COLN SCHOOL MOVES TO FRONT BY STEADY GAINS

Personal Interest and Thorough Instruction Two Features of Capital Institution.

The present prestige enjoyed by Nebraska School of Business at Omaha among schools of its kind in the west has not come about in spectacular manner, nor has it been gained by the application of any new or radical principles. Its growth has been pleasingly steady, and has come as the result of the continued development of the three elements upon which such institutions must base their success: the personal interest of the faculty, thorough instruction, and comprehensive curriculum.

Under the presidency of T. A. Blakeslee, heading a faculty in which are included Miss Gertrude Beers, principal of the normal training department and one of the recognized shorthand authorities in the United States; Miss Trilla F. Gardner, head of the shorthand department, a teacher of rare ability and author of a popular normal course in typewriting; and W. M. Bryant, principal of the accounting department, and for eight years in charge of the commercial department, University of North Dakota, the Nebraska School of Business has steadily widened its scope of usefulness in preparing young men and women to support themselves in the business world. And all of its success can be traced directly to the progressive policy instituted by its founders.

Russell of the University of Iowa lectured to students and faculty for three days last week. His address on "Bolshevism in Russia and America" received rapt attention. A drew comedy with the usual movie trimmings was presented to the students free Friday evening as a part of the weekly entertainment schedule. ## Ask Candidates to Support Reorganization Movement

New York, July 18.—Active support of the movement to reorganize the Department of the Interior by the establishment of a national department of public works is asked of Senator W. H. Harding and Gov. James M. Cox in a message sent them by the New York committee of the National Public Works Department association, which was made public here. This plan, it was stated, would effect an "annual saving of $100,000,000" and aid in "the elimination of waste and extravagance in the federal government." ## DEVIL ALWAYS AFTER VICTIMS, SAVIDGE SAYS

Pastor of Peoples Church Warns Old Persons to Fight Hard in Late Years.

"Is it ever too late for a soul to go to hell?" was the subject of a sermon delivered by the Rev. Charles W. Savidge yesterday morning at the Peoples church. "I have lately read of a man who after an exemplary life of 96 years fell into great temptation and died from drink," he said. "There is an old saying that Satan has a bait for old birds still."

"We naturally expect youth to be subject to evil influences. Little knowledge and experience are the causes. The forces and springs of life are also at high tide. But we shall find that in the latter part of life souls are still in great peril. I remark it gets too late to go to heaven. Our text is a solemn warning on that line. When the heart of man gets hard and the spirit of God ceases to work, how can a man enter heaven? "Someone has declared lately that Omaha ought to be a safer place for aged men. I reply if aged men were decent and had right principles this city would be perfectly safe for them.

"What is the cause of this defection of character in age? I answer, they would not serve God in their youth, they sowed had seed in their early days, and in age they reap. They would not learn. "I know no cure except the principles and the practice of the Christian religion. Those who truly serve God never have a breakdown in character; but there is no other cure."

Cattle Rustlers Stealing Stock on Wyoming Ranges

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 18.—(Special)—Cattle "rustling," which had been dormant the past two or three years in the region where the states of Wyoming and South Dakota join, appears to have been resumed on as large a scale as during the days when the great ranges of that region flourished. The operations also appear to extend into the southeastern sections of Montana, adjoining South Dakota.

Jack Hunter, a well-known stockman of eastern Wyoming, and deputy sheriffs from Gillette, Wyo., and Alzada, Mont., are in western South Dakota searching for a bunch of 41 head of cattle, which mysteriously disappeared from the Hunter ranch. The animals are branded F. L. The posse has succeeded in tracing them to western South Dakota, several parties along the route having seen the herd as it was being driven eastward to South Dakota by the rustlers.

The trail was lost in Butte county, but members of the posse have hopes of picking it up again.
