

Red Literature Is Distributed In Ranks Of the Mexican Army
Mexico City, Aug. 27.—Belief that the dissemination of bolshevik literature among Mexican soldiers was a maneuver by political enemies of the present de facto government was expressed today by Gen. Eduardo C. Garcia, chief of staff of the war department. He declined to disclose the organization he believed responsible for this attempt to sow discontent among the men in the army.

"We are gathering evidence, and as soon as we have proofs they will be made public," he declared. "Our enemies cannot call us thieves or tyrants, and so they are taking this method of discrediting the army."

Kickin' the Dawg.
Akron, O., Aug. 27.—The fact that some one kicks your dog does not give you the right to "punch" the kicker.

This is the law as laid down by the Akron municipal court. John Malin admitted he hit Walter Knox, a neighbor, because, he alleged, Knox kicked his dog. Malin was fined $5 and costs for disorderly conduct.
