

HORSE TURNS IN ALARM WHEN HE SCRATCHES SELF

"Bonapart" Leans Wearily Against Telephone Pole and Trucks Rush to Scene.

"Bonapart," the ancient nag of John Bosvitz, a fruit and vegetable peddler, was standing at Eleventh and Howard street yesterday about 7 a. m., waiting for his master to negotiate a load of fruit and vegetables to sell.

"Bonapart," who lives up to the last section of his name, was weary. He had been awakened from dreams of green pastures and flowing waters at 4:30 and hitched to the creaking wagon and hustled to the market place.

"Hard Life," Muses Bony. "It's a hard life," Bonapart reflected, "and I have stood it for more than 20 years. However, they say the first 20 years were the hardest. Oh, well, tomorrow's Sunday."

Bonapart's head itched and he leaned up against the post and scratched it. There was a red thing on the post with a brass handle. Bonapart found this brass handle made an excellent thing to scratch his head. Only it didn't seem to be firm. It moved when he scratched himself.

Fire Alarm Sounds. In the fire station at Eleventh and Jackson streets the bell rang. Firemen popped out of bed and slid down the poles. The engines and hose carts in everthing rushed out of the barn. They dodged among the dozens of wagon and trucks filling the market streets at that hour of the morning. They rushed to Eleventh and Howard streets.

The firemen looked in vain for smoke. Bonapart looked up sleepily at the disturbance.

Scratches Some More. Then he went on scratching himself. If that darn brass thing isn't wouldn't move, he reflected, he could scratch much better.

"Here's the guy that turned in the alarm," exclaimed Captain Sam Carney, surveying Bonapart, who was still busily scratching.

Bonapart's owner came up and unhitched him.

"I guess I put that horse on the Orpheum circuit," he said.

"Well, just so you keep him away from them fire alarms is all we ask," yelled the firemen as they drove back to the barn.

Billy Taylor, Jr., 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor, 509 South Forty-first street, in time for his sleep Friday night scared away a burglar.

It is believed the burglar was frightened away by hearing the baby's voice.

Their Wedding Will End Courtship of 17 Years

H. H. Wandell. H. H. Wandell, 74 years old, pioneer cattleman and dealer in real estate in and around Omaha when this city was a mere village, will be married today to Mrs. Mary Brooks, 58 years of age, of Savannah, Ga. The bride-to-be will arrive here Sunday morning, and after the ceremony the couple will be at home temporarily at 1436 North Twentieth street.

The marriage will be the culmination of a romance which began 17 years ago when Mr. Wandell moved to Georgia and went into business.

He remained in the southern state for a number of years, then was forced to go to Colorado for his health. He fully recovered there, and recently decided to come back to Omaha, where he still had property interests.

Was Omaha Pioneer. Mr. Wandell is a native of Wisconsin and came to Omaha in 1865. "It was a mere village then," he said, "and wild horses, cattle, buffalo and Indians were the most of the inhabitants in this part of the country. I have broken horses over ground on which now stands some of Omaha's best business blocks."

Still young and in the full vigor of manhood at the age of 74, Mr. Wandell says he sees no reason why he should not live to be 100 and still be active.

"Feels Like He is 20." "At 74 I feel just as young and full of vitality as when I was 20," Mr. Wandell said. "My blood is good, my heart action perfect, and I am as quick and active as in the early days when I rode bronchos for a living. Why, then, should I feel that I have to wear out in the next few years? There's nothing to it—I expect to be strong and healthy when I'm 100."

Previous to the supper there were contests testing the prowess of the men, as henpecked and downtrodden husbands, in button sewing. Their spouses will be judges and will present the inner tube which will be given the winner as a prize.

Women were to do their part by indulging in ball-throwing and slipper-kicking contests for the amusement of the spectators. Supper, fireworks and a joy ride were to end the day.
