Do We "Drink a Person's Health?"

(Copyright, 1920, by the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.) The custom of offering up a libation or toast to the health of a person either present or absent—a custom which bids fair to be far less popular than in the days before the advent of prohibition—dates back to the days when the Greeks and Romans offered liquid sacrifices to their gods. One of these libations was offered up in honor of the Lares or household deities, wine being sprinkled on the floor or table before the entrance of the first course and the Christian "grace before meals" is a survival of the same practice.

What the Irish Twins Found.

Larry and Eileen took hold of hands and began running as fast as they could. They jumped from one tuft of grass to another. Dennis came splashing through the puddles after them. He had almost caught them, when all of a sudden Larry stopped and listened.

"What's that now?" he said. Eileen and Dennis listened, too. They heard a faint squealing sound.

They looked all around. There was nothing in sight but the brown bog and the stones, and the blue hills far beyond. They were a little bit scared.

"Do you suppose it might be a Leprechaun?" Eileen whispered.

"This a tapping noise they make; not a crying noise at all," Larry answered.

"Maybe it's a Banshee," Dennis said. "They're crying about something before somebody is going to die."

"This no Banshee whatever," Eileen declared. "They only cry at night."

They heard the squealing sound again.

"This right over there," cried Eileen, pointing to a black hole in the bog where the turf had been cut out.

"Indeed, and it might be a beautiful baby like Deirdre herself! Let's go and see."

They crept up to the boghole and peeped over the edge. The hole was quite deep and down in the bottom of it was a little pig! Dennis rolled over on the ground before side the boghole and screamed with laughter.

"Sure 'tis the beautiful child entirely!" he said.

"'Tis the little pig the Tinkers had!" cried Eileen.

"He broke the rope and ran away with itself," shouted Larry.

"However will we get it out entirely?" said Eileen. "The hole is too deep."

"The poor little thing is nearly destroyed with hunger," Larry said. "I'll go down in the hole and lift her out."

"However will you get out yourself, then, Larry darling?" cried Eileen.

"The two of you can give me your hands," said Larry, "and I'll be up in no time."

Then Larry jumped down into the hole. He caught the little pig in his arms. The little pig squealed harder than ever and tried to get away, but Larry held it up as high as he could.

Eileen and Dennis reached down and each got hold of one of the pig's front feet. "Now then for you!" cried Larry.

REDS URGED TO SEIZE COUNTRY BY ANY METHOD

Letter Written by William Cross Lloyd Introduced in Communist Trial—State Closes Case.

Chicago Tribune—Omaha Bee Leased Wire. Chicago, July 22.—In winding up its case against 20 members of the communist labor party for conspiracy, the state yesterday, after a fight with attorneys for the defense, succeeded in getting into the evidence a letter signed by William Cross Lloyd, chief defendant, asserting that it was time for the working classes to take over the government and industries, "peacefully, if the rulers choose to give them up; by force, if they do not make that wise choice."

This letter was addressed to C. Feichtmeier, secretary of the socialist party of Wausau, Wis. Mrs. Rose Treves, who has been stenographer for Lloyd for seven years, was called to identify the letter, but refused to do so. The state, however, drew from her sufficient admissions to permit the letter to go into the records. The letter says in part:

"All through the war, even before our entry into it, the members of the national executive committee (of the socialist party) have trimmed, dodged, compromised, hesitated, instead of sticking to the class struggle first, last and all the time, and further, during the course of the Russian revolution they have not done their share in the support of the bolsheviks."

"The only thing the socialist are concerned in is the question of power and the overthrow of the capitalists. No capitalist government will do anything for the working class unless the capitalist class, for its own reasons, desires to do that thing, or unless it is compelled through fear of getting worse and more of it. It is time we tried a new deal and put in a bunch of men to organize the working class power to take over government and industry."

Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, laments the fact that the defense dropped him like a hot coal, without any cross-examination. He was loaded with a lot of facts he could not bring out in direct examination, but cross-examination would have opened the gates. The defense doubtless was aware of this and did not give him a chance.

The defense began this afternoon the presentation of its case, opening with a reading of the constitution and bylaws of the communist labor party. No opening statement was made and the state is still in the dark as to what the line of defense will be.

Ah! Family Skeleton in Cox Family Shows "M" Means Monroe

Washington, July 22.—Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio has been the democratic presidential nominee for weeks now and still the country is uncertain about what the "M" stands for.

Middleton has been generally accepted as the middle name of the democratic nominee. The democratic national committee, in fact, has ordered campaign literature printed. But his real name is James Monroe Stokes Cox.

Charles H. Morris, the governor's private secretary, said today that he had it from the authority of the governor's own mother, since deceased, that his name is Monroe.

"If necessary, we will get out the family Bible and dismiss all doubts," he added.

As announced in press dispatches he has declined to make the address at the notification of Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts Governor vice presidential candidate, on account of his health. His condition is not considered serious.

JACK JOHNSON IS NOW ON HIS WAY BACK TO CHICAGO

Johnson's Baggage on Journey Includes Pair of Dice Found on Him When He Was Jailed.

Los Angeles, July 22.—Jack Johnson, former world champion heavy weight pugilist, was bound for Chicago today in the company of self-enforced exile from the United States, following his disappearance while out on bail after conviction of violating the Mann act.

Johnson surrendered Tuesday at the Lower California border. He had been living at Tijuana, in sight of the international boundary for some time.

Because of Johnson's expressed dismay at the prospect of traversing Texas and Louisiana, federal authorities said their original plans, calling for transportation over a southern route had been altered. The start was made over a northern route.

At no time since his surrender has Johnson been handcuffed to federal officers, said. Fear of being manacled had deterred Johnson's surrender several days, but no promise had been made that handcuffs would not be used, the authorities said.

Johnson's baggage on the journey included a pair of dice discovered when he was searched in the county jail here.

"If I had known all this trouble would have been brought upon me by defeating Jim Jeffries I would have laid down in Reno just as I did to Willard in Havana," said Johnson while in jail here. His champion ship by knocking out James Jeffries at Reno, Nev., in the 15th round on July 4, 1910. He held the title until knocked out in the 26th round by Jess Willard at Havana, Cuba, on April 5, 1915.

Consolidation Bill Is Valid, Supreme Court Says in Ruling

Lincoln, Neb., July 21.—(Special.)—The supreme court today handed down an opinion upon the validity of senate file 261, the consolidation school bill, holding that the bill is not defective in title and not invalidated through failure of proper procedure in its enactment. Judge Rose dissented to the opinion, which was written by Justice Flansburg, while Chief Justice Morrissey and Justice Aldrich did not participate.

The case is one involving the right of E. M. Cox, an officer consolidated district No. 2 in Harlan county, to hold office and covered some irregularities in the passage of the bill. The bill was introduced in the senate and passed. It was amended by the house. The sifting committee recommended it to the senate file "without recommendation" as to its passage. The committee of the whole recommended the bill for engrossment and third reading, but no record appears in the house journal from the committee on enrolled and engrossed bills and no other record after that except the one that it passed and was signed by the governor.

Millionaire Tramp, Aged 86, Admits He Ran Away From Wife

Aurora, Ill., July 22.—"The millionaire tramp" taken into custody by the Aurora police Sunday, is Daniel F. Thew, 86 years old, wife deserter, of Morrisville, N. Y. He admitted his guilt when Chief of Police Webber received a telegram from the sheriff at Morrisville asking that Thew be held.
