Bristling with determination to "put over" Edwin T. Meredith of Des Moines, recently appointed secretary of agriculture, as the dark horse nominee at the democratic convention in San Francisco next week, Clyde L. Herring of Des Moines, democratic nominee for governor of Iowa, with the official Iowa delegation, stopped in Omaha at 5:30 p. m. last night on a special Rock Island train en route to the coast.

Iowan Boomed for Head of Democratic Ticket

Edwin T. Meredith

"You can say for me," said Mr. Herring, whom Meredith already calls "governor," "that Iowa will place Ed Meredith on the ticket or we won't be back from Frisco."

The Iowa delegation is instructed solid for Meredith. "I am for an absolutely dry plank in the democratic platform," said Mr. Meredith, when asked why so many delegations from the east were booming for the "wets," and his dark, brown eyes flashed something which was not humor.

Johnson Is Tied. "No, Hiram Johnson cannot bolt the republican party now," he answered when questioned about the proposed third party.

Mr. Meredith declined to concede that he is a potential candidate for the nomination himself. "I'm for McAdoo," he volunteered.

This congressional upset in the Seventh district, the only district in which an incumbent seeking renomination was unsuccessful, almost overshadowed the unusually close race for the republican gubernatorial nomination.

Will Support McAdoo. "McAdoo has done a great deal of public service, and I feel that he believes he is entitled to sit back and do a little for himself. But, he's my man," was the Meredith version.

WILSON MAIN TOPIC AMONG DELEGATES

Question of Whether Chief Executive Will Be Candidate At Democratic Convention Subject of Much Speculation.

MANY FEEL NOMINATION EASILY ACCOMPLISHED

Anti-Administration Leaders Fear Stampede—Willing to Compromise on Cox, Marshall Or Clark if Palmer Loses Out.

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING, Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Aboard Convention Special, Pueblo, Colo., June 22.—The enigma of the White House and the mystery of McAdoo have keyed to a high pitch the interest and speculations of the hundreds of delegates journeying to their national convention at San Francisco.

Whether President Wilson is actually a receptive candidate for a third term and whether his son-in-law, William Gibbs McAdoo may not, despite his positive withdrawal, be nominated after all, are the major topics of discussion in the informal club car and smoking compartment caucuses of the delegates.

That is, you can do anything except stop the renomination of the president," I suggested. "That's about it, I guess," he replied. "Thought, of course, we should not want to prevent his renomination if he wants it. We could win handily with Wilson. We don't like him much but we admire him and concede his refusal to permit presentation of his name to the convention. Every scrap of information concerning the real attitude of the president is being eagerly sought by the delegates and their leaders."
