FOR the past four months the readers of this newspaper have been given an opportunity to learn some of the vital facts concerning Chiropractic. Thousands of dollars have been spent in Omaha by its four leading Chiropractors exploiting "The Drugless Road to Health." Through the columns of The Bee the story of what Chiropractic has accomplished has gone broadcast to the people of Nebraska and surrounding country.

All one has to do is to look around in Omaha, or in fact any city, to see the hundreds, yes, thousands of chronic invalids. People who are able to walk about and talk, but nevertheless invalids. In nine out of every ten cases it is apparent to the eye of the trained observer, that the Spine is abnormal.

It is unnecessary to enumerate the many and varied deformed postures which we see constantly. Such postures are often accompanied by spinal disturbances, causing disorders of many body orders.

Twenty-five years have passed since Dr. Palmer discovered that the spine had anything to do with the ills and ails of the body. Gradually the world is waking up to the fact that it is spinally imperfect, and that health will not grace our every-day life until we are spinally erect, graceful and sturdy.

More and more the Chiropractor is being recognized as the masterful mechanic of the body, the trained and skillful mechanic who puts us in running order, restoring health—the foundation of all achievement.

Ask Yourself This Question!

Isn't It About Time That I Were Paying Myself a Dividend In the Form of Regained Health?

Suffering is unwarranted and detracts from your ability to be 100% efficient. Why not use the same common sense and discernment in selecting the medium to get well as you do in making an investment of your financial surplus?

The Chiropractic premise is this—"That nerves convey vital energy to every part of the body." These nerves pass out in pairs through openings between each joint of the spine. Through accidental means or otherwise the bones become misaligned, resulting in a firm pressure upon the nerves, which is the direct cause of 95% of human ailments.
