When any inhibitions occur the plait has to be content with a mere ruffle. These plaited ruffles are, in fact, one of the favored modes of trimming this year. In the costume shown they are the only touches employed upon this attractive summer model of changeable rose and blue taffeta. # Problems That Perplex

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An Inconsiderate Mother. ear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: have been engaged to a young man for over a year. He is 28 and 1 am the same. We broke our engage-ment six weeks ago, due to my mother. I am completely heart-

Her only reason for acting so is because she thought that I was going to get married soon, but we were going to wait for at least two years yet. The man was only too willing to have an understanding with my niother, but she wouldn't sanction it. Please advise me what to do. JENNIE.

Of course, your letter is far too long and involved to publish as a whole. But as you tell your story, t seems that your mother is taking a mercenary and cold-blooded atti-tude toward you and your pay en-velope. It doesn't seem fair that you should sacrifice yourself utterly for her. Nor does it seem just to the young man for you to do nothing to make up to him for the shameful treatment he received. Why don't you write to him and try to make him understand your love and loyalty?

Money and Romance.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a soldier, 24.) A year ago I met in New York a girl of 20, quiet and refined. I have called on her twice a week in the last year. I have tried to enlighten her as to my financial resources, suggesting that she continue to work and I would send her, the monthly allowance, which would be $35, and she could either spend it or put it away so we could have a few dollars when I am discharged. This seemed all right mentioned the fact of not being able to spend $75 or $100 for a diamond ring. Then she told me that she wanted a diamond ring that would cost at least $125. What I want to know is whether young lady of this sort would make a good helpmate for a poor man. I have a large sum coming to me. This money I ought to receive any Money seems to be far too important an ingredient of your ro-mance. Neither you nor your sweetheart ought to lay so much stress on what you can afford and what you can't afford. Of course, in the main, you are quite right. It is all either very sordid or very young. In one breath, however, you speak of your poverty, in the next of your legacy. This puzzles me as to your real financial condition. Possibly it also causes the girl a bit of uncer-tainty. She may feel that you can be generous-and don't want to.

Marrying a Cousin.

Dear Miss Fairfax. Omaha Bee: I am a foreign girl of 20 and have beer in the country for three years. Nine months ago I met my sho is 23, and we are deeply in love with each other.

His parents are not satisfied with

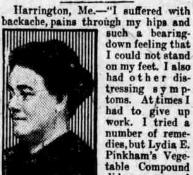

Do you think if we get married we will be happy without our par-ents' consent? LILY. There is a great deal of prejudice against cousin marriages. Intermar-riage has weakened many races and has lowered the sturdiness of some royal families. Modern statistics, however, and modern theories dis-pute some of the seemingly established facts. Perhaps your families object on the ground that you should not marry a blood relation. The combination of family prejudice and the eugenic objection is one I can't advise you to ignore.

Smiles-You are not too young to have callers, but you must not allow them to "love" you as you say they io. If your friend is acting as you say he does just tell him, quietly, to take his hat and go home. It would be better for you and you would be luckier if you would wait about three or four years before having a steady "beau." Go riding Sunday evenings, but by all means never go to a dance on Sunday. Just place the vaseline on the eyebrows and rim the eyelids. It is better to use a camel's hair brush for this.

Precious-You are both too young to take love so seriously. Forget it for three years and you will feel

Cheese

In practically every restaurant. caroom, hotel or cafeteria, cheese and cheese dishes are becoming more and more popular. They also figure most attractively on the printed club or church menus. This should be a tip to Madam Home-Manager that cheese dishes will be welcomed on her table.

Cheeses are generally named for the town or district from which they come-they give an interesting foreign suggestion. American cheese is the name used for that form of the English cheddar generally liked in this country. Brie, Camembert, Coulommier, Neufchatel and Roquefort are French cheeses from different parts of France and differing in some cases very much in flavor and appearance. Edam and Gonda cheese are from Holland. Gruyere, the cheese of many holes, from Switzerland, and the strongsmelling Limburger comes from Belgium and not from Germany, as s often supposed.

All good cheese is pure and nealthful, the high flavors being due the natural ripening processes. Cheese needs only to be melted
