AT THE THEATERS

Combining in himself the essentials of eight vaudeville acts, Sylvester Schaffer is the headline attraction this week at the Orpheum. Any one seeing him will be ready to concede that he is the mest versatile man on the vaudeville stage. First he memonstrates his ability as a magician and juggler. His talents as a landscape painter and as a violinist are also demonstrated. Likewise he does remarkable feats as a horseman and as a rifle marksman. Later he demonstrates his foats of strength. The act is hansomely mounted and richly costumed. Each day there are three vaudeville performances. The one which begins at 6:40 affords patrons the widest selection of seats. This week there are four notably excellent acts, in addition to the headline feature.

acts, in addition to the headline feature.
Topping the bill at the popular Empress theater for the first half of the week is Emma Barlow and company, affording a comedy sketch entitled, "Circus Days," one of the funniest acts shown this season. Jermon & Mack offer "A Breath in Varlety," a singing, talking and juggling act. Fredericks, Elisworth and Thomas offer a comedy singing act. Their songs are pleasing and original. Rago and company offer a novelty escape act, said to be the best en the stage. Mr. Rago gave a demonstration of his powers at the police station, which the police has remarked was very clevely done.
