JOHNSON TURNS ASIDE ASPIRANT FOR NET HONORS

Defeats R. Norris Williams 2d In Fourth Round of Championship Singles—Other Players Show Form

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 2.—William M. Johnston turned aside a formidable aspirant for his honors when, he defeated R. Norris Williams II in the fourth round of the 39th All-Coners National tennis championship singles today.

It was the engagement of Johnson and Williams that pleased the crowd. Williams possessed no effective length to his shots. Also, his service was tricky, and, instead of the sizzling aces expected, double faults punctured the score at the most critical stages.

There was another outstanding feature of the rallies in this set. It was seen Williams' back hand was inclined to be erratic, Johnston made the most of this weakness. His drives from deep court were all cautiously developed as the rallies progressed. It was the same as he fought his way up to the net to volley. These were the elements that made it possible for him to hold the lead.

Williams Shows Weakness. The weakness of Williams' game was clearly shown in the third set. Shooting finally for the lines which he paralleled with aces drives, Williams went to the lead, 5-2, on games.

Johnson then started to wreck his rival's game by wonderful changes of speed and length. Twice Williams was within a point of the set and each time Johnston forced him to over-drive the court to carry the points to deuce. The final rally was characteristic of what Williams did for under pressure in the Californian's side of the barrier. Williams drove the last ball slapping into the net.

Thien conquered his youthful prodigy Vincent Richards in four sets. The score was 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0. The matches tomorrow reduce the field to the four survivors in the semifinals round.

Poles May Join Wrangle In His Fight on Reds

Warsaw, Sept. 2.—Negotiations for joint operation by Polish and south Russian forces are going on between the government here and General Baron Wrangel. Co-operation between the Poles and Ukrainians is declared to be a grave menace to the bolsheviks and, it is said, the latter have shown the appreciation of this by offering important concessions to Poland at the expense of Lithuania.

These offers, it is asserted, were made by soviet representatives at semi-official conferences with members of the Polish delegation while it was in Minsk.

Sculptor Gives Up Art; Works Now As Waiter

London, Sept. 2.—Scotland McLure, the sculptor, whose bronze statue of King George in coronation robes now stands in Nadras, has given up his art and is now a waiter in a beer hotel at Kingston. The extinction of the demand of Americans for busts and the diminution of the English demand, so reduced his income that it was insufficient for his day to day needs. He declares the tips he receives in his present job give him a comfortable living.

Fort Worth in Texas League Wins Pennant

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 2.—By winning yesterday's game, Fort Worth clinched the pennant in the Texas league. As the local club won in both the first and second halves of the split season, no playoff series will be necessary. Negotiations are under way with the Southern association for a post-season series with Fort Worth.

Woman Drinks Poison in South Dakota Hotel Lobby

Redfield, S. D., Sept. 2.—A young woman registering as Miss Ella Barr, Colfax, Wis., committed suicide by swallowing poison in the parlor of a local hotel today. She left four letters showing disappointment in love to be the cause for her act.

Tourists Desecrate French Battlefields To Secure Souvenirs

Paris, Sept. 2.—Stories of vandalism by tourists on the French battlefields are still coming into Paris. Following an authenticated exposure of the dancing on Martmans-willerkopf, comes evidence from Verdun that unscrupulous souvenir hunters have undermined the famous trench of the bayonets, a spot where the tips of bayonets disclose the tragedy of a mine explosion, where a company of French infantry were buried alive when standing upright in a trench.

Another trench had been dug at night alongside the place where the bayonets protrude and the desecrations wrought and the desecrations, which by an American girl is to be perpetuated as a national monument, have taken pieces of clothing and accoutrements from the skeletons of the heroes, who, upright in death, from most gruesome relics to the glory of French arms. The souvenirs thus obtained have been sold, it is charged, at high prices to tourists at Verdun.

Bootlegging Is So Lucrative Crooks Desert Old Trades

Washington, Sept. 2.—So lucrative has become the bootlegging industry in the United States that experienced criminals are forsaking their former lines of adventure to engage in the illicit liquor traffic. This was stated by officials of the internal revenue bureau today.

The revenue officials complain that one of the hardest things to combat is the attitude of the public toward violators of the prohibition law. Many communities, they claim, openly wink at the offenders and seem inclined to protect the illicit traffic.

The present forces of the internal revenue bureau engaged in enforcing the Volstead act will have to be greatly increased, it is believed here. State and city authorities all over the country are said to be showing an increasing lack of interest in making arrests under the act.

Baby Choked to Death By Breeding of Speeding Car

London, Sept. 2.—How a baby was choked by automobile speeding was described by its parents at an inquest at Llanwrane, Herefordshire, on the death of the 3-months old son of John Lewis, an engineer. The air pressure caused by the spinning of the car, although moderate, produced dislocation of the baby's respiratory organs. A jury which included four women, returned a verdict of "accidental death."

A., dropped dead while at Evergreen, a mountain pleasure resort, with a party of 30 nurses and officers from Fitzsimmons army hospital last night. Death was ascribed to natural causes. Jenison's home was in New Orleans, where his wife lives.

WHY?—Is the First Monday in September Celebrated as Labor Day?

The idea of having an American holiday, separate and distinct from the European celebration of May 1 as Labor day, originated in Boston about 1878, but it was not until 1882 that the first formal movement was made to establish this as an annual institution.

Matthew Maguire, secretary of the Central Labor union in New York City, wrote to the various labor organizations in the state with a view to setting aside one day in the year for a celebration of the power of labor. The idea was well received, and it was agreed to select the first Monday in September, the opening of the harvesting season, as well as the commencement of fall activities in various other lines. The first Labor day was accordingly celebrated in the same year—1882—and proved so successful that the New York Central Labor union wrote to the organizations in other states, suggesting that they adopt the idea, adding that the first Monday in September had been endorsed as the official holiday for labor by the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor. In 1887 the New York legislature made Labor day a holiday throughout the state, a step which was speedily followed by Massachusetts and other states. By act of congress, signed by the president on June 28, 1894, the holiday was made official in the District of Columbia and soon spread throughout the country. At the present time the state of New Mexico is the only one in which the day is not officially recognized as a holiday.

More Truth Than Poetry

AS TO ALIENISTS.

An eminent alienist declares that the fans that throw pop bottles at baseball umpires are not properly balanced mentally. When fans declare: "We'll kill that ump!" The ugly faced galoot! And leave the stand in frenzied jumps Their threat to execute, And beat the wretch with club and fist Amid terrific noise, "Dear me," observes the alienist, "They've lost their mental poise!"

When Deacon Jones of Poplar Creek Flies off his trolley wire, Lets out a loud and piercing shriek And sets his house afire, And clambers up the town hall stairs To shoot his brother, Dave, "Well, well!" the alienist declares, "That's no way to behave!"

When William puts a halter on And says that he's a cow, And, all the fodder being gone He can't get breakfast now, And that a little barley serves To whet his appetite, "Oh dear!" the alienist observes, "He isn't acting right!"

It's fine when anyone appears To have a mental twist Or be snarled up between the ears To call an alienist. To such a case he always brings A world of learned lore, And tells us a lot of things That we have known before!

WHAT WILL THEY DO, POOR THINGS? A large number of splendid suffrage orators are out of a job. HAVE YOU HEARD OF HIM LATELY? The president's former confidential adviser seems to have added himself to the house shortage.

Common Sense Give the Children a Chance. By J. J. MUNDY.

This is the time for travel and there are certain experiences which you should permit your children to have to make them familiar with them. It is not just to a child, for instance, to let it grow up without knowing anything about the inside of a Pullman car.

Much embarrassment has been caused young men and young women by the ignorance they have had to display regarding sleeping cars. Children should be taken to large hotels to know how to conduct themselves in such places.

And children should be given as much as their parents' income will allow for the purpose of doing the things necessary in associating with persons of good breeding so that they may know the proper ways of doing things, as well as the influence which contact with well bred persons will give in refinement. It is an easy matter for a young person to do some little thing which is really big in its announcement to others that there is no experience or environment back of it. Do you want your child to be so handicapped? Of course you don't. Then see that your child has proper training along cultural lines. (Copyright, 1920, by International Feature Service, Inc.)

I'M THE GUY

I'M THE GUY who, when you introduce him to your best girl, tries to queer you with her and steal her away from you. My motto is "all's fair in love or war" and if she looks good to me why should I pass her up just because she's yours—and you trusted me as a friend?

If you don't want to lose her, why do you introduce me to her? If I can make her to prefer me to you, that's her affair, not yours. She is the one to be considered, and you ought to be glad she's better suited. And if I can get her quicker and more surely by telling her things that make her distrust you or even dislike you, why shouldn't I? I've got to play my own game, not yours. I may not want to marry her the way you do. I may only want to forsake and then drop her, but whatever my motives or intentions it's my own game, so where do you fit in? What's your friendship to my passing whim? You answer—I don't care. (Copyright, 1920, Thompson Feature Service.)
