WICHITA WOMAN GAINS 15 POUNDS ON 3 BOTTLES

Mrs. Howard Says She Is Feeling Better Than In 20 Years Since Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has built me up from 100 to 115 pounds in weight, an actual gain of 15 pounds, and I'm feeling better now than I have at any time during the past 20 years," said Mrs. Mary L. Howard of 353 North Main street, Wichita, Kan., telling how Tanlac had put her on her feet again.

"For the last three years until I found Tanlac," continued Mrs. Howard, "I was unable to do any kind of work, and for 19 months was in bed most all the time. I had no appetite and suffered from a severe case of stomach trouble. Gas formed on my stomach keeping me in continual distress, and I was so nauseated that I could scarcely retain a thing I ate. There was an awful pain right in the pit of my stomach, and my right side hurt me terribly just below the ribs. At night I could get very little sleep or rest, and I was so weak and run down that I was simply miserable. I tried a great many medicines and was even operated on five times without any relief, so I became very much discouraged and low in spirit."

"One of my neighbors strongly recommended Tanlac to me, and as it had done her so much good, I decided it would be best for me to try it. I'm on my third bottle now and my improvement has simply been surprising. My appetite is now just fine, and I can eat anything I want without ever being bothered with a sign of indigestion or gas on my stomach. The pains are all gone my sleep is sound and refreshing, and I can now do all my household work without feeling tired or worn out. I hope other suffering people will read this statement and give Tanlac a fair trial, for I believe they will surely be missing a good opportunity of finding relief if they don't."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha at all Sherman & McConnell Drug Company's stores, Harvard Pharmacy and West End Pharmacy. Also Forrest and Meany Drug Company in South Omaha and Benson Pharmacy, Benson, and the leading drug-drugist in each city and town throughout the state of Nebraska.

the decision of the commission before taking further action to force a wage increase. Members of the executive committee of the union asserted they had power to call a strike as a result of the strike vote taken more than a month ago by the men.

Frank M. Coffey, counsel for the car men, who attended the morning session of the union and made a report on the hearing, at the close of the meeting said the car men would either "abide by the decision of the commission, take the case to the supreme court, or strike."

TWIN STORIES BY LUCY FITCH PERKINS

Story of the Leprechaun. (Concluded.) "Money!" says he; "money is it? And where on top of earth would an old creature like myself get money?" says he.

"Maybe not on top of earth at all, but in it," says she; and with that she gave him a bit of a squeeze. "Come, come," says she. "Don't be turning your tricks upon an honest woman!"

"And then she, being at the time a good-looking young woman as you might put a wicker face on her and pulled a knife from her pocket, and, says she, 'If you don't give me your purse this instant minute, or show me a pot of gold, I'll cut the nose off the face of you as soon as wink.'"

"The little man's eyes were popping out of his head with fright, and, says he, 'Come with me a couple of fields off and I'll show you where I keep my money.'"

"So she went, still holding him fast in her hand, and keeping her two eyes fixed on him without as much as a wink, when, all of a sudden, what do you think?"

"She heard a whizz and a huzz behind her, as if all the bees in the world were humming, and the little old man cries out, 'There go your breeches—swarming and a-going off with themselves like blazes!'"

"He slipped out of her fingers as if he were made of fog or smoke, and sorrow a bit of him did she ever see after."

"And she never got the gold at all," sighed Eileen.

"Never so much as a hapenny worth," said Grannie Malone.

"I believe I'd rather get rich in America than try to catch Leprechauns for a living," said Larry.

"And you never said a truer word," said Grannie. "Tis a poor living you'd get from the Leprechauns, I'm thinking, rich as they are."

"By this time the teapot was empty, and every crumb of the cakeen was gone, and as Larry had eaten two potatoes, just as Eileen thought he would, there was little left to clear away.

It was late in the afternoon. The room had grown darker and Grannie Malone went to the little window and looked out.

"Now you run along with yourselves home," she said, "for the sun is nearly setting across the bog and your mother will be looking for you. Here, put this in your pocket for luck." She gave Larry a little piece of coal. "The Good Little People will take care of good children if they have a bit of this with them," she said; and you, Eileen, be careful that you don't step in a fairy ring on your way home, for you've a light foot on you like a leaf in the wind, and 'The People' will keep you dancing after them, how long if once they get you."

"We'll keep right in the boreen (road), won't we, Larry? Goodbye, Grannie," said Eileen.

The Twins started home. Grannie Malone stood in her doorway, shading her eyes with her hand, and looking after them with a turn in the road hid them from sight. Then she went into her little cabin and shut the door.

HEATING PROCESS TO BURN WASTE COAL TESTED HERE

Price of Fuel Would Be Decreased, Officials of New Company Declare.

Omaha coal men welcome an industry in this district that tends to revolutionize heating of homes and the use of coal in manufacturing plants.

Demonstration of the system, known as the Prudenizing process, was held yesterday before a body of local coal dealers.

Introduction of the system in Omaha means the construction of a plant to cost fully $200,000. Capital already has been advanced for the enterprise.

The plant will pulverize slack and waste coal products which is discarded at the mines and heretofore has been utterly useless in industry.

The industries bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has accepted an invitation to witness a demonstration of the Prudenizing system and assist the officials of the company in locating in Omaha.

Burns Powdered Slack. Omaha men interested in the enterprise are E. N. Robertson, chief engineer of the American Smelting & Refining Co.; George McIntire, chief chemist at the smelting company; Bert Phillips, chief engineer of the Callas Product company, and E. R. Oberer, attorney.

The Prudenizing heating plant, invented by E. B. Pruden, a mechanical engineer of Chicago, burns powdered slack and waste coal in home furnaces, foundries and manufacturing plants. The individual system, consisting of an electric suction fan that automatically feeds the product into the furnace, costs less than $400 and will fit in the average home or apartment house.

The plant is regulated by an electric switch, known as the thermostat control, which can be regulated from upstairs in the home.

The Prudenizing system in manufacturing plants and foundries does away with fire stokers, officials of the company assert.

All Dirt Eliminated. The pulverized product costs 25 per cent less than coal and has a higher efficiency in heating than coal, the promoters declare. The system eliminates ashes, smoke, dust and much work that is common with the ordinary heating plant.

Following demonstration of the system yesterday, A. V. Cook, president of the Union Fuel Co., said: "It is highly efficient and bids fair to revolutionize the coal industry."

S. A. Corner, well known coal dealer, said: "The system will use up the waste product that is discarded at the mines. It may possibly bring down the present price of coal."

The new industry will promote the opening up of new coal fields throughout the country which have been waiting natural development, according to J. G. Gotch, Omaha coal dealer.

Prudenizing manufacturing and pulverizing plants have already been constructed in Chicago and other cities.

GOVERNMENT PAYS FIRST CLAIM DUE TO U. S. CONTROL

Spokane, Portland & Seattle Road Awarded $1,600,000 After Balancing Books.

Washington, July 7.—The first settlement with the railroad company of all claims arising out of federal operation was announced today by the railroad administration, which has agreed to pay the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railroad $1,600,000 in cash, the sum remaining after balancing of the claims of the railroad company against the government and of the government against the railroad company. The larger portion of the sum agreed upon represents the payment of compensation due the railroad company for the use of its property by the government.

Nearly 500 claims by the various railroads of the country remain to be settled, and officials of the railroad administration believe that the majority will be adjusted on the lump sum basis after balancing of the conflicting claims. Claims of some roads run as high as $100,000 or $200,000 and it is impossible to estimate, officials said, the amount which will eventually be paid over by the government or the time necessary to wind up government control of the railroads.

Had she known it, however, I was not in the least disturbed by my mother-in-law's disagreeable comments. I knew that she had no such opinion of my carelessness as she expressed, and was simply voicing in this fashion her childish chagrin at not being the recipient of a similar gift to the ones Mrs. Durkee and I had received. For I, too, would have preferred the company of a trained leopard or any other menagerie habitant to that of Rita Brown, but I saw, alas, too clearly the fact that she was unconsciously, the gifts of Major
