

MRS. CLARK SEES NO MILLENNIUM FROM SUFFRAGE

Wife of Champ Clark Experienced in Politics, Expects Great Things of Suffrage.

By ANNABELLE LEE.

Washington, June 26.—Disappointed, yet elated. This is the rather unusual state of mind of Mrs. Champ Clark with reference to the woman suffrage situation.

The wife of the veteran democratic leader and former speaker of the house, and herself a pioneer suffragist, gave her view on an interviewer on things in general and suffrage in particular. She admitted she was disappointed that the amendment giving the vote to her sex has failed as yet of ratification in the 36th state, and added:

"But I feel immensely gratified to think we came so near the achievement of what I considered at best a remote possibility. When I think of the progress made by the 'cause' since 1912, it seems more wonderful than a tale out of the Arabian Nights."

Experienced in Politics.

Mrs. Clark may be called the dean of women in politics at the national capital, for her experience covers a period of 25 years or more, and her remarkable sense of humor has equipped her for keen enjoyment of political life. For instance, referring to the rapidity with which the suffrage cause has advanced in popularity, she said:

"It has been going by leaps and bounds but every time it leaps or bounds it can look sideways and see the two faithful old parties leaping and bounding, too."

"It was certainly a sight for the gods to see not long ago in a Sunday supplement a picture of a young republican member of the West Virginia legislature, who posed for a photograph, flying to vote for ratification of suffrage."

Expects Better Things.

"We need not expect the millennium as the result of either the Chicago or San Francisco conventions, so far as women's participation in these conflicts is concerned. The world was not built in a day, and women as well as men have their limitations; but even a look-in by a few women delegates, assisted on the outside by the determined pickets will have an influence in the right direction."

"What I very much desire to see," Mrs. Clark continued, "is unity of work between men and women, who after all are human beings and must work together for the economic, civil and religious welfare of the race. I want to see men in political life. I want to see them actively engaged in perfecting legislation which will provide better municipal housekeeping. An organized and formal effort on the part of women would add but one more witness to those who have urged more vital international relations between governments."

"No, I am not expecting the millennium to be ushered in, no matter which party is victorious in November. But I do believe in the ultimate decency of things, and have faith that the women and men working together will evolve a better way of settling disputes than the extermination of each other."

Wealthy Girl Student Weds Free Love Mate Only to Satisfy Dad

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arnold Roth

Berkeley, Cal., June 26.—"If it had not been for the pressure of my father's opinion and my family's unbearable interference in my life, Mr. Roth and I would never have had the marriage ceremony performed," declared Lillian Stowell McCarthy, wealthy resident of Los Angeles.

Miss McCarthy and Edward Arnold Roth were both firm believers in "free love." They had been living together for several months as man and wife.

The couple were students at the University of California. Their mutual talent for music brought them together, and they fell in love, and without a marriage ceremony went to live in a bungalow in the college city.

Only the pressure of her father's opposition to the extraordinary freedom of their relationship brought them into legal wedlock, Mrs. Roth declared.

Lived Up to Convictions.

"I want you to understand that I sincerely believed in the right to wedded happiness," declared the little bride. "We were both living up to our highest convictions in those few months before our marriage."

"My husband is an eastern man—from New York—but I know no more about his family than you do. Unless he wants to tell me himself, it is really none of my business. In the meantime we are really happy in this little home, and if the time ever comes when my husband finds another woman for whom he cares more than he does for me, I shall not make the slightest effort to detain him."

It was the young couple's love for music that brought them together last fall.

"It has always been my desire to be a violinist," said Mrs. Roth. "My father had no sympathy with my aspirations and preferred that I be a social butterfly."

Insincerity Bored Her.

"You can't imagine how it bored me—not the social life so much, but the insincerity of it all. My parents have not lived together for years—they are divorced. I have always been a thorn in my father's side. He could not understand a daughter who preferred careers to dances."

"I went to school in France for several years and later I came to Berkeley to take up special courses at the university."

Mr. Roth and I were firm friends from the first, but we really did not think anything more serious until my family began to object to my seeing him. He and I were of the same opinion—that our personal lives made no difference to anyone else—and we were both firm advocates of what the world calls free love.

John F. Hecox, 4845 Farnam street, vice president of the bank, was aroused by the noise and called Zaloudcek after a taxi driver saw the officer go in the bank and notified police.

Washington, June 26.—The National Woman's party will picket Senator Harding during the ceremonies attending notification of his nomination for president, Alice Paul formally announced today.

Suffragists from every state in the union will invade Marion, O., the senator's home town, and form a picket line which will surround his house.

"We plan to spend the summer with Senator Harding," said the militants' leader. "It will be a case of 'whither thou goest, we go,' according to Miss Paul. Pickets will remain with the republican candidate for president during his stay in Marion and will follow him wherever he goes on his campaign tour, she said."

WOMAN ARRIVES LATE WITH WINE AND BEER PLANK

Miss Marbury Finds Fair Sex Have Already Decided to Remain Silent on Prohibition.

By LEOLA ALLARD.

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

San Francisco, June 26.—Elizabeth Marbury, member of the national democratic executive committee, was late today with her light wine and beer plank and when she appeared dragging it in behind her she was told that the national democratic women in conference at the Palace hotel under the generalship of Mrs. George Bass, had voted unanimously to say nothing about the liquor question.

"But," protested Miss Marbury, "I want to present this plank. I—"

"But," said Mrs. Bass, "the women have voted unanimously not to talk about the subject. It has been voted upon."

Miss Marbury says she didn't know the question was coming up today or she would at least have been there on time.

Miss Helen Grenfield, delegate from Colorado, caused a stir when she announced that she would not stand for anything that was a criticism against the administration. Consequently she would not stand for the labor plank presented by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of Chicago which contained an anti-injunction clause.

She had with her women from Indiana and some loyal supporters of Attorney General Palmer. The argument was a warm one.

"The anti-injunction clause is a direct criticism of the present administration," she said. "We shall never stand for that."

Miss Grenfield has been accused of being with capital and some of them reaching her ears.

Home Hewed Planks, Some Wet, Some Dry, Make Oakland Mole Look Like Lumber Camp

San Francisco, June 26.—Oakland mole, arrival-point for democratic national convention delegates who poured in by the hundred, looked more like a lumber yard than a passenger depot today. So many platform plank suggestions arrived with the delegates that their special trains clattered like fast freight lumber trains.

A rough estimate would indicate that it would take the resolutions committee a month, sitting 24 hours a day, if it planned to give all the suggestions a full hearing.

Delegates in every car whiled away the journey hacking and sawing at language they thought would look good in the party's bill of particulars. They hammered and banged away at every subject under the sun and had no time for scenery.

As desert, mountain and valley rolled by the car, the self-appointed sacrificers fought hand-to-hand battles with the English language, seeking words to say one thing and mean another. Hand baggage and trunks were loaded down with home brewed planks prepared before the political voyagers embarked for the golden west.

Wet and Irish planks were in the majority, but no subject was slighted.

Where delegates themselves had not prepared a few thoughts for consideration of the official platform makers, representatives of some association, committee, league or other propaganda center promptly filled the breach.

Harding Sidesteps Fashion Show by Playing Golf; Figg Says Skirts Should Come Below the Waist

Chicago Tribune-Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

Washington, June 26.—Senator Harding took refuge on the golf links when reports reached his office that three beautiful dressmakers' models, dressed to exemplify cloth conservation, were on their way to pay him a visit.

The young damsels brought to Washington by representatives of the National Retailers' association, who wanted to exhibit the styles to the Department of Justice before they were placed on the market. They called upon Howard Figg, special assistant attorney general in charge of the high cost of living, to get his approval of their economy designs.

The most noticeable feature of the new dresses worn by the models was their entire absence below the knees. Mr. Figg surveyed their costumes critically, viewed exposure of limb with concern, and decided flatly when asked to pose with them for the movie camera.

Mr. Figg said he did not care to lay down any hard and fast rules for women's clothing, but expressed the opinion that skirts should at least come below their waists.

As they were leaving the Department of Justice, the retailers' representatives and models said they were bound for Senator Harding's office. They wanted to get the republican nominee to say a word on next fall's styles and have him "move" with the models. Someone promptly set the alarm to the senator's office and he went golfing.
