This smart little friend of mine was bewailing the fact that she would have to shop also for a maternity frock. But after Mrs. Hill had fitted her in her usual clever and scientific manner, yet bringing out her natural lines of grace, my friend was quite de-lighted to find the lines of her figure very much improved over the lines, which are always associated with the condition preceding child-birth. Quickly slipping on her stylish frock, we found it quite unnecessary to shop for the much-disliked maternity frock. I would advise any lady in need of such corseting to call on Mrs. Hill for a personal fitting. If unable to call, write this specialist for literature or measure blanks. She gives all fittings and mail orders her personal services and attention.
