the body found in the lake here belongs in Omaha. Have you any record of same?"

Sends for Letter.

Acting Chief of Detectives Anderson declared he had sent for the note and will attempt to learn the sender of it by identification of the handwriting and possible finger prints on the paper.

Chief Anderson believes the body may have been thrown in the lake by an Omaha bootlegger, because the lake is on the old "pipe line" over which liquor was transported in bootlegging automobiles from St. Joseph to Omaha.

Orders have also been issued by Chief Anderson for all detectives on the Omaha force to trace closely recent reports of missing girls in Omaha.

Wife of Noted Tenor On Stand in Probe of Caruso Jewel Robbery

East Hampton, N. Y., June 19.—The John Doe inquiry into the $500,000 jewel theft from the summer home of Enrico Caruso, noted tenor, began today.

The hearing was public and Mrs. Caruso was the first witness called. She said she last had seen the gems Sunday morning, June 6, preceding the theft, when, returning from New York, she locked up $89,000 worth of jewelry she had been wearing. She fixed $400,000 to $500,000 as the replacement value of the missing trinkets, as quoted to her by her jeweler.

Mrs. Caruso declared that her personal maid, and "perhaps two other maids," knew where the keys to her jewel case were kept, but she said she did not believe George Fitzgerald, the Caruso chauffeur, knew.

Asked whether the box could be opened without setting off the burglar alarm, she replied: "Well, I know I can, but I don't know about the others."
