Want Some Information ? Marion R. Glenn's "Big Idea" Supplies It.

The woman who knows the greatest number of bankers in America is Miss Marion R. Glenn, who originated a unique plan to supply all kinds of information to the 16,000 members of the American Bankers' association.

Miss Glenn started this nation-wide work with nothing but & Big Idea, enthusiasm, and a pile of old magazines and pamphlets strewn on the floor. This was eight years ago. Today, her creative work is known wherever American banks hang shingles.

She was a trained librarian. Determined to get into the business world, she one day copied the names of concerns listed in the telephone book under "American," "Consolidated," "General," "National" and "United," and applied for work. She got no further than "American Bankers' association," where she found her work, beginning with a few volumes piled in a corner of a room. Now this library she built up contains 75,000 volumes, and large filing cases in which there are thousands of neatly mounted newspaper clippings and magazine extracts.

A banker in Iowa wishes to make a talk on the relation of the banker to the automobile dealer; another banker wants speech material on commercial paper; one in Alaska wants federal reserve pamphlets; a man in Idaho wants information on the rural credits bill. All sorts of information is wanted, and wanted at once, and it is now available at an instant's notice, all because a young woman had a Big Idea, and stuck to it.

Every woman has her inspiration and her opportunity. What is yours? What are you doing with it?
