Carpentier Has Little To Fear From Levinsky

Frenchman Should Emerge as Even Greater Drawing Card Toward Fight With Jack Dempsey.

Americans take the attitude that, no matter what he has done, there always have been extenuating circumstances that shade the impor-tance of his victories. Yet Carpentier won on a foul from Gunboat Smith, after he had floored that very good American battler and had him practically out. It is a well-known fact that the referee of this battle gave the Gunner quite a long count after the Frenchman had knocked him down. Smith was so woozy from the punch that he struck Carpentier while the latter was on his knees and thus saved himself the ignominy of being counted out.

Carpentier has twice knocked out Bombardier Wells-once after Wells had knocked him down and almost out with a straight right. No heavy weight ever lived who could punc harder and faster than Wells, even i he does have that mark of a poor fighter-a glass jaw.

Carpentier went through long and gruelling fights with Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, two terrible American middleweights. He lost one of these on a foul when Francois Descamps, his manager, jumped into the ring In the other he refused to answer the bell in a late round and forfeited the hight. But he came back after each of hese encounters strongly enough to win the heavyweight champion ship of Europe. When the Frenchman was a lad of eighteen he fought Joe Jeanette, the big American negro, and, although the decision was made against him, there is no doubt that Carpentier really won the fight. He knocked Jeanette down and practically out in the first round of that battle, something any American heavyweight would be glad to say he could do. and, remember, Jeanette was one of the best heavies in the world at that

There is no reason to waste sympathy, over the Frenchman. He is very well able to take care of himself. Chances are he will stop Levin sky and go right after Dempsey. And when he meets Dempsey there will be a light. The American champion looks like a sure winner, but he will find in Carpentier a worthy op-
