For and By Business Girls

By LORETTA KING

Social Interruptions.
A business girl should never allow her own, or any one's else affairs to interfere with her job. This admonition is intended for girls who are new to the commercial world. Experienced workers know, and often the knowledge has been gained at great cost, the unwisdom of subordinating their work to unimportant affairs of their own.

There is nothing, I believe, more irritating to an employer than the sight of one of his staff workers chatting sociably over the telephone to a personal visitor when there is an immediate and pressing need for her services. It is necessary for the new girl to learn to submit to office discipline, and to realize that her duties there, no matter of what they consist, are of paramount importance, and should suffer no interference with her social activities. A friend of mine took into his office not long ago, to act as his secretary, a young woman who had never worked before. She was fresh from a business training school, but as she had been recommended to him by a friend as an unusually bright girl, he was willing to take a chance on her adaptability.

His former secretary, who had been with him for years, had just left to be married. He found his new secretary a clever girl. She took his dictation and transcribed her notes with an ease and accuracy which pleased him. She was equally as proficient in learning and accomplishing her other duties.

But while she was quick to learn and did everything she had to do remarkably well, she attached too little importance to her work. This was evidenced by the fact that she would allow clients and other business callers to wait for attention until she leisurely finished whatever she happened to be doing, even if it was merely a social chat over the telephone with one of her many friends, or a personal note which she wanted to get off in the next mail. She never Salads and Vegetables Substituted for Grain Foods.

In the student cafeteria at Prague university, Czechoslovakia, run by the American Y. W. C. A., the use of salads and green vegetables as a part of the diet has to be encouraged by a patriotic suggestion, namely, that the use of these substitutes for grain foods will save the already diminished supply of grains. Green vegetables and salad dishes are unknown and are not liked. The people are accustomed to a heavier diet and only necessity makes this experiment effective. In the same

Visiting Nurses for Students at Prague University.

Appointing visiting nurses to care for the sick students among the 15,000 enrolled at Prague university is one of the first things done by the American Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. committees which are carrying on student work in Czechoslovakia. Many of the college students are sick from lack of food as well as from other causes and many are too poor to seek aid. Nurses have been apportioned groups of students to keep in touch with. Physicians in Prague are co-operating by giving services free while the American Red Cross supplies bandages, cotton and other materials. The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. together are putting up a student hotel to take care of the social life of the students and to provide rest rooms, gymnasium and restaurant.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan with electric starting and lighting system, demountable rims with 3 1/4-inch tires and tire carrier, for every day in the year has no equal as a family car. Just as popular on the farm as it is in the city. In fact, it fits the family demands in every vocation of life. Large, roomy seats, finely upholstered. Plate glass windows make it an open car in pleasant weather, while in rainy and inclement weather it becomes a closed car, dust-proof and rain-proof. It is ideal for social functions, the theatre, or parties; carrying the children to school, or for touring. It is not only comfortable, but really cozy, and above all, economical in operation and maintenance, and yet with all it has the Ford merits of strength and durability. We solicit your order for one.
