

REFUSE TO RETURN HORTON CHILDREN TO THEIR MOTHER

Child Saving Institute Defies Welfare Board—Says Mother Able to Pay for Care of Babies.

Authorities at the Child Saving institute are holding the two children of Mrs. Donella Horton, who have been there nine months, and defy any action by the board of public welfare to recover the children for the mother.

Institute Officials Said Yesterday They Have Had No Word from the Mother of the Children Since She Went to Kansas City Saturday Night, ostensibly to secure employment to support the children.

Ask Payment of Bill.

A bill of more than $200 for their care stands against the mother of the children. When Mrs. Horton appeared at the institute to take the children away, the authorities declared that inasmuch as she had been earning a good salary in a restaurant she ought to remit some toward the bill.

Fearing that the authorities were holding her children as hostages, Mrs. Horton appealed to the welfare board. Mrs. Morgan A. Joslyn and Mrs. McGraw, both on the executive board of the institute, stoutly denied that "payment of the bill was the main issue in the case."

Babies Abandoned.

"Mrs. Horton literally abandoned her children for three full months," she said. "We scoured the city and country for her to come and see her babies. We couldn't find her. We had many applications to adopt the children, but we thought it best to await the possible return of the mother. Now she demands her children without paying a cent for their care. It is not the practice of this institute to allow parents to abandon their babies as drones upon the public when they can readily care somewhat for them."

Not Question of Money.

"Then, it is not a question of money in this case," Mrs. McGraw emphasized. "We feel it is not for the best interests of the children to be returned to their mother now. Mrs. Horton herself declared she would not know what to do if she did have them back. She told me her husband is in the penitentiary."
