Are There No Women Clowns With the Circus?

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.) Al Miaco, who recently celebrated his 81st birthday and is the oldest clown in the circus business, is authority for the statement that women do anot make good clowns and that for this reason the profession is one in which men predominate. "I have known some women clowns," says Miaco, "but none of them was good. As a general rule, women won't make fools of themselves as men will and they don't want to make themselves ridiculous. A male clown doesn't mind how foolishly you dress him nor how funny you make him look. He hasn't much natural vanity. But give a woman a ridiculous costume, make her paint her face in red and white checks, put on a false pair of feet seven sizes too large for her and what have you? A woman clown? No-a resigned and melanholic person who gets but little joy out of life and less out of her work.

"Women seldom have a sense of humor when the joke is directed against themselves. They hate to be laughed at, while men like a joke and can enjoy the ones that hit them as well as the ones which are aimed at others. My sixty years of experience has proven that men make the best clowns. Maybe it's because they don't have to act-maybe they're just born that way."

Latest Returns in Texas Primary Show No Change

Dallas, Tex., July 30.—Belated re-turns from distant counties of Texas received by the Texas election bureau continued to show no appretable change in the outcome of the democratic state primary of July 24. Former Senator J. W. Bailey, candidate for the democratic gubernatorial omination, continues to lead Pat M. Neff of Waco by about 5,000.

Bailey and Neff will enter the runoff primary August 28. Returns, occasionally augmented by late counts, showed a total of 414,389 votes, representing 246 counties, 118 of which are complete. The tabulations gave Bailey 140,080, Neff 135,580, Tomason 92,443 and Looney 46,226.
