Does a Humming Bird Hum? (Copyright, 1920, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)
Though the smallest of all birds, the humming-bird makes a noise peculiar to its species by reason of the ceaseless energy

with which it moves its wings in the course of its search for honey. In comparison to the size of its body, the wings of the humming-bird are quite long and slender. In order to remain poised in the air, the bird is forced to move or flap these with extreme rapidity-so swiftly, in fact, that the movement is perceptible to the eye only as a con-

is this beating upon the air that produces the drone or hum char-

Chemical Sanitary and Bacteriological Analysis

To The Public:-

TELEPHONE

COLFAX 1429

The writer has been engaged by the Park Management to keep the bathing pool free from all bacteria that might cause decease in mankind. Expensise machinery for filtering and ozonating the water has been 'atalled and is in almost continuous operation which enables the water in the pool to be filtered and ozonated three times in twenty four hours.

In order to check the efficiency of the filtering and ozonating machinery a chemical and bacteriological examination of the water is made each day. While it is almost impossible to make the results of these investigations so that they may be understood by those who are not familiar with the methods employed by bacteriologists for the purpose of determining the purity of water, photos of incubated plates and fermentation tubes will be posted from time to time togather with their interpertation, and the public may rest assured that the water will be at all times free from danger of infection.

No poisonous chemicals or those such as might cause eruptions of the skin shall be used in purifying the water and this togather with the fact that a supply of fresh city water is added to the pool each day insures the bathers of a clean pool at all times.

All bathing suits and towels are washed with hot soap and water, dried, mended and sterilized by steam each time they are used, thus a clean steril towel and bathing suit is insured each bather.

It is the desire of the Park Management to make Krug Park Bathing Pool sanitary in every way and a credit to Omaha and no expence is spared in their efforts to do so. The cooperation of each individual bather is requested to this end.
