HOLDING A HUSBAND Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

What Major Grantland Came to Ask Made.

My mother-in-law's prediction did not come true. It was not one hour, but six which whirled by before Major Grantland's big car came up our driveway.

I knew that he had stopped at Mrs. Durkee's home shortly after the little woman had departed in such high dudgeon at our disinclination to agree with the wedding bouquet scheme. That it, after all, had turned out to be Dicky's instead of the young officer's, was something which I was sure "her fluffiness" did not know. And when Major Grantland did not come over, but dashed past the house as if he were going to a fire I made up my mind that our little neighbor had resolved to take us at our word and leave us bouquetless as far as Hugh Grantland was concerned.

I found myself worrying absurdly over the situation, even through the rush of last things to which I was attending. My father, who always appears to have an unlimited fund of that elastic and elusive commodity known as "inside information," had warned us that we must get our trunks off early if we expected them to arrive in any season, also that we must carry all things most necessary in our bags.

With the prospect of no trunks for days it was a seemingly endless task to decide which things were most vitally necessary for my baby's comfort and my own creditable appearance at the wedding. I packed and repacked suitcases and traveling-bags, even tucking away such light articles as handkerchiefs and silk hose in the crevices of the boxes which held the hat I was to wear at Leila's wedding.

Left Alone.

I was femininely inconsistent enough to wonder if my mother-in-law and I were to be the only women without bouquets at the wedding, even to feel resentment toward Major Grantland for taking an effort to change our decision. Then my irritation swelled to little Mrs. Durkee, who might have known—I told myself hotly—that I was only refusing the proffered courtesy because I dreaded Dicky's displeasure and his mother's nagging.

Thankful indeed was I that there was no one to disturb either my packing or my absurd worrying, which was complicated by the certainty that Dicky, despite his dislike of the young officer, would be furious when he found that the scheme which he himself had devised had been partly spoiled by his wife and mother.

Dicky had departed on the noon train to attend to some last things at the studio, and my father had unexpectedly taken the same train with an air of having discovered something of the utmost importance which had to be attended to at once. My mother-in-law was busy with her own packing, which threatened to be still unfinished when the train whistle should sound. Katie and I were efficiently preparing the house for shutting up, and I was left to my own unsatisfactory self company.

A Long "Minute."

I was in no very placid mood, therefore, when Katie dashed up to my room with a little more than her usual strenuous and excitedly announced.

"Oh, Missis Graham! Dot Major Grantland here in dot great, beeg car, vant to know if he can see you joost sun leetle minute."

The young officer's wonderful high powered car has always greatly impressed Katie's flamboyant imagination and I have always suspected that she secretly applied her yardstick of romance obtained from her beloved "movies" to the very infrequent appearances of Major Grantland at our home.

For an unaccountable fit of shyness, of reluctance to see Hugh Grantland, had suddenly seized me, and had shaken me until I found

Read this challenge—by the Edison Laboratories, and come in to hear the phonograph which stands behind it.

An Invitation to Talking-Machine Manufacturers. We are informed that the representatives of one or more talking-machine manufacturers have stated, on several occasions, that they are able to distinguish between a singer's voice, or instrumentalist's performance, and the New Edison's RE-CREATION of such voice or performance. We hereby invite responsible representatives of any reputable talking-machine manufacturer to permit themselves to be blindfolded, and to listen to such a comparison, in the presence of judges of their own choosing, indicating to the judges when they think they are listening to the artist, and when to the New Edison. There is only one condition attached, and that is—that the representatives of the talking-machine company, and the judges selected by them, shall sign a written statement, setting forth, in full detail, the results of the test. The test will be made with an Official Laboratory Model, taken from stock, such as can be bought in any Edison dealer's store. (signed) THOMAS A. EDISON, Inc.

College Girls of East Send Clothes to Students Abroad. Twelve barrels and as many wooden boxes filled with clothes and shoes from the wardrobes of college girls in the eastern states were shipped last week from New York City to the University of Vienna where 1,400 girl students are in desperate need of clothing and food. An appeal for clothing was sent out in May by the student department of the National Y. W. C. A. to the schools in eastern states and was generously responded to. Both summer and winter clothing was asked for as well as materials to be used for clothes. Stockings and gloves were on the list as especially lacking. The boxes are being sent directly to a committee of students in Vienna. "Butterfly" Coiffure. For the "Butterfly" coiffure brush front and side hair over face; take back hair and comb it up to the crown of the head, where you make a flat knot of it, pulling it securely. If you haven't enough of your own for this knot, which makes the padding, you may use false hair or, as some girls do, old hair net. Brush the front hair back over the forehead and back over the padding and secure with pins at the nape of the neck, turning ends in neatly. Then take the sides and roll the hair the reverse of the way you roll it for puffs and pin down into shape to suit your face and in nice proportion to the puffed-out crown. A barrette or comb may be used in the back to hold the hair in position. he is French, and you soon discover it. M. de Primo will sing with the Chicago Grand Opera company next season, he says. The Boston Grand Opera company is included in his past engagements. Since the war, he and his wife have spent considerable time in Porto Rico and the West Indies. American ideals are his hope and faith, he declares, and as for himself, both his artistic and political destinies are "in and of this country." Nearly 500 girls have registered for all kinds of competitive athletics at the University of Oregon.

Paris Introduced To Her First Cafeterias. The first cafeteria ever seen in Paris was thrust on the innocent public last month when a new Y. W. C. A. opened in that city. French girls, frankly amused at the idea, acted as waitresses behind the counter and caught on to the scheme with readiness. Four hundred visited the cafeteria the first day and now there are over one thousand daily guests. The new Y. W. C. A. building is an outgrowth of the smaller loyers for French girls started by American secretaries during the war and has all the facilities for study, social times and work that the American associations have. It is proving enormously popular among Paris girls.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul". The Official Laboratory Model has proved its Realism in 4000 Comparison Tests, made before 3,500,000 people all over the United States and Canada. For instance, in Los Angeles recently, an audience of 1,500 people was unable to tell the difference between the living voice of Miss Marie Morrisey, world-famous contralto, and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. There's a way for you to test the wonderful Realism claimed for the Official Laboratory Model in this sweeping challenge. We give Mr. Edison's Realism Test. Come in and let us give it to you. The price of the new Edison has advanced less than 15% since August 1, 1914. Mr. Edison has absorbed the bulk of the increased cost of material, skilled labor, and taxes.
